Mrs. Gonzales would like to contact the spouses of Counsel Office staff members to see about getting families together for dinner one night next week.

REV_00131986

Will you please email to me the names and contact number(s) for your spouse? I think children may also be included in the evening so if you will tell me how many kids you have, and provide names if you wish, that would be helpful.

Also - I do not have home addresses/zip for most of you. If you want to send this to me as well I'll make a spread sheet of "personal info" that can be used by Counsel Office staff only for other purposes like Christmas cards, party invites, etc.

Staff Secretaries Office has only a few staff members so they may also be included in the evening.

Thanks!

I'll be there at the 7 p.m meeting.

I understand that you, Courtney, and Brad have divided up the titles. I am going through the titles as well. I am going to try to go through all of them. So what I'll be doing is duplicative.

If, for some reason, one of you cannot complete the tasks assigned to you by the Judge, please give me a call and I can switch from what I am doing to fill in for one of you folks.

Kirk: Per our phone conversation, Lozzi was never a White House staffer, let alone during Deasert Storm. at best he drove a press car in a motorcade once. This letter and his web bio with photos of him at the White House and AF #1 is ridiculous. I just hope he isn't dumb enough to try something stupid.

la times reporter deborah nelson has filed a foia request for "all paper and electronic records, including email, concerning a national homeland defense task force."

as you know, these are words used regarding the use of national guard troops or the reserves to defend and protect u.s. soil. it's likely all departments are getting this request and, not to state the obvious, we'll need to be consistent in our response.

thanks, eric

Figure out a schedule between the three of you and discuss it with me tomorrow morning.

OFFICE OF STRATEGIC INITIATIVES

September 19, 2001

MEMORANDUM FOR TIM CAMPEN

THROUGH: BARRY JACKSON AND TUCKER ESKEW

FROM: NEIL ZIMMERMAN, JIMMY ORR, AND JANE COOK

CC: BRETT KAVANAUGH AND MARCUS MOLLMANN

RE: WHITE HOUSE INTERNET CONTENT MANAGEMENT

The Office Media Affairs (OMA) will be responsible for the content management of the White House Web site. All posts to the Web site will need to be approved by OMA.

The Office of Strategic Initiatives (OSI) will be responsible for the content and database design for the White House Web site e-mail distribution system. All e-mail sends and database manipulation will need to be approved by OSI.

OMA and OSI will work closely on e-mail and Web site message coordination. The White House Counsel's office will be an integral part of all OMA and OSI Internet processes and planning to ensure White House Internet components (Web site and e-mail) receive continual ethical, legal, and privacy review.

The e-mail system should capture e-mail addresses, first name, last name, zip codes and issue categories. The database should be scalable so that additional personalization information can be collected.

Sign-up process attached.

The e-mail system will need to send general updates to the entire list (up to millions of addresses) as well as specialized updates based on user personalization (name, zip code, issue categories, etc.). The e-mail content will be original material, not the automatic generation of documents available on the White House Web site.

While it may not be possible now, the Web site and the E-mail system will need to interact with each other. They should operate from the same database and content management system. The goal: to have a personalization system allowing the Web site experience to mirror preferences indicated via e-mail (link usage, questionnaire responses, etc.) and vice-versa.

E-mail Sign-up Process

Sign-Up Box in Web site Header or Sidebar

- I. Insert E-mail address and click submit
- II. Pop-up confirmation box
 - A. Thank you for submitting (show address submitted)
 - B. Want Personalized updates?
 - 1. Click here to find out how to:
 - a. Get localized information
 - b. Be addressed by name
 - c. Choose your own issue categories
- III. End of process OR click through to personalization page (Item II,B below)

WH News Sign-Up Page

- I. Insert E-mail address and click submit
- II. Go to Confirmation page:
 - A. Thank you for submitting (show address submitted)
 - B. Want to personalize your updates?
 - 1. Zip Code
 - a. Get information that is relevant to your area.
 - 2. First and Last Name
 - a. Allow e-mails to be addressed to you by name.
 - 3. Issue Categories
 - a. Get special updates based on the topics you choose.
- III. End of process if no personalization
- IV. Click through to personalization confirmation if personalization selected
 - A. Show what personalization has been selected and the information that's been submitted
 - B. Click OK to submit or GO BACK to correct
- V. End of process once OK selected

Note: Whichever method is used to sign-up, a double opt-in process is required.

Mass Outbound E-mail

Phases:

- I. Limited system
 - A. Limited changes
 - 1. Current staff structure
 - 2. Current Web site and e-mail Listserv
 - B. Basic Format
 - 1. Plain text
 - 2. E-mail content will be written specifically for e-mail delivery
 - 3. No automatic content generated based on Web site content
 - C. Limited issue categories
 - 1. General agenda updates
 - 2. Only top issues available for specified issue updates
 - 3. Scheduled updates only, no real time content generation
 - D. Little information collection, simple personalization
 - 1. E-mail address
 - 2. Personalization info: name, zip code and/or issue category
- II. Comprehensive system
 - A. Significant changes
 - 1. Structured Internet content and design teams (at least OSI and Media Affairs)
 - 2. Integrated Content Management system for Website and E-mail
 - B. Dynamic Format
 - 1. Plain text
 - 2. HTML Web based
 - 3. AOL friendly HTML
 - C. Multiple subject categories
 - 1. General agenda updates
 - 2. Specified issue updates, including a more comprehensive list of issues
 - 3. Automatic "filler" content generated based on personalization information, i.e. general information is replaced if specialized information is available either on the Web site or in original e-mail content
 - D. Full Personalization
 - 1. Basic information collection (email, name, zip code, issue category)
 - 2. Format of e-mail (plain, html, etc.)
 - 3. Frequency of updates (scheduled, real time)
 - 4. Relationship Marketing Option to receive targeted information
 - 5. Ability for subscribers to view/alter their subscription (myWhiteHouse.gov)
 - 6. Ability to measure click through rate of each e-mail
 - 7. Ability to measure click through rate of individual accounts for message targeting

Juliet, the WH Counsel's office is also physically in transition (I think to just other spaces within EEOB), which is probably why I have not heard back from Brett Kavanaugh, the WH lawyer who will handle the FOIA issues for us. Just in case he can't deal with this for a few days because of the office move, can you ask your DOL lawyer to hold off on sending anything out UNTIL he's heard from Brett? It should be only a short additional delay, and I would imagine ACLU is busy at the moment with concerns other than the audit reports. Thanks.

NATIONAL POW/MIA RECOGNITION DAY, 2001

- - - - -

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

A PROCLAMATION

The noble ideals that became the foundation of this young Nation sprang from the hearts and minds of patriots who risked their lives in the name of liberty. Throughout our history, patriots of these United States of America have risen to answer the call when liberty was in jeopardy. Our military history is replete with stories of heroism in which individuals put love of country ahead of all else. Many brave Americans left their homes and families to defend this great Nation and its ideals, some never to return home.

National POW/MIA Recognition Day has special meaning to many American families. It brings alive each year the anguish they suffer from the loss of their loved ones still among the missing. These families, and the brave men they sent to war, would never call themselves heroes. However, those who answer the call of duty stand as a beacon of inspiration to all Americans for generations to come.

Throughout our history, Americans, both military and civilian, have been held captive and subjected to many unspeakable horrors. Some 50,000 former POWs are living among us, including those held captive during World War II, the Korean War, the Vietnam War, throughout the Cold War era, and in Operation Desert Storm. We owe a profound debt of gratitude to these quiet heroes who displayed honor and indomitable wills and who sacrificed so much for this Nation.

To the families of those who are still missing, we renew our unwavering commitment and determination to account as fully as possible for their loved ones, including their recovering or repatriation, and the identification of the remains of those who have died.

On September 21, 2001, the flag of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, a black and white banner symbolizing America's POWS and MIAs and our unshakable resolve to ascertain their fate, will be flown over the White House, the U.S. Capitol, the Departments of State, Defense, and Veterans Affairs, the Selective Service System Headquarters, the National Vietnam Veterans Memorial, the Korean War Veterans Memorial, U.S. Military installations, national cemeteries, and other locations across our country. This will serve as a powerful reminder to the world that we will keep faith with those who so served America with such honor and dignity.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GEORGE W. BUSH, President of the United States, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and the laws of the United States, do hereby proclaim September 21, 2001, as National POW/MIA Recognition Day. I call upon all Americans to join me in honoring former American prisoners of war who suffered the hardships of enemy captivity and in renewing our commitment to those still missing in action. I call upon Federal, State, and local government officials and private organizations to observe this day with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this day of _____, in the year of our Lord two thousand one, and of the Independence of the United States of America the two hundred and twenty-sixth.

A BILL

To provide for the stability and security of the United States air transportation system, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "United States Air Transportation Stability and Security Act of 2001".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds that:

(1) The September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks on American Airlines flights 11 and 77 and United Airlines flights 93 and 175 have inflicted massive loss of life, personal injury, suffering, property damage, economic loss, and other harms on tens of thousands of victims.

(2) There is a compelling public interest in ensuring that victims be compensated equitably, uniformly, and expeditiously, and in avoiding duplicative, and potentially inconsistent, resolution of identical issues in different courts.

(3) There is a compelling and overwhelming public interest in ensuring the stability and security of this Nation's air carriers.

(4) The President has declared a national subject to this title.

SEC. 407. ATTORNEY FEES.

No attorney shall charge, demand, receive, or collect for services rendered, fees in excess of 10 per centum of any judgment rendered or settlement reached in any action under this section.

SEC. 408. PREJUDGMENT INTEREST.

Any defendant in an action brought pursuant to this Act shall not be liable for interest prior to judgment.

TITLE VI—LIABILITY OF AIR CARRIERS FOR INJURIES CAUSED BY FUTURE ACTS OF TERRORISM COMMITTED ON OR TO AIR CARRIERS

SEC. 601. LIMITATION ON LIABILITY.

Any air carrier certified as a victim of an act of terrorism under this section shall not be liable in any civil action or proceeding, state or federal, for injury, loss of property, personal injury or death resulting from that act of terrorism, except in actions brought by passengers or employees on the airplane, or their survivors.

SEC. 602. DISCRETION OF THE SECRETARY.

For acts of terrorism committed on or to air carriers for 180 days after enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Transportation, in his discretion, may certify that the air carrier was a victim of an act of terrorism and in the Secretary's judgment, based on his analysis and conclusions regarding the facts and circumstances of each case, should not be responsible for losses suffered by parties other than the passengers and employees on the airplane.

emergency as a result of the terrorist attacks on September 11, 2001.

(5) Application of existing State and Federal tort law procedures to the exceptional circumstances arising from the terrorist attacks would threaten to overwhelm the State and Federal courts, impose massive litigation costs and delayed recovery, produce uncoordinated, disparate, and grossly inequitable results, and jeopardize the stability and security of the Nation's air carriers.

SEC. 3. AMENDMENTS TO TITLE 49, UNITED STATES CODE.

Except as otherwise expressly provided, whenever in this Act an amendment or repeal is expressed in terms of an amendment to, or a repeal of, a section or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to a section or other provision of title 49, United States Code.

SEC. 4. SECRETARY OF TRANSPORTATION.

As used in this Act, the term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Transportation.

TITLE I—SECURITY ENHANCEMENT PROGRAM

SEC. 101. SECURITY ENHANCEMENT PROGRAM.

There is hereby [authorized to be] appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $3,000,000,000 to remain available until expended, for expenditure by the Secretary of Transportation, as the Secretary may determine, for costs relating to or arising from aviation security enhancements. Expenditures by the Secretary under this title may include, without limitation, payments to air carriers, as defined in 49 U.S.C. 40102, to be used for costs relating to or arising from aviation security enhancement.

TITLE II—AIRLINE EMERGENCY RECOVERY PROGRAM

SEC. 201. AIRLINE EMERGENCY RECOVERY PROGRAM.

(a) GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Transportation is authorized to make emergency payments to air carriers, as defined in 49 U.S.C. 40102, as a result of the September 11, 2001, terrorist attack.

(b) FORMULA.—The Secretary shall allocate from the total amount made available under this title an emergency payment to each air carrier as follows:

(1) With respect to 80 percent of the total made available under this title, an air carrier payment shall be that percentage of the 80 percent that is equal to the percent of available seat miles the air carrier provided from January 1, 2001, through June 30, 2001, out of all the available seat miles provided in that time period by all of the air carriers qualifying for payment from the 80-percent portion.

(2) With respect to 20 percent of the total made available under this title, the air carrier payment shall be that percentage of the 20 percent that is equal to the percent of revenue ton miles the air carrier provided from January 1, 2001, through June 30, 2001, out of all the revenue ton miles provided in that time period by all of the air carriers qualifying for payment from the 20-percent portion.

(c) PAYMENTS.—The Secretary is authorized to make such terms and conditions the Secretary determines appropriate on the timing and manner of payment. A decision of the Secretary about making an emergency payment under this title or about a term or condition for making an emergency payment shall be final and unappealable.

(d) TAX TREATMENT.—Section 118 of title 26, United States Code, is amended by inserting at the end the following new subsection:

"(c) For purposes of subsection (a) and section 362(c)(2), amounts received pursuant to section 201(b) of the United States Air Transportation Stabilization Act of 2001 shall be treated as a contribution to the capital of the taxpayer by a person who is not a shareholder of the taxpayer."

(e) APPROPRIATIONS.—There is hereby [authorized to be] appropriated, out of money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $5,000,000,000 to remain available until expended to carry out the provisions of subsections (a) through (c) of this title.

[(e) ESSENTIAL AIR SERVICE.—Section 41742(a)(2) is amended by deleting "$15,000,000" and inserting "$75,000,000."]

TITLE III—INSURANCE FOR DOMESTIC AIR TRANSPORTATION

SEC. 301. DOMESTIC INSURANCE AND REIMBURSEMENT OF INSURANCE COST INCREASES.

(a) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—Section 44302 is amended—

(1) in the caption of section 44302(a), by inserting the phrase "provision of" before the phrase "insurance and reinsurance";

(2) in subsection (a)(1) by deleting all that appears after "foreign flag aircraft" and inserting a period;

(3) by redesignating subsections (b), (c), and (d) as subsections (c), (d), and (e), respectively, and by inserting after subsection (a) the following new subsection (b):

"(b) Reimbursement of insurance cost increases.—The Secretary may reimburse an air carrier for the increase in the cost of insurance, with respect to a premium for coverage ending before October 1, 2002, against loss or damage arising out of any risk from the operation of an American aircraft over the insurance premium that was in effect for a comparable operation during the period beginning September 4, 2001 and ending September 10, 2001, as the Secretary may determine. Such reimbursement is subject to subsections (a)(2), (c), and (d) of this section, and to section 44303 of this title. Such reimbursement shall be paid from the revolving fund established by section 44307 of this title. The Secretary may impose such further conditions on insurance for which the increase in premium is subject to reimbursement under this section as the Secretary may deem appropriate in the interest of air commerce. This authority shall expire ninety days after enactment of this title.";

(4) by amending subsection (c), as redesignated by this section, to read as follows:

"(c) Presidential approval. The Secretary may provide insurance or reinsurance under subsection (a) of this section or reimburse an air carrier under subsection (b) of this section only with the approval of the President. The President may approve the insurance or reinsurance or the reimbursement only after deciding that the continued operation of the American aircraft or foreign-flag aircraft to be insured or reinsured is necessary in the interest of air commerce or the national security, or to carry out the foreign policy of the United States Government."; and

(5) in section 44302(d), as redesignated by this section, by inserting the phrase "or reimbursing an air carrier" after the phrase "insurance or reinsurance".

(b) COVERAGE.—Section 44303 is amended by—

(1) inserting the phrase ", or reimburse insurance costs, as" after the phrase "insurance and reinsurance" in the first sentence; and

(2) in paragraph (1), inserting the phrase "in the interest of air commerce or the national security, or" before the phrase "to carry out the foreign policy".

(c) REINSURANCE.—Section 44304 is amended by—

(1) deleting subsection (b); and

(2) redesignating section 44304(a) as section 44304.

(d) PREMIUMS AND LIMITATIONS ON COVERAGE AND CLAIMS.—Section 44306 is amended—

(1) by redesignating sections 44306(b) and (c) as sections 44306(c) and (d);

(2) in section 44306(c), as redesignated, by inserting the phrase "in the interest of air commerce or the national security, or" before the phrase "to carry out the foreign policy"; and

(3) by inserting a new section 44306(b) to read

as follows:

"(b) Premium Rates for Reinsurance.—In setting premium rates for reinsurance, the Secretary may make allowances to the insurance carrier for expenses incurred in providing services and facilities that the Secretary considers good business practices, except for payments by the carrier for the stimulation or solicitation of insurance business.".

(e) LIMITATION OF LIABILITY.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, for a period of 180 days from the date of enactment of this Act, no air carrier, or its officers, directors, employees or agents, shall be liable for damages of any kind or amount in connection with any claim of injury to property other than the aircraft involved or death or injury of persons other than aircraft passengers or crew that arises from an act of war or terrorism. Nothing in the foregoing sentence limits in any way the liability of air carriers for loss of or injury to the aircraft involved or injury or death of aircraft passengers or crew.

TITLE IV—LIABILITY OF AIR CARRIERS FOR INJURIES CAUSED BY ACTS OF TERRORISM
COMMITTED ON SEPTEMBER 11, 2001

SEC. 401. SUBJECT MATTER JURISDICTION.

The United States District Court for the Southern District of New York shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction to the full extent permissible under the Constitution of all civil actions against an air carrier for any claim, including injury, loss of property, personal injury, or death resulting from or related to the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks. The United States shall be a necessary party-defendant in any such action.

SEC. 402. JURISDICTION OF CLAIMS AGAINST PARTIES OTHER THAN AIR CARRIERS.

Notwithstanding any other statute, the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York also shall have original jurisdiction to the full extent permissible under the Constitution of a civil action against a defendant other than an air carrier for any claim, including for injury, loss of property, personal injury, or death, resulting from or related to the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks. For purposes of this title, a corporation named as a defendant in any such action may elect to be deemed a citizen of the State in which it is incorporated, the State in which it has its principal place of business, or a State in which it engages in business. The United States District Court for the Southern District of New York shall have supplemental jurisdiction over claims by parties joined under Rules 14, 19, 20, 23, or 24 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and over parties seeking to intervene under Rule 24.

SEC. 403. REMOVAL.

Any civil action against an air carrier for injury, loss of property, personal injury, or death resulting from the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks that is filed in state court shall be removable to the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York.

SEC. 404. CONSOLIDATION.

Any civil action against an air carrier filed in any federal court other than the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York for injury, loss of property, personal injury, or death resulting from the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks shall be dismissed.

The United States District Court for the Southern District of New York shall consolidate all civil actions against air carriers subject to this title.

SEC. 405. RESPONSIBILITY OF UNITED STATES.

(a) GENERAL.—Consistent with and limited to the extent specified in subsection (b) below, the United States shall be responsible for payment of money damages awarded against an air carrier found liable in a civil action subject to this title if the combined sum of money damages awarded against the air carrier exceeds or has already exceeded the air carrier's applicable insurance coverage.

(b) AMOUNT OF DAMAGES.—In determining the amount of money damages for which the United States shall be responsible, the court shall calculate the plaintiff's damages, offset by:

(1) the amount, if any, covered by any policy of insurance maintained by or for the benefit of the air carrier or any amount to which the air carrier is entitled;

(2) any amount received by the plaintiff from the United States or any federal agency pursuant to any emergency or disaster relief program as a result of the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks; and

(3) any amount received by or owed to the plaintiffs under any policy of insurance maintained by or for the benefit of the plaintiffs or any amount to which the plaintiffs are entitled.

SEC. 406. LIMITATION ON PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

Punitive damages, exemplary damages, and other damages not intended to compensate the plaintiff for actual losses shall not be available in any civil action

Yesterday, we were asked by the House Judiciary Committee counsel (Steve Pinkos and Paul Taylor) and Rep. DeLay's office (Drew Maloney) to provide some thoughts on liability legislative dealing with the tragedies of last week. We have also been keeping Sen. Hatch's Judiciary staff in the loop. Based on instructions from the House staff, Leah Lorber and I developed the attached draft. ATRA's Tiger Joyce provided useful input. We thought you might want to see the draft. If you have any questions, please call.--Mark.

Per your request, we have attached draft legislation regarding compensation for claims arising out of the September 11, 2001 terrorist activity. This draft legislation address the points we discussed today.

As we discussed, it provides an exclusive federal law cause of action (with substantive rules for decision based on state law). While drafted to address the 9/11 tragedy, the legislation is also drafted to address lawsuits arising out of any future aircraft terrorist activity.

The legislation places original jurisdiction over such claims in the federal district courts. Because the legislation addresses claims arising out of future terrorist acts as well, we thought it would be best either to give all federal courts jurisdiction and let the MDL panel determine which court will hear the cases, or give the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia jurisdiction. We have drafted but have not attached language on the latter point; please let us know if you want it.

As we discussed, the draft legislation caps damages and injunctive relief costs to be awarded against defendants at their aggregate insurance policy limits, minus other recovery. As you requested, we also included a provision that Congress would investigate and pay damages in excess of the aggregate where such an action is merited. As you know, the Price Anderson Act amendments set up a procedure for similar payments in the event of lawsuits arising out of a nuclear disaster.

Please give me (202) 639-5638 or Mark (202) 639-5621 a call if you have any questions or comments. Thanks - Leah

REV_00132036

THE VICTIMS OF AIRCRAFT TERRORISM COMPENSATION ACT

Sec. 1. EXCLUSIVE REMEDY.

The exclusive remedy for injury or loss arising out of an aircraft terrorist incident shall be a claim for relief brought pursuant to the provisions of this Act. The jurisdiction conferred by this Act includes jurisdiction of any set-off, counterclaim, or other claim or demand whatever against any claimant commencing an action under this section. The laws of the States are expressly preempted to the extent they conflict with this Act.

Sec. 2. ORIGINAL JURISDICTION.

The United States district courts shall have exclusive original jurisdiction over any claim for relief brought pursuant to this Act, without regard to the citizenship of any party or the amount in controversy. Upon motion of any party, any such action pending in any State court (including any such action pending on ENACTMENT DATE) shall be removed to the United States district court.

Sec. 3. SUBSTANTIVE LAW.

The substantive rules for decision in any action for any claim for relief brought pursuant to this Act shall be derived from the law of the State in which the injury or loss occurred.

Sec. 4. RECOVERY.

(a) The total amount of all damages awarded and costs of injunctive relief imposed upon a defendant through judgment or settlement for all claims for relief brought against it under this Act, regardless of whether such claims are joined in one lawsuit, shall not exceed the aggregate limits of the defendant's applicable primary and excess insurance policies (as determined by the court) in effect on the date of the incident, minus any other recovery previously awarded.

(b) In the event of an aircraft terrorist incident involving damages in excess of the amount of aggregate insurance coverage described under subsection (a), the Congress will thoroughly review the particular incident and take whatever action is determined to be necessary (including approval of appropriate compensation plans and appropriation of funds) to provide full and prompt compensation to claimants for all claims for relief arising out of the subject incident.

Sec. 5. LIABILITY FOR NONECONOMIC LOSS.

Each defendant in a tort claim brought pursuant to this Act shall be liable only for the amount of noneconomic loss allocated to that defendant in direct proportion to the percentage of responsibility of that defendant for the harm to the claimant with respect to which that defendant is liable. The court shall render a separate judgment against each defendant in an amount determined pursuant to the preceding sentence. [For purposes of determining the amount of noneconomic loss allocated to a defendant, the trier of fact shall determine the percentage of responsibility of each person for the claimant's harm, whether or not such person is a party to the action.]

Sec. 6. LIABILITY FOR PREJUDGMENT INTEREST.

Any defendant in an action brought pursuant to this Act shall not be liable for interest prior to judgment.

Sec. 7. PUNITIVE DAMAGES.

Any defendant in an action brought pursuant to this Act shall not be liable for punitive damages, exemplary damages, or any other damages awarded against any person or entity to punish or deter that person or entity, or others, from engaging in similar behavior in the future.

Sec. 8. ATTORNEY'S FEES.

In any action commenced pursuant to this Act, the amount of attorney's fees shall be reasonable and shall be subject to the discretion of the court. Notwithstanding the foregoing, no attorney shall charge, demand, receive, or collect for services rendered, contingency fees in excess of 20 per centum of any judgment rendered in or 15 per centum of any settlement of a claim brought under this Act. Any attorney who charges, demands, receives, or collects for services rendered in connection with such claim any amount in excess of that allowed under this section, if recovery shall be had, shall be fined no more than $2,000 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

Sec. 9. DEFINITIONS

For purposes of this title:

(1) AIRCRAFT TERRORIST INCIDENT.--The term "aircraft terrorist incident" means any incident involving the hijacking of any domestic aircraft or the hijacking of any aircraft in United States airspace, including but not limited to the hijacking and subsequent crashes involving American Airlines flights 11 or 77 or United Airlines flights 93 or 175 on September, 11, 2001.

(2) CLAIM FOR RELIEF.—The term "claim for relief" means claims for wrongful death, bodily harm, emotional distress accompanied by actual physical injury, property damage, noneconomic loss, direct economic loss, and consequential economic loss, the recovery of which is governed by the Uniform Commercial Code or analogous state commercial or contract law.

(3) CLAIMANT.—The term "claimant" means any person who brings an action covered by this Act and any person on whose behalf such an action is brought. If such an action is brought through or on behalf of an estate, the term includes the claimant's decedent. If such an action is brought through or on behalf of a minor or incompetent, the term includes the claimant's legal guardian.

(4) ECONOMIC LOSS.--The term "economic loss" means any pecuniary loss resulting from harm (including the loss of earnings or other benefits related to employment, medical expense loss, replacement services loss, loss due to death, burial costs, and loss of business or employment opportunities) to the extent recovery for such loss is allowed under applicable State law.

(5) NONECONOMIC LOSS.—The term "noneconomic loss" means subjective, nonmonetary loss resulting from harm, including pain, suffering, inconvenience, mental suffering, emotional distress, loss of society and companionship, loss of consortium, injury to reputation, and humiliation.

(6) STATE.—The term "State" means any State of the United States, the District of Columbia, Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Northern Mariana Islands, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, and any other territory or possession of the United States or any political subdivision of any of the foregoing.

Sec. 10. APPLICATION.

This Act applies to all claims for injury or loss arising out of an aircraft terrorist incident, regardless of whether the aircraft terrorist incident occurred before, on, or after the date of enactment of this Act.

Sec. 11. FEDERAL TORT CLAIMS ACT.

Nothing in this Act shall affect the application of the Federal Tort Claims Act.

The President's Address to Congress

- America is a country awakened to danger and called to defend freedom. Our grief has turned to anger, and anger to resolution. Whether we bring our enemies to justice, or bring justice to our enemies, justice will be done.
- The President thanks Congress for its patriotic spirit of bipartisanship and efforts to deliver $40 billion in relief to help rebuild America's communities and meet the needs of our military. The President also is grateful to many world leaders and nations who have joined the war against terrorism.
- On September 11 enemies of freedom committed an act of war against our country. Americans have known wars – but for the past 136 years, they have been wars on foreign soil, except for one Sunday in 1941.

Who attacked our country?

- The evidence we have gathered all points to a collection of loosely affiliated terrorist organizations known as al-Qaida. They are the same murderers indicted for bombing American embassies in Tanzania and Kenya, and responsible for the bombing of the U.S.S. Cole. Al-Qaida is to terror what the mafia is to crime. The leadership of al-Qaida has great influence in Afghanistan, and supports the Taliban regime in controlling most of that country.
- The United States respects the people of Afghanistan but we condemn the Taliban regime. By aiding and abetting murder, the Taliban regime is committing murder. The United States of America makes the following demands on the Taliban:
 - ✓ Deliver to United States authorities all the leaders of al-Qaida who hide in your land.
 - ✓ Release all foreign nationals – including American citizens – you have unjustly imprisoned, and protect foreign journalists, diplomats, and aid workers in your country.
 - ✓ Close immediately and permanently every terrorist training camp in Afghanistan and hand over every terrorist, and every person in their support structure, to appropriate authorities.
 - ✓ Give the United States full access to terrorist training camps, so we can make sure they are no longer operating.
- These demands are not open to negotiation or discussion. The Taliban must act and act immediately. They will hand over the terrorists, or they will share in their fate.
- Our war on terror begins with al-Qaida, but it does not end there. It will not end until every terrorist group of global reach has been found, stopped, and defeated.
- The President wants Muslims throughout the world to know that America respects their faith. It is practiced freely by many millions of Americans, and by millions more in countries that America counts as friends. Its teachings are good and peaceful, and those who commit evil in the name of Allah blaspheme the name of Allah.
- These terrorists kill not merely to end lives, but to disrupt and end a way of life. By sacrificing human life to serve their radical visions – by abandoning every value except the will to power – they follow in the path of fascism, and Nazism, and totalitarianism. And they will follow that path all the way, to where it ends: in history's unmarked grave of discarded lies.

How Will America Win this war?

- We will direct every resource at our command – every means of diplomacy, every tool of intelligence, every instrument of law enforcement, every financial influence, and every necessary weapon of war – to the disruption and defeat of the global terror network.
- This war will not be like the war against Iraq a decade ago, with its decisive liberation of territory and its swift conclusion. It will not look like the air war above Kosovo two years ago, where no ground troops were used and not a single American was lost in combat. Americans should not expect one battle, but a lengthy campaign, unlike any other we have seen.
- We will pursue nations that provide aid or safe haven to terrorism. Every nation, in every region, now has a decision to make. From this day forward, any nation that continues to harbor or support terrorism will be regarded by the United States as a hostile regime.
- The President will create a Cabinet-level Office of Homeland Security. This office will oversee a national strategy to safeguard our country against terrorism, and respond to any attacks that may come.

What the President is asking from Americans:

- Uphold the values of America, and remember why so many have come here. We are in a fight for our principles, and our first responsibility is to live by them. No one should be singled out for unfair treatment or unkind words because of their ethnic background or religious faith.
- Continue to support the victims of this tragedy with your contributions. Those who want to give can go to a central source of information, libertyunites.org, to find the names of groups providing direct help in New York, Pennsylvania, and Virginia.
- Continue to be patient and have confidence in the American economy.

The President will work with Congress to:

- Improve air safety, to dramatically expand the number of air marshals on domestic flights, and take new measures to prevent hijacking. We will come together to promote stability and keep our airlines flying with direct assistance during this emergency.
- Give law enforcement the additional tools it needs to track down terror here at home. We will come together to strengthen our intelligence capabilities to know the plans of terrorists before they act, and find them before they strike.
- Show the world that we will rebuild New York City.

The President's Address to Congress

- America is a country awakened to danger and called to defend freedom. Our grief has turned to anger, and anger to resolution. Whether we bring our enemies to justice, or bring justice to our enemies, justice will be done.
- The President thanks Congress for its patriotic spirit of bipartisanship and efforts to deliver $40 billion in relief to help rebuild America's communities and meet the needs of our military. The President also is grateful to many world leaders and nations who have joined the war against terrorism.
- On September 11 enemies of freedom committed an act of war against our country. Americans have known wars – but for the past 136 years, they have been wars on foreign soil, except for one Sunday in 1941.

Who attacked our country?

- The evidence we have gathered all points to a collection of loosely affiliated terrorist organizations known as al-Qaida. They are the same murderers indicted for bombing American embassies in Tanzania and Kenya, and responsible for the bombing of the U.S.S. Cole. Al-Qaida is to terror what the mafia is to crime. The leadership of al-Qaida has great influence in Afghanistan, and supports the Taliban regime in controlling most of that country.
- The United States respects the people of Afghanistan but we condemn the Taliban regime. By aiding and abetting murder, the Taliban regime is committing murder. The United States of America makes the following demands on the Taliban:
 - ✓ Deliver to United States authorities all the leaders of al-Qaida who hide in your land.
 - ✓ Release all foreign nationals – including American citizens – you have unjustly imprisoned, and protect foreign journalists, diplomats, and aid workers in your country.
 - ✓ Close immediately and permanently every terrorist training camp in Afghanistan and hand over every terrorist, and every person in their support structure, to appropriate authorities.
 - ✓ Give the United States full access to terrorist training camps, so we can make sure they are no longer operating.
- These demands are not open to negotiation or discussion. The Taliban must act and act immediately. They will hand over the terrorists, or they will share in their fate.
- Our war on terror begins with al-Qaida, but it does not end there. It will not end until every terrorist group of global reach has been found, stopped, and defeated.
- The President wants Muslims throughout the world to know that America respects their faith. It is practiced freely by many millions of Americans, and by millions more in countries that America counts as friends. Its teachings are good and peaceful, and those who commit evil in the name of Allah blaspheme the name of Allah.
- These terrorists kill not merely to end lives, but to disrupt and end a way of life. By sacrificing human life to serve their radical visions – by abandoning every value except the will to power – they follow in the path of fascism, and Nazism, and totalitarianism. And they will follow that path all the way, to where it ends: in history's unmarked grave of discarded lies.

How Will America Win this war?

- We will direct every resource at our command – every means of diplomacy, every tool of intelligence, every instrument of law enforcement, every financial influence, and every necessary weapon of war – to the disruption and defeat of the global terror network.
- This war will not be like the war against Iraq a decade ago, with its decisive liberation of territory and its swift conclusion. It will not look like the air war above Kosovo two years ago, where no ground troops were used and not a single American was lost in combat. Americans should not expect one battle, but a lengthy campaign, unlike any other we have seen.
- We will pursue nations that provide aid or safe haven to terrorism. Every nation, in every region, now has a decision to make. From this day forward, any nation that continues to harbor or support terrorism will be regarded by the United States as a hostile regime.
- The President will create a Cabinet-level Office of Homeland Security. This office will oversee a national strategy to safeguard our country against terrorism, and respond to any attacks that may come.

What the President is asking from Americans:

- Uphold the values of America, and remember why so many have come here. We are in a fight for our principles, and our first responsibility is to live by them. No one should be singled out for unfair treatment or unkind words because of their ethnic background or religious faith.
- Continue to support the victims of this tragedy with your contributions. Those who want to give can go to a central source of information, libertyunites.org, to find the names of groups providing direct help in New York, Pennsylvania, and Virginia.
- Continue to be patient and have confidence in the American economy.

The President will work with Congress to:

- Improve air safety, to dramatically expand the number of air marshals on domestic flights, and take new measures to prevent hijacking. We will come together to promote stability and keep our airlines flying with direct assistance during this emergency.
- Give law enforcement the additional tools it needs to track down terror here at home. We will come together to strengthen our intelligence capabilities to know the plans of terrorists before they act, and find them before they strike.
- Show the world that we will rebuild New York City.

The President's Address to Congress

- America is a country awakened to danger and called to defend freedom. Our grief has turned to anger, and anger to resolution. Whether we bring our enemies to justice, or bring justice to our enemies, justice will be done.
- The President thanks Congress for its patriotic spirit of bipartisanship and efforts to deliver $40 billion in relief to help rebuild America's communities and meet the needs of our military. The President also is grateful to many world leaders and nations who have joined the war against terrorism.
- On September 11 enemies of freedom committed an act of war against our country. Americans have known wars – but for the past 136 years, they have been wars on foreign soil, except for one Sunday in 1941.

Who attacked our country?

- The evidence we have gathered all points to a collection of loosely affiliated terrorist organizations known as al-Qaida. They are the same murderers indicted for bombing American embassies in Tanzania and Kenya, and responsible for the bombing of the U.S.S. Cole. Al-Qaida is to terror what the mafia is to crime. The leadership of al-Qaida has great influence in Afghanistan, and supports the Taliban regime in controlling most of that country.
- The United States respects the people of Afghanistan but we condemn the Taliban regime. By aiding and abetting murder, the Taliban regime is committing murder. The United States of America makes the following demands on the Taliban:
 - ✓ Deliver to United States authorities all the leaders of al-Qaida who hide in your land.
 - ✓ Release all foreign nationals – including American citizens – you have unjustly imprisoned, and protect foreign journalists, diplomats, and aid workers in your country.
 - ✓ Close immediately and permanently every terrorist training camp in Afghanistan and hand over every terrorist, and every person in their support structure, to appropriate authorities.
 - ✓ Give the United States full access to terrorist training camps, so we can make sure they are no longer operating.
- These demands are not open to negotiation or discussion. The Taliban must act and act immediately. They will hand over the terrorists, or they will share in their fate.
- Our war on terror begins with al-Qaida, but it does not end there. It will not end until every terrorist group of global reach has been found, stopped, and defeated.
- The President wants Muslims throughout the world to know that America respects their faith. It is practiced freely by many millions of Americans, and by millions more in countries that America counts as friends. Its teachings are good and peaceful, and those who commit evil in the name of Allah blaspheme the name of Allah.
- These terrorists kill not merely to end lives, but to disrupt and end a way of life. By sacrificing human life to serve their radical visions – by abandoning every value except the will to power – they follow in the path of fascism, and Nazism, and totalitarianism. And they will follow that path all the way, to where it ends: in history's unmarked grave of discarded lies.

How Will America Win this war?

- We will direct every resource at our command – every means of diplomacy, every tool of intelligence, every instrument of law enforcement, every financial influence, and every necessary weapon of war – to the disruption and defeat of the global terror network.
- This war will not be like the war against Iraq a decade ago, with its decisive liberation of territory and its swift conclusion. It will not look like the air war above Kosovo two years ago, where no ground troops were used and not a single American was lost in combat. Americans should not expect one battle, but a lengthy campaign, unlike any other we have seen.
- We will pursue nations that provide aid or safe haven to terrorism. Every nation, in every region, now has a decision to make. From this day forward, any nation that continues to harbor or support terrorism will be regarded by the United States as a hostile regime.
- The President will create a Cabinet-level Office of Homeland Security. This office will oversee a national strategy to safeguard our country against terrorism, and respond to any attacks that may come.

What the President is asking from Americans:

- Uphold the values of America, and remember why so many have come here. We are in a fight for our principles, and our first responsibility is to live by them. No one should be singled out for unfair treatment or unkind words because of their ethnic background or religious faith.
- Continue to support the victims of this tragedy with your contributions. Those who want to give can go to a central source of information, libertyunites.org, to find the names of groups providing direct help in New York, Pennsylvania, and Virginia.
- Continue to be patient and have confidence in the American economy.

The President will work with Congress to:

- Improve air safety, to dramatically expand the number of air marshals on domestic flights, and take new measures to prevent hijacking. We will come together to promote stability and keep our airlines flying with direct assistance during this emergency.
- Give law enforcement the additional tools it needs to track down terror here at home. We will come together to strengthen our intelligence capabilities to know the plans of terrorists before they act, and find them before they strike.
- Show the world that we will rebuild New York City.

Chartered aircraft are considered Government aircraft for purposes of regulations on use of Government aircraft. There are a number of limitations on use of Government Aircraft. We might be able to be of assistance to agencies that are concerned about the limitations, but I would need to know what the problems are. Please let me know who is asking about it and why they are asking, or if you wish, I'd be happy to make any calls to follow up with the agencies.

is scheduled to testify before the House and Senate Judiciary Committees on Monday, September 24th, and Tuesday, September 25th, respectively. The hearings reportedly will be on legislative proposals designed to combat terrorism. We have not received the Attorney General's testimony for clearance for either the hearing on Monday afternoon or the hearing on Tuesday. Our contact in Justice's Office of Legislative Affairs tells us that he hasn't seen any testimony either and does not know if he will. He says that "if it shows up he will pass it along." He guesses that it will explain what is in the legislative package that has been given to the Hill. The House Judiciary Committee is tentatively scheduled to mark up legislative proposals on Tuesday.

is scheduled to testify before the House and Senate Judiciary Committees on Monday, September 24th, and Tuesday, September 25th, respectively. The hearings reportedly will be on legislative proposals designed to combat terrorism. We have not received the Attorney General's testimony for clearance for either the hearing on Monday afternoon or the hearing on Tuesday. Our contact in Justice's Office of Legislative Affairs tells us that he hasn't seen any testimony either and does not know if he will. He says that "if it shows up he will pass it along." He guesses that it will explain what is in the legislative package that has been given to the Hill. The House Judiciary Committee is tentatively scheduled to mark up legislative proposals on Tuesday.

Dear Senator Daschle:

Thank you very much for your support and efforts in ensuring swift Senate passage of the Air Transportation Safety and System Stabilization Act. The Act will greatly assist victims of the September 11 terrorist attacks and will provide needed stability and security for our Nation's air travelers and airlines.

I write because of the need for a minor technical correction to the Act. The title of Section 408 -- "Limitation on Air Carrier Liability" -- conforms to subsection (a) of Section 408, but not to subsections (b) and (c). We therefore suggest a technical correction either to amend the title of Section 408 so that it encompasses the subject matters of subsections (b) and (c) or to place subsections (b) and (c) into new sections with appropriate new titles.

Thank you very much for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely yours,

The Honorable Thomas Daschle
Majority Leader
Washington, DC 20510

I've asked Brett Kavanaugh to assist on the House side where he can be useful. I feared that I could not cover both sides adequately today, since the Leahy meeting might overlap with the House hearing. Brett's already very familiar with these provisions.

Also, Viet mentioned that the House negotiators called late last night to ask whether they could drop a couple provisions at Conyers' request. Viet said no. Do you know which provisions were at issue?

We still hope to stay at least somewhat close to the decision schedule I outlined to you before Sept 11, and I hope to be in touch this week with you about where we are. That said, it seems quite unlikely that we will be closed before October 5, and I would suggest to George that he think about postponing for a few weeks. Let me know if that creates any problems.

Subject: Update

I realize that you must be overwhelmed with far more urgent and important matters, and will be for some time to come, and hope you are able to cope with it all.

However, I did want to check on whether you are likely to get back to the PRA EO issue any time soon, particularly in light of Chairman Horn's hearing currently scheduled for Oct. 5. If you think the issue will now be delayed for some time, then should you, or we, recommend that Horn postpone the hearing? (Otherwise, we will begin to work on draft testimony for the Archivist.)

We will do our best to minimize our burden on your time for the near future, but we will still need to clear special access openings through you in response to SDNY, Chairman Burton, and some DOJ litigation. (Brad and I have exchanged calls on a separate case.)

Please let me know if we can be of assistance on any matters. Thanks and good luck.

Yes, if someone needs a document to be classified, they must go to someone with original classification authority. Original classification authority cannot be delegated except by certain people, I can give more details if necessary, and the delegation has to be written.

Brett - my meeting notes indicate you were going to put together the guidelines for this. Folks are asking for this guidance so I am checking in on the status.

FYI that I talked to Mark Frownfelter in EOP security this morning and he said he would get for me the EO on this but I don't know if this is going to provide the guidance that staff members need to know how to store classified info including notes taken at meetings, etc.

Also - only certain people (Harriet, Tim, Judge, Blakeman) have original classification authority. If someone needs something classified in connection with the work they are doing should they go to one of these people? Courtney was asking about this...

Thanks!

I think on the loan gurantee side, the only real question in terms of drafters' intent is whether the loans should be short term relief accross the board, or short term relief directed to those who can survive and sustain the industry longer term. And Mitch feels strongly it should lean in the latter direction.

We are reaching out to all the key members on this question as well.

The meeting today will focus more on the various types of terms and conditions for the loans and the process for applications.

I'll be there. Tim has tasked me with handling the regulatory side of this, and that's what I will do. Would it also be a good idea to have the lawyers who worked on the substance of the bill and who understand the drafters' intent (Kavanaugh/Elwood) there?

Thanks, Tim:

Helgi, as you probably know, OMB has 14 days from the signing of the airline bill to issue regulations for the airline stabilization board, which is comprised of the Fed, DOT and Treasury (and GAO as a non-voting member).

We're having a meeting at 3:00 PM today with all relevant parties in room 9104 of the NEOB and you are invited to attend and participate. If you are unavailable, I'll keep you informed and let you know of future meetings and share drafts of the regs with you as they are developed. Because we're on such a tight schedule, we will probably be working on this and having meetings almost every day this week.

As you may know, Stuart Holliday is now handling the Office of Homeland Security. We will be happy to take any calls, questions and or faxes that you may receive on this. If possible, please do not forward calls directly to Stuart - rather forward the candidates calls to 456-5276 and have them speak to either Jeff or myself.

We will keep you updated on the staff structure of Homeland Security, until then, thanks for your patience on this matter.

Jennifer

FYI - our temporary fax number is 456-1121. I'll let you know when we have our normal fax back.

Lori, when it comes time, I would love to have all these extra wires in my office removed, and I know others would as well.

Subject: Admin Mtg.

In today's admin meeting we discussed the recent move. Our team leader, Brent will be contacted to do a walk through of all of the offices and figure out what needs still have not been met. We are to remember to be patient about trash, burn bag and newspaper services. In the next few weeks we will be receiving a draft of the updated telephone directories.

Everyone should have received the Admin Alert that went out today regarding the use of Signal and the White House Operator. All boards have been very busy lately and we are encouraged to use our division staff directories as well as the telephone directory to help out. Unless you are a commissioned officer or calling on behalf of one, you should use the White House Operator (456-1414) for assistance instead of Signal. Some of the individuals that Signal was designed to assist have not been able to get through. Thanks in advance for your cooperation.

Tim brought it up with me this morning, on his own motion, because it presumably raises regulatory issues in the implemenation process, and I am regulatory gal. But I think you all should work on it too, because you have the substantive expertise, and I have no desire to tread on that ground of yours. That makes the most sense, don't you think?

I'll be there. Tim has tasked me with handling the regulatory side of this, and that's what I will do. Would it also be a good idea to have the lawyers who worked on the substance of the bill and who understand the drafters' intent (Kavanaugh/Elwood) there?

Thanks, Tim:

Helgi, as you probably know, OMB has 14 days from the signing of the airline bill to issue regulations for the airline stabilization board, which is comprised of the Fed, DOT and Treasury (and GAO as a non-voting member).

We're having a meeting at 3:00 PM today with all relevant parties in room 9104 of the NEOB and you are invited to attend and participate. If you are unavailable, I'll keep you informed and let you know of future meetings and share drafts of the regs with you as they are developed. Because we're on such a tight schedule, we will probably be working on this and having meetings almost every day this week.

I tried general regulations. A bill of attainder appears necessary after today's outcry and allegations of sandbagging. Please vote if you so desire on the following bill: "Absent emergency or peculiar circumstances, Courtney S. Elwood is hereby prohibited from entering the second floor West Wing Counsel's Office before 8:13:50 each morning."

Joseph R. Biden, Jr.

UNITED STATES SENATOR - DELAWARE

<http://www.senate.gov/~biden>

FOR RELEASE: September 25, 2001

CONTACT: Norm Kurz, 202-224-8895

Biden Urges New Tools For Law Enforcement, Stresses Practical Measure to Combat Bioterrorism Threat

Emphasizing the importance of the threat of bioterrorism and our need to take practical measures to combat such concerns, U.S. Senator Joseph R. Biden, Jr. today indicated his support for strengthening counter-terrorism measures to enhance the safety and national security interests of the nation.

"The September 11 attacks have focused our collective minds and energies on the need to take steps to prevent such atrocities from ever occurring again," Biden said. "I'm pleased the President has submitted proposed legislation to enact many of the needed measures I first offered in the 1995 terrorism bill, though I think we ought to consider some further steps as well. We've also got to get ahead of the curve on taking practical steps to reduce the risk of biological weapons."

Quoting from a letter he received in his capacity as Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Biden shared the views of Nobel Laureate and noted expert on infectious diseases Dr. Joshua Lederberg, who wrote that biological warfare constitutes a serious and complex threat to national security because it is available even to "rank amateurs."

Dr. Lederberg said at least a dozen countries are thought to be developing biological weapons. "In the current world where major states sustain some equilibrium through mutual deterrence," he wrote, biological warfare "offers opportunity for grave harm on the part of lesser actors," making it "probably the most perplexing and gravest security challenge we face." Lederberg's letter was entered into the record during a Foreign Relations Committee hearing Biden chaired September 5 on the Homeland Threat and Biological Weapons.

Following today's Judiciary Committee hearing with Attorney General John Ashcroft, Biden spoke of his backing for the Administration's efforts to enact a terrorism bill while pointing out measures he has long supported and that ought to be included to strengthen the legislation.

In 1995, Biden authored the Omnibus Counter-Terrorism Bill that would have enabled law enforcement to pursue leads pursuant to credible terrorist threats.

"My standard has long been 'what's good for the mafia is good for the terrorists'," Biden said. "There is no sensible reason why we should treat terrorists more leniently. It's been obvious to me for many years that we need to give law enforcement authorities investigating and prosecuting international terrorists the same tools they have to fight drug kingpins and organized crime."

The President's bill, like the Biden proposal several years ago, would extend current wiretap authority to include terrorist crimes, thereby giving law enforcement the same tools to pursue terrorists they have long had

in narcotics and racketeering cases. However, two other Biden proposals have not been included in the Administration's bill.

"I think most Americans would agree an identical standard should apply to terrorists and the mob. We should provide emergency 48 hour wiretap authority without prior judicial authorization," Biden said. "This is exactly what law enforcement can do today in cases involving organized crime, so long as the court makes an after-the-fact determination that there was probable cause to get the emergency wiretap in the first place.

"I also think the 'good faith' standard the Supreme Court has long recognized in the criminal law field should be applied to wiretaps," Biden added. Terrorists and other criminals should not go free when the police make an honest mistake, if they were otherwise acting reasonably and in 'good faith.' The Court already has held that this sensible policy is constitutional.

"Finally, we need to use roving wiretaps to follow a suspect anywhere and everywhere rather than just on a telephone," Biden argued. I strongly supported this tool in 1995 and am pleased Congress has since enacted into law a roving wiretap provision. However, while law enforcement gained the right to use this technique in 1998, cops continue to be hobbled by a higher burden than that required to obtain a 'bug.' This disparity should be corrected. "

Biden also indicated his concern regarding two potential provisions - concerning the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA) and measures relating to immigration - included in the Administration's terrorism bill.

"I agree the fight against international terrorism requires us to rethink whether the high wall we've erected separating the intelligence and law enforcement communities should be lowered," Biden said. "But historically we've been well-served by the bright line that divides our cops and spies. I have real concerns about ensuring that whatever we do in this area strikes the right balance between fighting terrorism and maintaining our civil liberties. There are genuine constitutional questions we must review.

"Similarly, tightening restrictions on non-citizens is one thing, but efforts to expand detentions should not cross the line and violate the rights of due process," Biden argued. "Legitimate and justified detentions, on a limited basis, will gain the approval of Americans. But law enforcement officials have the responsibility to act quickly to charge suspects with a crime, deport them, or release them.

"And all us must be vigilant in guarding the rights of fellow Americans who are in danger of discrimination on the basis of their name or skin color. Especially in a time of crisis, we cannot jettison our fundamental values and beliefs," Biden concluded.

This is a new regime. We were told 8:15 means 8:15. I showed up at 8:14. Everything else is in the past, when everyone knew the rule was 8:30 means 8:20 although it could be 8:15. I play by the rules.

Joseph R. Biden, Jr.

UNITED STATES SENATOR - DELAWARE

<http://www.senate.gov/~biden>

FOR RELEASE: September 25, 2001

CONTACT: Norm Kurz, 202-224-8895

Biden Urges New Tools For Law Enforcement, Stresses Practical Measure to Combat Bioterrorism Threat

Emphasizing the importance of the threat of bioterrorism and our need to take practical measures to combat such concerns, U.S. Senator Joseph R. Biden, Jr. today indicated his support for strengthening counter-terrorism measures to enhance the safety and national security interests of the nation.

"The September 11 attacks have focused our collective minds and energies on the need to take steps to prevent such atrocities from ever occurring again," Biden said. "I'm pleased the President has submitted proposed legislation to enact many of the needed measures I first offered in the 1995 terrorism bill, though I think we ought to consider some further steps as well. We've also got to get ahead of the curve on taking practical steps to reduce the risk of biological weapons."

Quoting from a letter he received in his capacity as Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Biden shared the views of Nobel Laureate and noted expert on infectious diseases Dr. Joshua Lederberg, who wrote that biological warfare constitutes a serious and complex threat to national security because it is available even to "rank amateurs."

Dr. Lederberg said at least a dozen countries are thought to be developing biological weapons. "In the current world where major states sustain some equilibrium through mutual deterrence," he wrote, biological warfare "offers opportunity for grave harm on the part of lesser actors," making it "probably the most perplexing and gravest security challenge we face." Lederberg's letter was entered into the record during a Foreign Relations Committee hearing Biden chaired September 5 on the Homeland Threat and Biological Weapons.

Following today's Judiciary Committee hearing with Attorney General John Ashcroft, Biden spoke of his backing for the Administration's efforts to enact a terrorism bill while pointing out measures he has long supported and that ought to be included to strengthen the legislation.

In 1995, Biden authored the Omnibus Counter-Terrorism Bill that would have enabled law enforcement to pursue leads pursuant to credible terrorist threats.

"My standard has long been 'what's good for the mafia is good for the terrorists'," Biden said. "There is no sensible reason why we should treat terrorists more leniently. It's been obvious to me for many years that we need to give law enforcement authorities investigating and prosecuting international terrorists the same tools they have to fight drug kingpins and organized crime."

The President's bill, like the Biden proposal several years ago, would extend current wiretap authority to include terrorist crimes, thereby giving law enforcement the same tools to pursue terrorists they have long had

in narcotics and racketeering cases. However, two other Biden proposals have not been included in the Administration's bill.

"I think most Americans would agree an identical standard should apply to terrorists and the mob. We should provide emergency 48 hour wiretap authority without prior judicial authorization," Biden said. "This is exactly what law enforcement can do today in cases involving organized crime, so long as the court makes an after-the-fact determination that there was probable cause to get the emergency wiretap in the first place.

"I also think the 'good faith' standard the Supreme Court has long recognized in the criminal law field should be applied to wiretaps," Biden added. Terrorists and other criminals should not go free when the police make an honest mistake, if they were otherwise acting reasonably and in 'good faith.' The Court already has held that this sensible policy is constitutional.

"Finally, we need to use roving wiretaps to follow a suspect anywhere and everywhere rather than just on a telephone," Biden argued. I strongly supported this tool in 1995 and am pleased Congress has since enacted into law a roving wiretap provision. However, while law enforcement gained the right to use this technique in 1998, cops continue to be hobbled by a higher burden than that required to obtain a 'bug.' This disparity should be corrected. "

Biden also indicated his concern regarding two potential provisions - concerning the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA) and measures relating to immigration - included in the Administration's terrorism bill.

"I agree the fight against international terrorism requires us to rethink whether the high wall we've erected separating the intelligence and law enforcement communities should be lowered," Biden said. "But historically we've been well-served by the bright line that divides our cops and spies. I have real concerns about ensuring that whatever we do in this area strikes the right balance between fighting terrorism and maintaining our civil liberties. There are genuine constitutional questions we must review.

"Similarly, tightening restrictions on non-citizens is one thing, but efforts to expand detentions should not cross the line and violate the rights of due process," Biden argued. "Legitimate and justified detentions, on a limited basis, will gain the approval of Americans. But law enforcement officials have the responsibility to act quickly to charge suspects with a crime, deport them, or release them.

"And all us must be vigilant in guarding the rights of fellow Americans who are in danger of discrimination on the basis of their name or skin color. Especially in a time of crisis, we cannot jettison our fundamental values and beliefs," Biden concluded.

Subject: Urgent need for detailees to DOJ

The Department of Justice urgently needs two detailees from another department or agency to help with a fast-track process of preparing a public record to support regulations DOJ must promulgate within 90 days to administer financial assistance under the airline bailout bill. Because DOJ does not promulgate many regulations within the Civil Division, they do not have the necessary personnel to do this right. This would be a strictly temporary assignment, probably running 2-3 months.

According to Phil Perry, the detailees would be tasked with developing the action plan for running the regulatory process: soliciting public input, building and organizing an evidentiary record, drafting the regs. They would have support from other DOJ personnel, but they would be the administrative process experts. Phil thinks the Department of Labor is likely to have people who have specialized expertise in record relating to making financial disbursements of this kind, but any department or agency with the requisite personnel who are not too busy and willing to take this on would work. The key is that they should have substantial experience running the regulatory process.

Would you please put out an APB to the other departments or agencies and see who has a person or two who might be available and willing to help DOJ? Because of the compressed timetable, they need people very very soon. If you don't get volunteers, we may need to ask you to do a little arm-twisting.

Thanks very much. Please let me know if you have any questions.

I sent you the OMB summary of the Act, which I think does a pretty fair job of explanation. Please let me know any questions you have. Sorry to be somewhat difficult to track down; have been working anti-terrorism quite a bit.

The Constitution Subcommittee, chaired by Senator Feingold, announced last night that it will hold a hearing next Wednesday, October 3, at 10:00 am entitled "Protecting Constitutional Freedoms in the Face of Terrorism." They have given us as Ranking Member very few details yet, but we can expect the focus to be on the constitutional and privacy issues surrounding the Administration's legislation to fight terrorism.

For witnesses, I am contacting possible professors, such as John Manning. Also, we need to decide if we want to have someone other than a legal expert to appear, such as a victim or broader terrorism expert. If you have any suggestions for witnesses we should call to defend the Administration or other thoughts about the hearing, please contact me. Thanks.

Looks good to me. I would delete "policy" in "FOIA policy issues" in the second line of the 5th paragraph. Otherwise, WH Counsel has signed off. Still waiting for WH DPC. Will check with them again today.

Attached is a revised version of DOJ's final draft. I think that all of the offending language has been removed, and it also includes some of the new language re discretionary disclosures. However, it still has "fluff" or "happy talk," which softens the impact.

Office of the Attorney General
Washington, D.C. 20530

MEMORANDUM FOR HEADS OF ALL FEDERAL DEPARTMENTS AND AGENCIES

FROM: John Ashcroft
Attorney General

SUBJECT: The Freedom of Information Act

As you know, the Department of Justice and this Administration are committed to full compliance with the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA), 5 U.S.C. § 552 (2000). It is only through a well-informed citizenry that the leaders of our nation remain accountable to the governed and the American people can be assured that neither fraud nor government waste is concealed.

The Department of Justice and this Administration are equally committed to protecting other fundamental values that are held by our society. Among them are safeguarding our national security, enhancing the effectiveness of our law enforcement agencies, protecting sensitive business information and, not least, preserving personal privacy.

Our citizens have a strong interest as well in a government that is fully functional and efficient. Congress and the courts have long recognized that certain legal privileges ensure candid and complete agency deliberations without fear that they will be made public. Other privileges ensure that lawyers' deliberations and communications are kept private. No leader can operate effectively without confidential advice and counsel. Exemption 5 of the FOIA, 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(5), incorporates these privileges and the sound policies underlying them.

I encourage your agency to carefully consider the protection of all such values and interests when making disclosure determinations under the FOIA. Any discretionary decision by your agency to disclose information protected under the FOIA should be made only after full and deliberate consideration of the institutional, commercial, and personal privacy interests that could be implicated by disclosure of the information.

In making these decisions, you should consult with the Department of Justice's Office of Information and Privacy when significant FOIA policy issues arise, as well as with our Civil Division on FOIA litigation matters. When you carefully consider FOIA requests and decide to withhold records, in whole or in part, you can be assured that the Department of Justice will defend your decisions unless they lack a sound legal basis or present an unwarranted risk of adverse impact on the ability of other agencies to protect other important records.

This memorandum supersedes the Department of Justice's FOIA Memorandum of October 4, 1993, and it likewise creates no substantive or procedural right enforceable at law.

How about Ted Olson? He knows the bill, supports it enthusiastically, and knows it to be constitutional from top to bottom. He's also got a unique perspective on September 11, 2001.

Subject: Judiciary Comm. hearing

The Constitution Subcommittee, chaired by Senator Feingold, announced last night that it will hold a hearing next Wednesday, October 3, at 10:00 am entitled "Protecting Constitutional Freedoms in the Face of Terrorism." They have given us as Ranking Member very few details yet, but we can expect the focus to be on the constitutional and privacy issues surrounding the Administration's legislation to fight terrorism.

For witnesses, I am contacting possible professors, such as John Manning. Also, we need to decide if we want to have someone other than a legal expert to appear, such as a victim or broader terrorism expert. If you have any suggestions for witnesses we should call to defend the Administration or other thoughts about the hearing, please contact me. Thanks.

How about Ted Olson? He knows the bill, supports it enthusiastically, and knows it to be constitutional from top to bottom. He's also got a unique perspective on September 11, 2001.

Subject: Judiciary Comm. hearing

The Constitution Subcommittee, chaired by Senator Feingold, announced last night that it will hold a hearing next Wednesday, October 3, at 10:00 am entitled "Protecting Constitutional Freedoms in the Face of Terrorism." They have given us as Ranking Member very few details yet, but we can expect the focus to be on the constitutional and privacy issues surrounding the Administration's legislation to fight terrorism.

For witnesses, I am contacting possible professors, such as John Manning. Also, we need to decide if we want to have someone other than a legal expert to appear, such as a victim or broader terrorism expert. If you have any suggestions for witnesses we should call to defend the Administration or other thoughts about the hearing, please contact me. Thanks.

 - Fiberglass
 - Plastics
 - Synthetic chemicals
 - Chlorinated hydrocarbons, including polychlorinated biphenyls
 - Polyvinyl Chloride (PVC)
 - Polyurethane and polystyrene
 - Benzene
 - Formaldehyde
 - Polycyclic Aromatic Hydrocarbons
- a description of the techniques used to measure samples, especially the types of equipment employed and the detection limits.
- all the air quality data and wipe sampling data that you have collected both at Ground Zero and in the surrounding areas, for each of the substances you are monitoring for. This will include the date, time, and place of measurement.
- any documents that you have produced analyzing the dust or chemical concentrations resulting from the blast.

This request is currently being processed by the Occupational Safety and Health Admin. in Region II (Flushing, New York). Date request received: Sept. 20, 2001.

Greg W. Richey, CIH, CSP, Principal, Colden Corporation, Occupational Health, Safety & Environmental Consultants, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, is seeking:

all results of samples taken by personnel working for OSHA for the purpose of evaluating exposures to all airborne contaminants at the World Trade Center

Site including:

- Personal exposures to rescue workers
- Personal samples on OSHA personnel both working at “ground zero” and in the financial district itself.
- All area air sample results; and
- All bulk sample results.

Mr. Richey is only interested in the results of samples collected between September 12 and September 18, 2001.

This request is currently being processed by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration in Region II (New York). Date request received: September 19, 2001.

COMMERCE

I am certain he would be excellent. I recommended that to DoJ first thing this morning, and I hope we can work it out.

How about Ted Olson? He knows the bill, supports it enthusiastically, and knows it to be constitutional from top to bottom. He's also got a unique perspective

REV_00132323

on September 11, 2001.

Subject: Judiciary Comm. hearing

The Constitution Subcommittee, chaired by Senator Feingold, announced last night that it will hold a hearing next Wednesday, October 3, at 10:00 am entitled "Protecting Constitutional Freedoms in the Face of Terrorism." They have given us as Ranking Member very few details yet, but we can expect the focus to be on the constitutional and privacy issues surrounding the Administration's legislation to fight terrorism.

For witnesses, I am contacting possible professors, such as John Manning.
Also,
we need to decide if we want to have someone other than a legal expert to appear, such as a victim or broader terrorism expert. If you have any suggestions for witnesses we should call to defend the Administration or other thoughts about the hearing, please contact me. Thanks.

Ted would be the greatest witness we could get if he is willing. He is the man!

How about Ted Olson? He knows the bill, supports it enthusiastically, and knows it to be constitutional from top to bottom. He's also got a unique perspective on September 11, 2001.

Subject: Judiciary Comm. hearing

The Constitution Subcommittee, chaired by Senator Feingold, announced last night that it will hold a hearing next Wednesday, October 3, at 10:00 am entitled "Protecting Constitutional Freedoms in the Face of Terrorism." They have given us as Ranking Member very few details yet, but we can expect the focus to be on the constitutional and privacy issues surrounding the Administration's legislation to fight terrorism.

For witnesses, I am contacting possible professors, such as John Manning. Also, we need to decide if we want to have someone other than a legal expert to appear, such as a victim or broader terrorism expert. If you have any suggestions for witnesses we should call to defend the Administration or other thoughts about the hearing, please contact me. Thanks.

Subject: Judiciary Comm. hearing

The Constitution Subcommittee, chaired by Senator Feingold, announced last night that it will hold a hearing next Wednesday, October 3, at 10:00 am entitled "Protecting Constitutional Freedoms in the Face of Terrorism." They have given us as Ranking Member very few details yet, but we can expect the focus to be on the constitutional and privacy issues surrounding the Administration's legislation to fight terrorism.

For witnesses, I am contacting possible professors, such as John Manning. Also, we need to decide if we want to have someone other than a legal expert to appear, such as a victim or broader terrorism expert. If you have any suggestions for witnesses we should call to defend the Administration or other thoughts about the hearing, please contact me. Thanks.

Insurance Industry – Government Intervention in Response to Terrorism

DRAFT -- TIME -- DRAFT

Draft -- Pre-Decisional Staff Working Paper -- Draft

Objectives of Government Intervention

- Ensure that the terrorist attacks of September 11 and the potential for future terrorist attacks have a minimal impact on economic activity by ensuring uninterrupted availability of property and casualty insurance coverage for acts of terrorism.
- Limit any potential government loss exposure to clearly identifiable losses and a fixed amount (or fixed proportion of losses) per incident or underwriting year.
- Limit to market segments that the private sector will not insure.

Principles Guiding Government Intervention

- Encourage private sector initiatives to mitigate risk.
- Preserve private sector risk assessments and pricing to the greatest degree possible.
- Provide for some degree of compensation to the government for its risk exposure.
- Sunset government involvement once the private sector is capable of providing insurance coverage.

Options for Government Intervention

Minimal Government Intervention

- A. Remove regulatory impediments to the development of the risk securitization market
 - Provide federal clarification that catastrophe bonds are a financial vehicle that is not subject to state insurance regulation.
 - Streamline tax and other regulations to encourage creation of on-shore special purpose vehicles used in catastrophe bonds.
 - Provide tax benefits to catastrophe bonds (both for terrorist events and natural disasters).

Pros

- Relies on private capital markets.

Cons

- No evidence that private capital markets could provide the coverage needed quickly enough in the current environment. It suffers from the same information uncertainties inhibiting insurance and reinsurance companies.
- B. Enact tax law changes (in terms of structure or relief) that improve the loss absorbing capacity of insurance companies.

Pros

- Relies on existing private infrastructure.

Cons

- Tax benefits may be insufficient to keep companies in the game.
 - Tax benefits can be hard to remove once in place and have tendency to spread.
- C. Limit types and amount of damage claims that are available from a terrorist incident. Damage claims greater than the cap would be determined through a government based claims process. (Based loosely on Price-Anderson)

Pros

- Makes insurance company risks more manageable.
- Clear approach that limits government exposure.

Cons

- Leaves unknown amount of risk exposure that is uninsured.
- Remaining risk exposure could impair capital markets. For instance, would commercial mortgage lenders extend credit on buildings with potential limits on insurance coverage that leave the lender exposed?

Modest Government Intervention

- D. Provide Federal Reinsurance Coverage to an Industry Terrorism Reinsurance Pool (based on the UK's Pool Re model) – The federal government would provide reinsurance to a terrorism reinsurance pool operated by the insurance industry. The AIA proposal is based in part on the UK's Pool Re model.

Pros

- Has industry support.
- Based on a model that has worked in the UK.
- Provides first-loss coverage through the industry pool.
- Provides mechanism for establishing a broad risk pool and industry, not government, pricing, of insurance.

Cons

- Could take months to make fully operational.
 - Has characteristics of a GSE for insurance, suggesting it would grow over time while further extending the government's ultimate backstop.
 - Puts the government in the role of ensuring no adverse selection.
- E. Provide Federal Reinsurance with Ex-Post Pricing that Shares the Cost of Actual Losses Between Taxpayers and all P&C Insurance Carriers (based on the Price-Anderson Act Model) – For a temporary period, have the federal government offer reinsurance to the pool described in the previous option but do not require the pool to build reserves. Losses from a terrorist incident above some threshold amount would be reinsured by the government through the pool. Actual claims would be initially financed by Treasury and premiums would then be assessed pro rata on the pool participants in the next year (or years). Loss sharing with taxpayers could be established to limit losses put back to the industry.

Pros

- Eliminates idle capital.
- Avoids deadweight losses from mispriced insurance.
- Could quickly be made operational and easily sunset or replaced by more permanent legislation.

Cons

- Ex post pricing makes the insurance free up front, which increases moral hazard.
- Industry (and accountants?) could have difficulty handling a large future premium - unclear how they could/would reserve for such contingencies ex ante.
- Contingent deferred premiums could impact coverage levels and premium costs, thus reducing the amount of insurance available.

- F. Sell Federal Reinsurance Directly to Insurers (similar to disaster insurance proposals) – The federal government would sell federal reinsurance (either with fixed pricing or through an auction process) that would be tied to insurance company losses from terrorist attacks.

Pros

- Ensures availability of P&C insurance coverage.
- Socializes the costs.

Cons

- Requires a government bureaucracy be created to initiate and manage thousands of individual reinsurance contracts with individual carriers.
- Crowds out any possible private market for terrorist reinsurance.
- Difficult to mimic market-based pricing or risk-taking incentives, leading to potential moral hazard problems.

- G. Provide Federal Reinsurance through State-Based Plans (based on FAIR Act Approach) – The FAIR Act (passed in response to riots and civil disorders of the 1960s) set up a structure whereby each state would set up a plan to assure access to insurance requirements. The state plans were reinsured by the federal government through FEMA.

Pros

- Works within the existing state regulatory structure.
- Less bureaucracy than dealing with individual insurance companies.

Cons

- The states need to each set up a plan, and the federal government needs to approve the plans.
- Reinsurance rates must be determined by the government.

Direct Government Intervention

- H. Directly Underwrite and Sell Terrorism Insurance Coverage (based on a War Damages Corporation approach) – Terrorism insurance would be underwritten by a government agency and sold directly to customers by insurance companies.

Pros

- Provides certainty that terrorism risks will be covered.

Cons

- Government pricing of insurance risks.

- Potential for lack of underwriting discipline and increased government risk exposure.
- Requires a government bureaucracy.

I. Provide Direct Government Insurance for Terrorist Attacks Through a Proportional Risk-Sharing Arrangement with the Insurance Industry (based on a Federal Crop Insurance approach) –Under Federal Crop Insurance, the federal government shares in premiums and the risks on a proportional basis with private insurers. The federal government also provides back-up reinsurance based on the financial condition of insurers that participate in the program.

Pros

- Provides certainty that terrorism risks will be covered.
- Private sector involvement may improve pricing and risk management.

Cons

- Government risk sharing (if large enough) may weaken private sector incentives.
- Proportional risk sharing may weaken private sector incentives in comparison to excess loss risk sharing.
- Requires a government bureaucracy.

Other Issues in Providing Government Terrorism Insurance

- Defining a Terrorist Incident – The government (perhaps the Treasury Secretary in consultation with federal law enforcement) should have the final authority in determining if an incident was caused by terrorist activities.
- Limiting Government Claims Above a Certain Dollar Amount – In order to limit the government's liability, provisions that trigger tort reforms when losses exceed a certain threshold, e.g., $10 billion, should be put in place. These provisions would include consolidating all claims in one jurisdiction; and limiting types of damages (e.g., only money damages).

Price-Anderson Act

(42 U.S.C. 2014)

Purpose -- To encourage the development of the nuclear industry and to ensure prompt and equitable compensation in the event of a nuclear incident.

Coverage -- For licensed nuclear power plants indemnified by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), the Act provides for three tiers of protection against third party "public liability arising from a nuclear incident" (covering "any legal liability" with certain exceptions):

- (1) Private insurance: Each reactor must purchase the maximum private insurance commercially available (currently $200 million).
- (2) Retrospective pooling: If damage from an incident exceeds $200 million, each of the 110 reactors is assessed a pro-rata share of the excess up to $83.9 million, capped at $10 million per year per reactor ($83.9x 110= $9.23 billion pool+ $200 million= $9.43 billion coverage cap to the industry). The NRC may in specified circumstances, on a case-by-case basis, postpone all or part of the annual deferred premium. NRC also may provide reinsurance or guarantee payment of deferred premiums if there is a shortfall. In that event, NRC must advance necessary funds based on a Congressional appropriation or (to the extent approved in appropriation Acts) by issuing obligations to the Treasury.
- (3) Government commitment: If damage exceeds $9.43 billion, the Act contains a moral commitment from Congress to provide full and prompt compensation to the public, based on a plan the President submits.

[For contractors and suppliers indemnified by the Department of Energy, the Act provides full indemnification up to $9.43 billion without private insurance. In effect, the government self-insures against nuclear incidents from contractual activities conducted on its behalf.]

Basis of Liability -- Liability is based on state tort laws of the jurisdiction where the incident occurs. Since many states provide strict liability for ultrahazardous activities, it's possible that liability for a nuclear incident could be established without fault. For "extraordinary nuclear occurrences," the Act requires waiver of certain defenses so that claimants need not prove fault and defendants may not claim charitable or sovereign immunity. In limited situations, the Act supercedes state law with uniform rules such as a limitation on awarding punitive damages or the time in which claims may be brought.

Consolidated Jurisdiction -- Claims are consolidated in a single U.S. District Court where the incident occurs. This channels liability through one court to one source of funds, so there is no need to sue all potential defendants or allocate liability among multiple defendants.

International Coverage -- Damages for injuries suffered in other countries from incidents in the U.S. may be sought in U.S. courts under the Act. The Act cannot control liability exposure in other countries.

Sunset -- The Act sunsets provisions permitting coverage for potential licensees and new contracts. Congress renewed and amended the 1957 Act in 1966, 1969, 1975, and 1988.

Pool Re (Pool Reinsurance Co. Ltd.)

Purpose -- To create an independent, mutual reinsurance company backed by the government that provides reinsurance to member companies for property loss and business interruption due to fire and explosion from "acts of terrorism" (primarily car bombs) that the insurance and reinsurance markets would not otherwise insure. Since its inception in 1993, Pool Re has covered three major losses for a total of 600 million pounds.

Participants -- Member companies are insurers (and Lloyd's syndicates) authorized to underwrite property insurance and business interruption for risks located in England, Wales and Scotland. Currently there are about 200 members, including all of the largest insurers in the U.K. commercial insurance market.

Reinsurance Coverage -- Members are required to offer reinsurance to first line insurers in excess of the retention, which is 100,000 pounds per "head of cover" per incident or 2.5 million pounds per policy per cover per incident. "Heads of cover" include: (1) buildings and completed structures, (2) other property (including contents, engineering contractors and computers), (3) business interruption, and (4) book debts (unclear how many heads of cover there actually are). Insureds have the option of buying protection beyond the 100,000 pounds of coverage, in which case the insurer cedes the additional premium to Pool Re, which assumes the risk.

Government (Retrocession) Liability -- Under the retrocession agreement, the government becomes liable to make payments to Pool Re when Pool Re's financial resources, including a [500 million] pound loan facility, have been exhausted. Members may reinsure only with Pool Re, which agrees to reinsure each member in excess of its retention. The Reinsurance (Acts of Terrorism) Act of 1993 enabled the Secretary for Trade and Industry to enter into the retrocession agreement with Pool Re subject to the consent of the Treasury. Pool Re's only retrocessionaire is the government.

Premiums -- Pool Re is funded through "market" rate premiums set by the government in exchange for the government underwriting excess exposure to the fund. Companies pay rates depending on the locations of risks in different geographic zones -- currently 150 pounds per million pounds of coverage in metropolitan areas, and 30 pounds per million of coverage in rural areas. The retrocession agreement provides that when Pool Re's funds reach one billion pounds, a retrocession premium becomes payable to the government. If Pool Re incurs an underwriting loss (an underwriting year is closed after three years), each member must pay an additional premium equivalent to 10% of the underwriting loss subject to a maximum of 10% of the premium income it paid to Pool Re for the underwriting year in question. If Pool Re makes an underwriting profit, each member is entitled to a 10% return premium.

Certification -- According to the retrocession agreement, the Secretary of State is required to provide a certificate to the effect that an "act of terrorism" has occurred for which indemnity is claimed under a reinsurance agreement.

Dispute resolution -- The agreements provide a dispute resolution procedure in addition to the usual arbitration clause.

FAIR Plans --Fair Access to Insurance Requirements (12 U.S.C. 1749bbb)

Purpose -- To create statewide plans to make essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas following the 1968 riots by providing Federal reinsurance for property losses arising from "riots or civil disorders." The statutory authority terminated in 1985, but 29 states still run FAIR programs.

Role of FEMA -- The FEMA Director, in consultation with a public-private Advisory Board, establishes and carries out the FAIR program, the Federal reinsurance program (including a "National Insurance Development Fund"), and a Federal crime insurance program, described below. FEMA reports to Congress at least annually on its operations under the Act.

Reinsurance -- FEMA is authorized to offer reinsurance from the National Insurance Development Fund to each insurer or pool for property losses arising from "riots or civil disorders." Reinsurance is offered only on "standard lines" of property insurance, as defined.

Premiums -- Insurers pay FEMA reinsurance premiums, determined by FEMA in consultation with the Advisory Board, for deposit into the Fund. FEMA thereafter may adjust premiums after consulting with the Advisory Board and the NAIC. The Fund can borrow from the Treasury to meet its needs.

Reimbursement for Losses -- The Act requires states to pass legislation stating that they will reimburse FEMA for any reinsured losses up to 5% of the aggregate property insurance premiums earned in that state during the previous year, to the extent the losses exceed the amount FEMA received in reinsurance premiums.

Federal Crime Insurance -- FEMA is required to critically review the market availability in each state of burglary and robbery insurance at affordable rates. If there is a critical unavailability, FEMA must make it available at affordable rates through the facilities of the Federal government after consulting with state insurance authorities in estimating what rates are affordable.

Participation in State FAIR Plans -- Participation in a state FAIR plan is required for an insurer to qualify for Federal reinsurance. (Most states also require property insurers to join the FAIR program before getting a certificate of authority to do business.) Each insurer wishing to participate in a FAIR program must cooperate with the appropriate state insurance authority in establishing and carrying out the FAIR plan. Plans are approved and administered by state insurance authorities. Plans must be run in a way that makes essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas. Plans must include various requirements regarding property inspection, reporting of reasons for declining coverage or requiring changes in the property, etc. A potential insured can request coverage under the program after being denied coverage otherwise.

War Damage Corporation Act
56 Stat. 174 (1942)

Purpose -- To establish WDC as a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC) to provide property owners in the U.S. with reasonable insurance protection against loss or damage from enemy attack or U.S. military resistance during WWII, since basic fire and extended coverages contained a war risk exclusion.

History -- WDC was established in 1941 as the War Insurance Corporation and renamed the WDC in 1942. It is a subsidiary of the RFC, which was established by Congress in 1940 to aid in the national defense program. The WDC program grew from the War Risk Insurance Act of 1914 (38 Stat. 711), which provided insurance for maritime vessels and was amended in 1917 in response to WWI. WDC's charter and all policies expired in 1947. WDC's assets were liquidated by 1949, and in 1957 its stock was transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury for cancellation after all suits against the WDC had been settled.

Coverage -- The Act directs the RFC to empower the WDC to use its funds to provide, through insurance, reinsurance or otherwise, reasonable protection against loss or damage to real or personal property resulting from enemy attack or U.S. military resistance, with such exceptions as WDC, with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce, may deem advisable.

RFC Funding -- The Act directs the RFC, upon the request of the Secretary of Commerce and with the President's approval, to provide funds to WDC and issue obligations sufficient to carry out the Act's purposes. The aggregate amount of funds supplied by the RTC may not exceed $1 billion.

Premiums -- WDC protection would be made available upon the payment of such premium and subject to such terms and conditions as WDC may establish with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce.

Establishment of Rates -- In view of the national interest involved, the Act required WDC to establish from time to time uniform rates for each type of property for which protection was made available. To establish a basis for such uniform rates, the Act required WDC to estimate the average risk of loss on all property of such type in the U.S.

Limitation of Protection -- Protection was available only in the U.S., its territories and possessions, and other places determined by the President to be under U.S. dominion and control, and not to property on which the Maritime Commission was authorized to provide marine war-risk insurance. WDC, with approval of the Secretary of Commerce, could suspend or restrict protection in areas in consideration of loss of control by the U.S.

Losses Sustained between Dec. 7, 1941 and the Start-Up Date -- WDC was authorized to provide compensation without requiring an insurance contract or payment of premium, adjusting the loss as if a policy were in effect.

We're on for a meeting with Barry Jackson at 10:30 this morning in his room (enter through 176). We'll discuss:
E-mail signup options and language
Data collection and potential methods of using that data
Privacy policy and how it effects potential signup and opt-out options

Thanks for your help. See you there.

How about Ted Olson? He knows the bill, supports it enthusiastically, and knows it to be constitutional from top to bottom. He's also got a unique perspective on September 11, 2001.

Subject: Judiciary Comm. hearing

The Constitution Subcommittee, chaired by Senator Feingold, announced last night that it will hold a hearing next Wednesday, October 3, at 10:00 am entitled "Protecting Constitutional Freedoms in the Face of Terrorism." They have given us as Ranking Member very few details yet, but we can expect the focus to be on the constitutional and privacy issues surrounding the Administration's legislation to fight terrorism.

For witnesses, I am contacting possible professors, such as John Manning. Also, we need to decide if we want to have someone other than a legal expert to appear, such as a victim or broader terrorism expert. If you have any suggestions for witnesses we should call to defend the Administration or other thoughts about the hearing, please contact me. Thanks.

Insurance Industry – Government Intervention in Response to Terrorism

DRAFT -- TIME -- DRAFT

Draft -- Pre-Decisional Staff Working Paper -- Draft

Objectives of Government Intervention

- Ensure that the terrorist attacks of September 11 and the potential for future terrorist attacks have a minimal impact on economic activity by ensuring uninterrupted availability of property and casualty insurance coverage for acts of terrorism.
- Limit any potential government loss exposure to clearly identifiable losses and a fixed amount (or fixed proportion of losses) per incident or underwriting year.
- Limit to market segments that the private sector will not insure.

Principles Guiding Government Intervention

- Encourage private sector initiatives to mitigate risk.
- Preserve private sector risk assessments and pricing to the greatest degree possible.
- Provide for some degree of compensation to the government for its risk exposure.
- Sunset government involvement once the private sector is capable of providing insurance coverage.

Options for Government Intervention

Minimal Government Intervention

- A. Remove regulatory impediments to the development of the risk securitization market
 - Provide federal clarification that catastrophe bonds are a financial vehicle that is not subject to state insurance regulation.
 - Streamline tax and other regulations to encourage creation of on-shore special purpose vehicles used in catastrophe bonds.
 - Provide tax benefits to catastrophe bonds (both for terrorist events and natural disasters).

Pros

- Relies on private capital markets.

Cons

- No evidence that private capital markets could provide the coverage needed quickly enough in the current environment. It suffers from the same information uncertainties inhibiting insurance and reinsurance companies.
- B. Enact tax law changes (in terms of structure or relief) that improve the loss absorbing capacity of insurance companies.

Pros

- Relies on existing private infrastructure.

Cons

- Tax benefits may be insufficient to keep companies in the game.
 - Tax benefits can be hard to remove once in place and have tendency to spread.
- C. Limit types and amount of damage claims that are available from a terrorist incident. Damage claims greater than the cap would be determined through a government based claims process. (Based loosely on Price-Anderson)

Pros

- Makes insurance company risks more manageable.
- Clear approach that limits government exposure.

Cons

- Leaves unknown amount of risk exposure that is uninsured.
- Remaining risk exposure could impair capital markets. For instance, would commercial mortgage lenders extend credit on buildings with potential limits on insurance coverage that leave the lender exposed?

Modest Government Intervention

- D. Provide Federal Reinsurance Coverage to an Industry Terrorism Reinsurance Pool (based on the UK's Pool Re model) – The federal government would provide reinsurance to a terrorism reinsurance pool operated by the insurance industry. The AIA proposal is based in part on the UK's Pool Re model.

Pros

- Has industry support.
- Based on a model that has worked in the UK.
- Provides first-loss coverage through the industry pool.
- Provides mechanism for establishing a broad risk pool and industry, not government, pricing, of insurance.

Cons

- Could take months to make fully operational.
 - Has characteristics of a GSE for insurance, suggesting it would grow over time while further extending the government's ultimate backstop.
 - Puts the government in the role of ensuring no adverse selection.
- E. Provide Federal Reinsurance with Ex-Post Pricing that Shares the Cost of Actual Losses Between Taxpayers and all P&C Insurance Carriers (based on the Price-Anderson Act Model) – For a temporary period, have the federal government offer reinsurance to the pool described in the previous option but do not require the pool to build reserves. Losses from a terrorist incident above some threshold amount would be reinsured by the government through the pool. Actual claims would be initially financed by Treasury and premiums would then be assessed pro rata on the pool participants in the next year (or years). Loss sharing with taxpayers could be established to limit losses put back to the industry.

Pros

- Eliminates idle capital.
- Avoids deadweight losses from mispriced insurance.
- Could quickly be made operational and easily sunset or replaced by more permanent legislation.

Cons

- Ex post pricing makes the insurance free up front, which increases moral hazard.
- Industry (and accountants?) could have difficulty handling a large future premium - unclear how they could/would reserve for such contingencies ex ante.
- Contingent deferred premiums could impact coverage levels and premium costs, thus reducing the amount of insurance available.

- F. Sell Federal Reinsurance Directly to Insurers (similar to disaster insurance proposals) – The federal government would sell federal reinsurance (either with fixed pricing or through an auction process) that would be tied to insurance company losses from terrorist attacks.

Pros

- Ensures availability of P&C insurance coverage.
- Socializes the costs.

Cons

- Requires a government bureaucracy be created to initiate and manage thousands of individual reinsurance contracts with individual carriers.
- Crowds out any possible private market for terrorist reinsurance.
- Difficult to mimic market-based pricing or risk-taking incentives, leading to potential moral hazard problems.

- G. Provide Federal Reinsurance through State-Based Plans (based on FAIR Act Approach) – The FAIR Act (passed in response to riots and civil disorders of the 1960s) set up a structure whereby each state would set up a plan to assure access to insurance requirements. The state plans were reinsured by the federal government through FEMA.

Pros

- Works within the existing state regulatory structure.
- Less bureaucracy than dealing with individual insurance companies.

Cons

- The states need to each set up a plan, and the federal government needs to approve the plans.
- Reinsurance rates must be determined by the government.

Direct Government Intervention

- H. Directly Underwrite and Sell Terrorism Insurance Coverage (based on a War Damages Corporation approach) – Terrorism insurance would be underwritten by a government agency and sold directly to customers by insurance companies.

Pros

- Provides certainty that terrorism risks will be covered.

Cons

- Government pricing of insurance risks.

- Potential for lack of underwriting discipline and increased government risk exposure.
- Requires a government bureaucracy.

I. Provide Direct Government Insurance for Terrorist Attacks Through a Proportional Risk-Sharing Arrangement with the Insurance Industry (based on a Federal Crop Insurance approach) –Under Federal Crop Insurance, the federal government shares in premiums and the risks on a proportional basis with private insurers. The federal government also provides back-up reinsurance based on the financial condition of insurers that participate in the program.

Pros

- Provides certainty that terrorism risks will be covered.
- Private sector involvement may improve pricing and risk management.

Cons

- Government risk sharing (if large enough) may weaken private sector incentives.
- Proportional risk sharing may weaken private sector incentives in comparison to excess loss risk sharing.
- Requires a government bureaucracy.

Other Issues in Providing Government Terrorism Insurance

- Defining a Terrorist Incident – The government (perhaps the Treasury Secretary in consultation with federal law enforcement) should have the final authority in determining if an incident was caused by terrorist activities.
- Limiting Government Claims Above a Certain Dollar Amount – In order to limit the government's liability, provisions that trigger tort reforms when losses exceed a certain threshold, e.g., $10 billion, should be put in place. These provisions would include consolidating all claims in one jurisdiction; and limiting types of damages (e.g., only money damages).

Price-Anderson Act

Purpose -- To encourage the development of the nuclear industry and to ensure prompt and equitable compensation in the event of a nuclear incident.

Coverage -- For licensed nuclear power plants indemnified by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), the Act provides for three tiers of protection against third party "public liability arising from a nuclear incident" (covering "any legal liability" with certain exceptions):

- (1) Private insurance: Each reactor must purchase the maximum private insurance commercially available (currently $200 million).
- (2) Retrospective pooling: If damage from an incident exceeds $200 million, each of the 110 reactors is assessed a pro-rata share of the excess up to $83.9 million, capped at $10 million per year per reactor ($83.9x 110= $9.23 billion pool+ $200 million= $9.43 billion coverage cap to the industry). The NRC may in specified circumstances, on a case-by-case basis, postpone all or part of the annual deferred premium. NRC also may provide reinsurance or guarantee payment of deferred premiums if there is a shortfall. In that event, NRC must advance necessary funds based on a Congressional appropriation or (to the extent approved in appropriation Acts) by issuing obligations to the Treasury.
- (3) Government commitment: If damage exceeds $9.43 billion, the Act contains a moral commitment from Congress to provide full and prompt compensation to the public, based on a plan the President submits.

[For contractors and suppliers indemnified by the Department of Energy, the Act provides full indemnification up to $9.43 billion without private insurance. In effect, the government self-insures against nuclear incidents from contractual activities conducted on its behalf.]

Basis of Liability -- Liability is based on state tort laws of the jurisdiction where the incident occurs. Since many states provide strict liability for ultrahazardous activities, it's possible that liability for a nuclear incident could be established without fault. For "extraordinary nuclear occurrences," the Act requires waiver of certain defenses so that claimants need not prove fault and defendants may not claim charitable or sovereign immunity. In limited situations, the Act supercedes state law with uniform rules such as a limitation on awarding punitive damages or the time in which claims may be brought.

Consolidated Jurisdiction -- Claims are consolidated in a single U.S. District Court where the incident occurs. This channels liability through one court to one source of funds, so there is no need to sue all potential defendants or allocate liability among multiple defendants.

International Coverage -- Damages for injuries suffered in other countries from incidents in the U.S. may be sought in U.S. courts under the Act. The Act cannot control liability exposure in other countries.

Sunset -- The Act sunsets provisions permitting coverage for potential licensees and new contracts. Congress renewed and amended the 1957 Act in 1966, 1969, 1975, and 1988.

Pool Re (Pool Reinsurance Co. Ltd.)

Purpose -- To create an independent, mutual reinsurance company backed by the government that provides reinsurance to member companies for property loss and business interruption due to fire and explosion from "acts of terrorism" (primarily car bombs) that the insurance and reinsurance markets would not otherwise insure. Since its inception in 1993, Pool Re has covered three major losses for a total of 600 million pounds.

Participants -- Member companies are insurers (and Lloyd's syndicates) authorized to underwrite property insurance and business interruption for risks located in England, Wales and Scotland. Currently there are about 200 members, including all of the largest insurers in the U.K. commercial insurance market.

Reinsurance Coverage -- Members are required to offer reinsurance to first line insurers in excess of the retention, which is 100,000 pounds per "head of cover" per incident or 2.5 million pounds per policy per cover per incident. "Heads of cover" include: (1) buildings and completed structures, (2) other property (including contents, engineering contractors and computers), (3) business interruption, and (4) book debts (unclear how many heads of cover there actually are). Insureds have the option of buying protection beyond the 100,000 pounds of coverage, in which case the insurer cedes the additional premium to Pool Re, which assumes the risk.

Government (Retrocession) Liability -- Under the retrocession agreement, the government becomes liable to make payments to Pool Re when Pool Re's financial resources, including a [500 million] pound loan facility, have been exhausted. Members may reinsure only with Pool Re, which agrees to reinsure each member in excess of its retention. The Reinsurance (Acts of Terrorism) Act of 1993 enabled the Secretary for Trade and Industry to enter into the retrocession agreement with Pool Re subject to the consent of the Treasury. Pool Re's only retrocessionaire is the government.

Premiums -- Pool Re is funded through "market" rate premiums set by the government in exchange for the government underwriting excess exposure to the fund. Companies pay rates depending on the locations of risks in different geographic zones -- currently 150 pounds per million pounds of coverage in metropolitan areas, and 30 pounds per million of coverage in rural areas. The retrocession agreement provides that when Pool Re's funds reach one billion pounds, a retrocession premium becomes payable to the government. If Pool Re incurs an underwriting loss (an underwriting year is closed after three years), each member must pay an additional premium equivalent to 10% of the underwriting loss subject to a maximum of 10% of the premium income it paid to Pool Re for the underwriting year in question. If Pool Re makes an underwriting profit, each member is entitled to a 10% return premium.

Certification -- According to the retrocession agreement, the Secretary of State is required to provide a certificate to the effect that an "act of terrorism" has occurred for which indemnity is claimed under a reinsurance agreement.

Dispute resolution -- The agreements provide a dispute resolution procedure in addition to the usual arbitration clause.

FAIR Plans --Fair Access to Insurance Requirements (12 U.S.C. 1749bbb)

Purpose -- To create statewide plans to make essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas following the 1968 riots by providing Federal reinsurance for property losses arising from "riots or civil disorders." The statutory authority terminated in 1985, but 29 states still run FAIR programs.

Role of FEMA -- The FEMA Director, in consultation with a public-private Advisory Board, establishes and carries out the FAIR program, the Federal reinsurance program (including a "National Insurance Development Fund"), and a Federal crime insurance program, described below. FEMA reports to Congress at least annually on its operations under the Act.

Reinsurance -- FEMA is authorized to offer reinsurance from the National Insurance Development Fund to each insurer or pool for property losses arising from "riots or civil disorders." Reinsurance is offered only on "standard lines" of property insurance, as defined.

Premiums -- Insurers pay FEMA reinsurance premiums, determined by FEMA in consultation with the Advisory Board, for deposit into the Fund. FEMA thereafter may adjust premiums after consulting with the Advisory Board and the NAIC. The Fund can borrow from the Treasury to meet its needs.

Reimbursement for Losses -- The Act requires states to pass legislation stating that they will reimburse FEMA for any reinsured losses up to 5% of the aggregate property insurance premiums earned in that state during the previous year, to the extent the losses exceed the amount FEMA received in reinsurance premiums.

Federal Crime Insurance -- FEMA is required to critically review the market availability in each state of burglary and robbery insurance at affordable rates. If there is a critical unavailability, FEMA must make it available at affordable rates through the facilities of the Federal government after consulting with state insurance authorities in estimating what rates are affordable.

Participation in State FAIR Plans -- Participation in a state FAIR plan is required for an insurer to qualify for Federal reinsurance. (Most states also require property insurers to join the FAIR program before getting a certificate of authority to do business.) Each insurer wishing to participate in a FAIR program must cooperate with the appropriate state insurance authority in establishing and carrying out the FAIR plan. Plans are approved and administered by state insurance authorities. Plans must be run in a way that makes essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas. Plans must include various requirements regarding property inspection, reporting of reasons for declining coverage or requiring changes in the property, etc. A potential insured can request coverage under the program after being denied coverage otherwise.

Purpose -- To establish WDC as a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC) to provide property owners in the U.S. with reasonable insurance protection against loss or damage from enemy attack or U.S. military resistance during WWII, since basic fire and extended coverages contained a war risk exclusion.

History -- WDC was established in 1941 as the War Insurance Corporation and renamed the WDC in 1942. It is a subsidiary of the RFC, which was established by Congress in 1940 to aid in the national defense program. The WDC program grew from the War Risk Insurance Act of 1914 (38 Stat. 711), which provided insurance for maritime vessels and was amended in 1917 in response to WWI. WDC's charter and all policies expired in 1947. WDC's assets were liquidated by 1949, and in 1957 its stock was transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury for cancellation after all suits against the WDC had been settled.

Coverage -- The Act directs the RFC to empower the WDC to use its funds to provide, through insurance, reinsurance or otherwise, reasonable protection against loss or damage to real or personal property resulting from enemy attack or U.S. military resistance, with such exceptions as WDC, with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce, may deem advisable.

RFC Funding -- The Act directs the RFC, upon the request of the Secretary of Commerce and with the President's approval, to provide funds to WDC and issue obligations sufficient to carry out the Act's purposes. The aggregate amount of funds supplied by the RTC may not exceed $1 billion.

Premiums -- WDC protection would be made available upon the payment of such premium and subject to such terms and conditions as WDC may establish with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce.

Establishment of Rates -- In view of the national interest involved, the Act required WDC to establish from time to time uniform rates for each type of property for which protection was made available. To establish a basis for such uniform rates, the Act required WDC to estimate the average risk of loss on all property of such type in the U.S.

Limitation of Protection -- Protection was available only in the U.S., its territories and possessions, and other places determined by the President to be under U.S. dominion and control, and not to property on which the Maritime Commission was authorized to provide marine war-risk insurance. WDC, with approval of the Secretary of Commerce, could suspend or restrict protection in areas in consideration of loss of control by the U.S.

Losses Sustained between Dec. 7, 1941 and the Start-Up Date -- WDC was authorized to provide compensation without requiring an insurance contract or payment of premium, adjusting the loss as if a policy were in effect.

Insurance Industry – Government Intervention in Response to Terrorism

DRAFT -- TIME -- DRAFT

Draft -- Pre-Decisional Staff Working Paper -- Draft

Objectives of Government Intervention

- Ensure that the terrorist attacks of September 11 and the potential for future terrorist attacks have a minimal impact on economic activity by ensuring uninterrupted availability of property and casualty insurance coverage for acts of terrorism.
- Limit any potential government loss exposure to clearly identifiable losses and a fixed amount (or fixed proportion of losses) per incident or underwriting year.
- Limit to market segments that the private sector will not insure.

Principles Guiding Government Intervention

- Encourage private sector initiatives to mitigate risk.
- Preserve private sector risk assessments and pricing to the greatest degree possible.
- Provide for some degree of compensation to the government for its risk exposure.
- Sunset government involvement once the private sector is capable of providing insurance coverage.

Options for Government Intervention

Minimal Government Intervention

- A. Remove regulatory impediments to the development of the risk securitization market
 - Provide federal clarification that catastrophe bonds are a financial vehicle that is not subject to state insurance regulation.
 - Streamline tax and other regulations to encourage creation of on-shore special purpose vehicles used in catastrophe bonds.
 - Provide tax benefits to catastrophe bonds (both for terrorist events and natural disasters).

Pros

- Relies on private capital markets.

Cons

- No evidence that private capital markets could provide the coverage needed quickly enough in the current environment. It suffers from the same information uncertainties inhibiting insurance and reinsurance companies.
- B. Enact tax law changes (in terms of structure or relief) that improve the loss absorbing capacity of insurance companies.

Pros

- Relies on existing private infrastructure.

Cons

- Tax benefits may be insufficient to keep companies in the game.
 - Tax benefits can be hard to remove once in place and have tendency to spread.
- C. Limit types and amount of damage claims that are available from a terrorist incident. Damage claims greater than the cap would be determined through a government based claims process. (Based loosely on Price-Anderson)

Pros

- Makes insurance company risks more manageable.
- Clear approach that limits government exposure.

Cons

- Leaves unknown amount of risk exposure that is uninsured.
- Remaining risk exposure could impair capital markets. For instance, would commercial mortgage lenders extend credit on buildings with potential limits on insurance coverage that leave the lender exposed?

Modest Government Intervention

- D. Provide Federal Reinsurance Coverage to an Industry Terrorism Reinsurance Pool (based on the UK's Pool Re model) – The federal government would provide reinsurance to a terrorism reinsurance pool operated by the insurance industry. The AIA proposal is based in part on the UK's Pool Re model.

Pros

- Has industry support.
- Based on a model that has worked in the UK.
- Provides first-loss coverage through the industry pool.
- Provides mechanism for establishing a broad risk pool and industry, not government, pricing, of insurance.

Cons

- Could take months to make fully operational.
- Has characteristics of a GSE for insurance, suggesting it would grow over time while further extending the government's ultimate backstop.
- Puts the government in the role of ensuring no adverse selection.

- E. Provide Federal Reinsurance with Ex-Post Pricing that Shares the Cost of Actual Losses Between Taxpayers and all P&C Insurance Carriers (based on the Price-Anderson Act Model) – For a temporary period, have the federal government offer reinsurance to the pool described in the previous option but do not require the pool to build reserves. Losses from a terrorist incident above some threshold amount would be reinsured by the government through the pool. Actual claims would be initially financed by Treasury and premiums would then be assessed pro rata on the pool participants in the next year (or years). Loss sharing with taxpayers could be established to limit losses put back to the industry.

Pros

- Eliminates idle capital.
- Avoids deadweight losses from mispriced insurance.
- Could quickly be made operational and easily sunset or replaced by more permanent legislation.

Cons

- Ex post pricing makes the insurance free up front, which increases moral hazard.
- Industry (and accountants?) could have difficulty handling a large future premium - unclear how they could/would reserve for such contingencies ex ante.
- Contingent deferred premiums could impact coverage levels and premium costs, thus reducing the amount of insurance available.

- F. Sell Federal Reinsurance Directly to Insurers (similar to disaster insurance proposals) – The federal government would sell federal reinsurance (either with fixed pricing or through an auction process) that would be tied to insurance company losses from terrorist attacks.

Pros

- Ensures availability of P&C insurance coverage.
- Socializes the costs.

Cons

- Requires a government bureaucracy be created to initiate and manage thousands of individual reinsurance contracts with individual carriers.
- Crowds out any possible private market for terrorist reinsurance.
- Difficult to mimic market-based pricing or risk-taking incentives, leading to potential moral hazard problems.

- G. Provide Federal Reinsurance through State-Based Plans (based on FAIR Act Approach) – The FAIR Act (passed in response to riots and civil disorders of the 1960s) set up a structure whereby each state would set up a plan to assure access to insurance requirements. The state plans were reinsured by the federal government through FEMA.

Pros

- Works within the existing state regulatory structure.
- Less bureaucracy than dealing with individual insurance companies.

Cons

- The states need to each set up a plan, and the federal government needs to approve the plans.
- Reinsurance rates must be determined by the government.

Direct Government Intervention

- H. Directly Underwrite and Sell Terrorism Insurance Coverage (based on a War Damages Corporation approach) – Terrorism insurance would be underwritten by a government agency and sold directly to customers by insurance companies.

Pros

- Provides certainty that terrorism risks will be covered.

Cons

- Government pricing of insurance risks.

- Potential for lack of underwriting discipline and increased government risk exposure.
- Requires a government bureaucracy.

I. Provide Direct Government Insurance for Terrorist Attacks Through a Proportional Risk-Sharing Arrangement with the Insurance Industry (based on a Federal Crop Insurance approach) –Under Federal Crop Insurance, the federal government shares in premiums and the risks on a proportional basis with private insurers. The federal government also provides back-up reinsurance based on the financial condition of insurers that participate in the program.

Pros

- Provides certainty that terrorism risks will be covered.
- Private sector involvement may improve pricing and risk management.

Cons

- Government risk sharing (if large enough) may weaken private sector incentives.
- Proportional risk sharing may weaken private sector incentives in comparison to excess loss risk sharing.
- Requires a government bureaucracy.

Other Issues in Providing Government Terrorism Insurance

- Defining a Terrorist Incident – The government (perhaps the Treasury Secretary in consultation with federal law enforcement) should have the final authority in determining if an incident was caused by terrorist activities.
- Limiting Government Claims Above a Certain Dollar Amount – In order to limit the government's liability, provisions that trigger tort reforms when losses exceed a certain threshold, e.g., $10 billion, should be put in place. These provisions would include consolidating all claims in one jurisdiction; and limiting types of damages (e.g., only money damages).

Price-Anderson Act

Purpose -- To encourage the development of the nuclear industry and to ensure prompt and equitable compensation in the event of a nuclear incident.

Coverage -- For licensed nuclear power plants indemnified by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), the Act provides for three tiers of protection against third party "public liability arising from a nuclear incident" (covering "any legal liability" with certain exceptions):

- (1) Private insurance: Each reactor must purchase the maximum private insurance commercially available (currently $200 million).
- (2) Retrospective pooling: If damage from an incident exceeds $200 million, each of the 110 reactors is assessed a pro-rata share of the excess up to $83.9 million, capped at $10 million per year per reactor ($83.9x 110= $9.23 billion pool+ $200 million= $9.43 billion coverage cap to the industry). The NRC may in specified circumstances, on a case-by-case basis, postpone all or part of the annual deferred premium. NRC also may provide reinsurance or guarantee payment of deferred premiums if there is a shortfall. In that event, NRC must advance necessary funds based on a Congressional appropriation or (to the extent approved in appropriation Acts) by issuing obligations to the Treasury.
- (3) Government commitment: If damage exceeds $9.43 billion, the Act contains a moral commitment from Congress to provide full and prompt compensation to the public, based on a plan the President submits.

[For contractors and suppliers indemnified by the Department of Energy, the Act provides full indemnification up to $9.43 billion without private insurance. In effect, the government self-insures against nuclear incidents from contractual activities conducted on its behalf.]

Basis of Liability -- Liability is based on state tort laws of the jurisdiction where the incident occurs. Since many states provide strict liability for ultrahazardous activities, it's possible that liability for a nuclear incident could be established without fault. For "extraordinary nuclear occurrences," the Act requires waiver of certain defenses so that claimants need not prove fault and defendants may not claim charitable or sovereign immunity. In limited situations, the Act supercedes state law with uniform rules such as a limitation on awarding punitive damages or the time in which claims may be brought.

Consolidated Jurisdiction -- Claims are consolidated in a single U.S. District Court where the incident occurs. This channels liability through one court to one source of funds, so there is no need to sue all potential defendants or allocate liability among multiple defendants.

International Coverage -- Damages for injuries suffered in other countries from incidents in the U.S. may be sought in U.S. courts under the Act. The Act cannot control liability exposure in other countries.

Sunset -- The Act sunsets provisions permitting coverage for potential licensees and new contracts. Congress renewed and amended the 1957 Act in 1966, 1969, 1975, and 1988.

Pool Re (Pool Reinsurance Co. Ltd.)

Purpose -- To create an independent, mutual reinsurance company backed by the government that provides reinsurance to member companies for property loss and business interruption due to fire and explosion from "acts of terrorism" (primarily car bombs) that the insurance and reinsurance markets would not otherwise insure. War Damage Corporation Act 56 Stat. 174 (1942)

Purpose -- To establish WDC as a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC) to provide property owners in the U.S. with reasonable insurance protection against loss or damage from enemy attack or U.S. military resistance during WWII, since basic fire and extended coverages contained a war risk exclusion.

History -- WDC was established in 1941 as the War Insurance Corporation and renamed the WDC in 1942. The WDC program grew from the War Risk Insurance Act of 1914 (38 Stat. 711), which provided insurance for maritime vessels and was amended in 1917 in response to WWI. WDC's charter and all policies expired in 1947. WDC's assets were liquidated by 1949, and in 1957 its stock was transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury for cancellation after all suits against the WDC had been settled.

Coverage -- The Act directs the RFC to empower the WDC to use its funds to provide, through insurance, reinsurance or otherwise, reasonable protection against loss or damage to real or personal property resulting from enemy attack or U.S. military resistance, with such exceptions as WDC, with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce, may deem advisable.

RFC Funding -- The Act directs the RFC, upon the request of the Secretary of Commerce and with the President's approval, to provide funds to WDC and issue obligations sufficient to carry out the Act's purposes. The aggregate amount of funds supplied by the RTC may not exceed $1 billion.

Premiums -- WDC protection would be made available upon the payment of such premium and subject to such terms and conditions as WDC may establish with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce.

Establishment of Rates -- In view of the national interest involved, the Act required WDC to establish from time to time uniform rates for each type of property for which protection was made available. To establish a basis for such uniform rates, the Act required WDC to estimate the average risk of loss on all property of such type in the U.S.

Insurance Industry – Government Intervention in Response to Terrorism

DRAFT -- TIME -- DRAFT

Draft -- Pre-Decisional Staff Working Paper -- Draft

Objectives of Government Intervention

- Ensure that the terrorist attacks of September 11 and the potential for future terrorist attacks have a minimal impact on economic activity by ensuring uninterrupted availability of property and casualty insurance coverage for acts of terrorism.
- Limit any potential government loss exposure to clearly identifiable losses and a fixed amount (or fixed proportion of losses) per incident or underwriting year.
- Limit to market segments that the private sector will not insure.

Principles Guiding Government Intervention

- Encourage private sector initiatives to mitigate risk.
- Preserve private sector risk assessments and pricing to the greatest degree possible.
- Provide for some degree of compensation to the government for its risk exposure.
- Sunset government involvement once the private sector is capable of providing insurance coverage.

Options for Government Intervention

Minimal Government Intervention

- A. Remove regulatory impediments to the development of the risk securitization market
 - Provide federal clarification that catastrophe bonds are a financial vehicle that is not subject to state insurance regulation.
 - Streamline tax and other regulations to encourage creation of on-shore special purpose vehicles used in catastrophe bonds.
 - Provide tax benefits to catastrophe bonds (both for terrorist events and natural disasters).

Pros

- Relies on private capital markets.

Cons

- No evidence that private capital markets could provide the coverage needed quickly enough in the current environment. It suffers from the same information uncertainties inhibiting insurance and reinsurance companies.
- B. Enact tax law changes (in terms of structure or relief) that improve the loss absorbing capacity of insurance companies.

Pros

- Relies on existing private infrastructure.

Cons

- Tax benefits may be insufficient to keep companies in the game.
 - Tax benefits can be hard to remove once in place and have tendency to spread.
- C. Limit types and amount of damage claims that are available from a terrorist incident. Damage claims greater than the cap would be determined through a government based claims process. (Based loosely on Price-Anderson)

Pros

- Makes insurance company risks more manageable.
- Clear approach that limits government exposure.

Cons

- Leaves unknown amount of risk exposure that is uninsured.
- Remaining risk exposure could impair capital markets. For instance, would commercial mortgage lenders extend credit on buildings with potential limits on insurance coverage that leave the lender exposed?

Modest Government Intervention

- D. Provide Federal Reinsurance Coverage to an Industry Terrorism Reinsurance Pool (based on the UK's Pool Re model) – The federal government would provide reinsurance to a terrorism reinsurance pool operated by the insurance industry. The AIA proposal is based in part on the UK's Pool Re model.

Pros

- Has industry support.
- Based on a model that has worked in the UK.
- Provides first-loss coverage through the industry pool.
- Provides mechanism for establishing a broad risk pool and industry, not government, pricing, of insurance.

Cons

- Could take months to make fully operational.
 - Has characteristics of a GSE for insurance, suggesting it would grow over time while further extending the government's ultimate backstop.
 - Puts the government in the role of ensuring no adverse selection.
- E. Provide Federal Reinsurance with Ex-Post Pricing that Shares the Cost of Actual Losses Between Taxpayers and all P&C Insurance Carriers (based on the Price-Anderson Act Model) – For a temporary period, have the federal government offer reinsurance to the pool described in the previous option but do not require the pool to build reserves. Losses from a terrorist incident above some threshold amount would be reinsured by the government through the pool. Actual claims would be initially financed by Treasury and premiums would then be assessed pro rata on the pool participants in the next year (or years). Loss sharing with taxpayers could be established to limit losses put back to the industry.

Pros

- Eliminates idle capital.
- Avoids deadweight losses from mispriced insurance.
- Could quickly be made operational and easily sunset or replaced by more permanent legislation.

Cons

- Ex post pricing makes the insurance free up front, which increases moral hazard.
- Industry (and accountants?) could have difficulty handling a large future premium - unclear how they could/would reserve for such contingencies ex ante.
- Contingent deferred premiums could impact coverage levels and premium costs, thus reducing the amount of insurance available.

- F. Sell Federal Reinsurance Directly to Insurers (similar to disaster insurance proposals) – The federal government would sell federal reinsurance (either with fixed pricing or through an auction process) that would be tied to insurance company losses from terrorist attacks.

Pros

- Ensures availability of P&C insurance coverage.
- Socializes the costs.

Cons

- Requires a government bureaucracy be created to initiate and manage thousands of individual reinsurance contracts with individual carriers.
- Crowds out any possible private market for terrorist reinsurance.
- Difficult to mimic market-based pricing or risk-taking incentives, leading to potential moral hazard problems.

- G. Provide Federal Reinsurance through State-Based Plans (based on FAIR Act Approach) – The FAIR Act (passed in response to riots and civil disorders of the 1960s) set up a structure whereby each state would set up a plan to assure access to insurance requirements. The state plans were reinsured by the federal government through FEMA.

Pros

- Works within the existing state regulatory structure.
- Less bureaucracy than dealing with individual insurance companies.

Cons

- The states need to each set up a plan, and the federal government needs to approve the plans.
- Reinsurance rates must be determined by the government.

Direct Government Intervention

- H. Directly Underwrite and Sell Terrorism Insurance Coverage (based on a War Damages Corporation approach) – Terrorism insurance would be underwritten by a government agency and sold directly to customers by insurance companies.

Pros

- Provides certainty that terrorism risks will be covered.

Cons

- Government pricing of insurance risks.

- Potential for lack of underwriting discipline and increased government risk exposure.
- Requires a government bureaucracy.

I. Provide Direct Government Insurance for Terrorist Attacks Through a Proportional Risk-Sharing Arrangement with the Insurance Industry (based on a Federal Crop Insurance approach) –Under Federal Crop Insurance, the federal government shares in premiums and the risks on a proportional basis with private insurers. The federal government also provides back-up reinsurance based on the financial condition of insurers that participate in the program.

Pros

- Provides certainty that terrorism risks will be covered.
- Private sector involvement may improve pricing and risk management.

Cons

- Government risk sharing (if large enough) may weaken private sector incentives.
- Proportional risk sharing may weaken private sector incentives in comparison to excess loss risk sharing.
- Requires a government bureaucracy.

Other Issues in Providing Government Terrorism Insurance

- Defining a Terrorist Incident – The government (perhaps the Treasury Secretary in consultation with federal law enforcement) should have the final authority in determining if an incident was caused by terrorist activities.
- Limiting Government Claims Above a Certain Dollar Amount – In order to limit the government's liability, provisions that trigger tort reforms when losses exceed a certain threshold, e.g., $10 billion, should be put in place. These provisions would include consolidating all claims in one jurisdiction; and limiting types of damages (e.g., only money damages).

Price-Anderson Act

Purpose -- To encourage the development of the nuclear industry and to ensure prompt and equitable compensation in the event of a nuclear incident.

Coverage -- For licensed nuclear power plants indemnified by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), the Act provides for three tiers of protection against third party "public liability arising from a nuclear incident" (covering "any legal liability" with certain exceptions):

- (1) Private insurance: Each reactor must purchase the maximum private insurance commercially available (currently $200 million).
- (2) Retrospective pooling: If damage from an incident exceeds $200 million, each of the 110 reactors is assessed a pro-rata share of the excess up to $83.9 million, capped at $10 million per year per reactor ($83.9x 110= $9.23 billion pool+ $200 million= $9.43 billion coverage cap to the industry). The NRC may in specified circumstances, on a case-by-case basis, postpone all or part of the annual deferred premium. NRC also may provide reinsurance or guarantee payment of deferred premiums if there is a shortfall. In that event, NRC must advance necessary funds based on a Congressional appropriation or (to the extent approved in appropriation Acts) by issuing obligations to the Treasury.
- (3) Government commitment: If damage exceeds $9.43 billion, the Act contains a moral commitment from Congress to provide full and prompt compensation to the public, based on a plan the President submits.

[For contractors and suppliers indemnified by the Department of Energy, the Act provides full indemnification up to $9.43 billion without private insurance. In effect, the government self-insures against nuclear incidents from contractual activities conducted on its behalf.]

Basis of Liability -- Liability is based on state tort laws of the jurisdiction where the incident occurs. Since many states provide strict liability for ultrahazardous activities, it's possible that liability for a nuclear incident could be established without fault. For "extraordinary nuclear occurrences," the Act requires waiver of certain defenses so that claimants need not prove fault and defendants may not claim charitable or sovereign immunity. In limited situations, the Act supercedes state law with uniform rules such as a limitation on awarding punitive damages or the time in which claims may be brought.

Consolidated Jurisdiction -- Claims are consolidated in a single U.S. District Court where the incident occurs. This channels liability through one court to one source of funds, so there is no need to sue all potential defendants or allocate liability among multiple defendants.

International Coverage -- Damages for injuries suffered in other countries from incidents in the U.S. may be sought in U.S. courts under the Act. The Act cannot control liability exposure in other countries.

Sunset -- The Act sunsets provisions permitting coverage for potential licensees and new contracts. Congress renewed and amended the 1957 Act in 1966, 1969, 1975, and 1988.

Pool Re (Pool Reinsurance Co. Ltd.)

Purpose -- To create an independent, mutual reinsurance company backed by the government that provides reinsurance to member companies for property loss and business interruption due to fire and explosion from "acts of terrorism" (primarily car bombs) that the insurance and reinsurance markets would not otherwise insure. Since its inception in 1993, Pool Re has covered three major losses for a total of 600 million pounds.

Participants -- Member companies are insurers (and Lloyd's syndicates) authorized to underwrite property insurance and business interruption for risks located in England, Wales and Scotland. Currently there are about 200 members, including all of the largest insurers in the U.K. commercial insurance market.

Reinsurance Coverage -- Members are required to offer reinsurance to first line insurers in excess of the retention, which is 100,000 pounds per "head of cover" per incident or 2.5 million pounds per policy per cover per incident. "Heads of cover" include: (1) buildings and completed structures, (2) other property (including contents, engineering contractors and computers), (3) business interruption, and (4) book debts (unclear how many heads of cover there actually are). Insureds have the option of buying protection beyond the 100,000 pounds of coverage, in which case the insurer cedes the additional premium to Pool Re, which assumes the risk.

Government (Retrocession) Liability -- Under the retrocession agreement, the government becomes liable to make payments to Pool Re when Pool Re's financial resources, including a [500 million] pound loan facility, have been exhausted. Members may reinsure only with Pool Re, which agrees to reinsure each member in excess of its retention. The Reinsurance (Acts of Terrorism) Act of 1993 enabled the Secretary for Trade and Industry to enter into the retrocession agreement with Pool Re subject to the consent of the Treasury. Pool Re's only retrocessionaire is the government.

Premiums -- Pool Re is funded through "market" rate premiums set by the government in exchange for the government underwriting excess exposure to the fund. Companies pay rates depending on the locations of risks in different geographic zones -- currently 150 pounds per million pounds of coverage in metropolitan areas, and 30 pounds per million of coverage in rural areas. The retrocession agreement provides that when Pool Re's funds reach one billion pounds, a retrocession premium becomes payable to the government. If Pool Re incurs an underwriting loss (an underwriting year is closed after three years), each member must pay an additional premium equivalent to 10% of the underwriting loss subject to a maximum of 10% of the premium income it paid to Pool Re for the underwriting year in question. If Pool Re makes an underwriting profit, each member is entitled to a 10% return premium.

Certification -- According to the retrocession agreement, the Secretary of State is required to provide a certificate to the effect that an "act of terrorism" has occurred for which indemnity is claimed under a reinsurance agreement.

Dispute resolution -- The agreements provide a dispute resolution procedure in addition to the usual arbitration clause.

FAIR Plans --Fair Access to Insurance Requirements (12 U.S.C. 1749bbb)

Purpose -- To create statewide plans to make essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas following the 1968 riots by providing Federal reinsurance for property losses arising from "riots or civil disorders." The statutory authority terminated in 1985, but 29 states still run FAIR programs.

Role of FEMA -- The FEMA Director, in consultation with a public-private Advisory Board, establishes and carries out the FAIR program, the Federal reinsurance program (including a "National Insurance Development Fund"), and a Federal crime insurance program, described below. FEMA reports to Congress at least annually on its operations under the Act.

Reinsurance -- FEMA is authorized to offer reinsurance from the National Insurance Development Fund to each insurer or pool for property losses arising from "riots or civil disorders." Reinsurance is offered only on "standard lines" of property insurance, as defined.

Premiums -- Insurers pay FEMA reinsurance premiums, determined by FEMA in consultation with the Advisory Board, for deposit into the Fund. FEMA thereafter may adjust premiums after consulting with the Advisory Board and the NAIC. The Fund can borrow from the Treasury to meet its needs.

Reimbursement for Losses -- The Act requires states to pass legislation stating that they will reimburse FEMA for any reinsured losses up to 5% of the aggregate property insurance premiums earned in that state during the previous year, to the extent the losses exceed the amount FEMA received in reinsurance premiums.

Federal Crime Insurance -- FEMA is required to critically review the market availability in each state of burglary and robbery insurance at affordable rates. If there is a critical unavailability, FEMA must make it available at affordable rates through the facilities of the Federal government after consulting with state insurance authorities in estimating what rates are affordable.

Participation in State FAIR Plans -- Participation in a state FAIR plan is required for an insurer to qualify for Federal reinsurance. (Most states also require property insurers to join the FAIR program before getting a certificate of authority to do business.) Each insurer wishing to participate in a FAIR program must cooperate with the appropriate state insurance authority in establishing and carrying out the FAIR plan. Plans are approved and administered by state insurance authorities. Plans must be run in a way that makes essential property insurance more readily available in urban areas. Plans must include various requirements regarding property inspection, reporting of reasons for declining coverage or requiring changes in the property, etc. A potential insured can request coverage under the program after being denied coverage otherwise.

Purpose -- To establish WDC as a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC) to provide property owners in the U.S. with reasonable insurance protection against loss or damage from enemy attack or U.S. military resistance during WWII, since basic fire and extended coverages contained a war risk exclusion.

History -- WDC was established in 1941 as the War Insurance Corporation and renamed the WDC in 1942. It is a subsidiary of the RFC, which was established by Congress in 1940 to aid in the national defense program. The WDC program grew from the War Risk Insurance Act of 1914 (38 Stat. 711), which provided insurance for maritime vessels and was amended in 1917 in response to WWI. WDC's charter and all policies expired in 1947. WDC's assets were liquidated by 1949, and in 1957 its stock was transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury for cancellation after all suits against the WDC had been settled.

Coverage -- The Act directs the RFC to empower the WDC to use its funds to provide, through insurance, reinsurance or otherwise, reasonable protection against loss or damage to real or personal property resulting from enemy attack or U.S. military resistance, with such exceptions as WDC, with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce, may deem advisable.

RFC Funding -- The Act directs the RFC, upon the request of the Secretary of Commerce and with the President's approval, to provide funds to WDC and issue obligations sufficient to carry out the Act's purposes. The aggregate amount of funds supplied by the RTC may not exceed $1 billion.

Premiums -- WDC protection would be made available upon the payment of such premium and subject to such terms and conditions as WDC may establish with the approval of the Secretary of Commerce.

Establishment of Rates -- In view of the national interest involved, the Act required WDC to establish from time to time uniform rates for each type of property for which protection was made available. To establish a basis for such uniform rates, the Act required WDC to estimate the average risk of loss on all property of such type in the U.S.

Limitation of Protection -- Protection was available only in the U.S., its territories and possessions, and other places determined by the President to be under U.S. dominion and control, and not to property on which the Maritime Commission was authorized to provide marine war-risk insurance. WDC, with approval of the Secretary of Commerce, could suspend or restrict protection in areas in consideration of loss of control by the U.S.

Losses Sustained between Dec. 7, 1941 and the Start-Up Date -- WDC was authorized to provide compensation without requiring an insurance contract or payment of premium, adjusting the loss as if a policy were in effect.

How about Ted Olson? He knows the bill, supports it enthusiastically, and knows it to be constitutional from top to bottom. He's also got a unique perspective on September 11, 2001.

Subject: Judiciary Comm. hearing

The Constitution Subcommittee, chaired by Senator Feingold, announced last night that it will hold a hearing next Wednesday, October 3, at 10:00 am entitled "Protecting Constitutional Freedoms in the Face of Terrorism." They have given us as Ranking Member very few details yet, but we can expect the focus to be on the constitutional and privacy issues surrounding the Administration's legislation to fight terrorism.

For witnesses, I am contacting possible professors, such as John Manning. Also, we need to decide if we want to have someone other than a legal expert to appear, such as a victim or broader terrorism expert. If you have any suggestions for witnesses we should call to defend the Administration or other thoughts about the hearing, please contact me. Thanks.

Thanks. We are trying to get to the bottom of the concern, as the only circulation we have done has been at the direction or or in consultation with WH Counsel and Leg Affairs.

Per our morning conference call, those in the WH Counsel's office and the WH Press Office would very much like it if the DOJ would stop distributing drafts of the proposed legislation. They have informed me that the "language is moving" and there are "too many drafts" coming out of the DOJ. They asked me to pass this along to you.

I wasn't sure who to send this too, so I'm hoping that one of you can make use of this information. Thanks, -d.j.

Please email me with day and times you think you will physically be in the office this weekend.

Cell phones and pagers are must. If you have a fax at home please let me know.

Apparently this is going to be a busy weekend and being able to find you at all times will save a lot of time.

If you know that you are going to be "unavailable" during certain times during the day please let me know so I don't even try to hunt you down and smoke you out of your....oh - sorry- got carried away..." You get my drift.

At 3:00 Monday, a meeting about a campaign party will be held in my office. I think the general idea is to put together a big program in Austin; it may be the party that the campaign workers were unable to have last year. Toner, Jack Oliver, Mindy Tucker and Camille Wellborn are expected. Do you want to come to the meeting?

I talked separately to Carl Esbeck and OLC this morning about this; short answer is no; explanation is rather obvious: OLC says it has not done anything on it since Sept. 11 when they were finalizing it. They told me today they can and will have something by Thursday.

Brett,

Just got off the phone with Pat Philben, one of the Deputies in OLC, and he said he spoke with you this morning. He says told you he hopes to have the answers to your Aug. 15 request by the end of this week. The answers may affect what we do with implementation of Charitable Choice Act of 1996, CSBGA of 1998, and SAMHSA I and II of 2000. More immediately, the letter may affect H.R. 7 in the Senate.

All --

Here is a new draft of the Admin. bill and a blackline against an old draft. This was sent to Leahy staff a few minutes ago. Please note that it is a working draft, and we have not yet compared it to the draft from Sen. Leahy that we received at 8 pm tonight.

107TH CONGRESS

1ST SESSION

H.R. _____

To combat terrorism and defend the Nation against terrorist acts, and for other purposes.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

September ___, 2001

A BILL

To combat terrorism and defend the Nation against terrorist acts, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SEC. 1. SHORT TITLE.

This act may be cited as the "Anti-Terrorism Act of 2001."

SEC. 2. TABLE OF CONTENTS.

The following is the table of contents for this Act:

Sec. 1. Short title.

Sec. 2. Table of contents.

Sec. 3. Construction; severability.

Sec. 4. Sense of Congress condemning discrimination against Arab and Muslim Americans.

Title I--INTELLIGENCE GATHERING

Subtitle A--Electronic Surveillance

Sec. 101. Modification of authorities relating to use of pen registers and trap and trace devices.

Sec. 102. Seizure of voice-mail messages pursuant to warrants.

Sec. 103. Authorized disclosure.

Sec. 104. Savings provision.

Sec. 106. Interception of computer trespasser communications.

Sec. 107. Scope of subpoenas for records of electronic communications.

Sec. 108. Nationwide service of search warrants for electronic evidence.

Sec. 109. Clarification of scope.

Sec. 110. Emergency disclosure of electronic communications to protect life and limb.

Sec. 111. Terrorism as a predicate act for authorization of wiretaps.

Sec. 112. Authority to intercept wire, oral, and electronic communications relating to computer fraud and abuse.

Subtitle B--Foreign Intelligence Surveillance and Other Information

Sec. 151. Period of orders of electronic surveillance of non-United States persons under foreign intelligence surveillance.

Sec. 152. Multi-point authority.

Sec. 153. Foreign intelligence information.

intelligence information under this title may consult with Federal law enforcement officers to coordinate efforts to investigate or protect against—

- (1) actual or potential attack or other grave hostile acts of a foreign power or an agent of a foreign power;
- (2) sabotage or international terrorism by a foreign power or an agent of a foreign power; or
- (3) clandestine intelligence activities by an intelligence service or network of a foreign power or by an agent of a foreign power.

"(ii) Coordination authorized under paragraph (i) of this subsection shall not preclude the certification required by section 1804(a)(7)(B) or the entry of an order under section 1805."

(c) Section 1825 of title 50, United States Code is amended to add the following subsection:

"(k)(ii) Federal officers who conduct physical searches to acquire foreign intelligence information under this title may consult with Federal law enforcement officers to coordinate efforts to investigate or protect against—

- "(1) actual or potential attack or other grave hostile acts of a foreign power or an agent of a foreign power;
- "(2) sabotage or international terrorism by a foreign power or an agent of a foreign power; or
- "(3) clandestine intelligence activities by an intelligence service or network of a foreign power or by an agent of a foreign power.

"(ii) Coordination authorized under paragraph (i) of this subsection shall not preclude the certification required by section 1823(a)(7) or the entry of an order under Section 1824."

(d) Title of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978 (50 U.S.C. 1801 et seq.) Is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"Construction with interception authority under Chapter 119 of title 18, United States Code.

"Sec. 112. Nothing in this title shall be construed to alter, affect, or prohibit the authority to intercept communications under chapter 119 of title 18, United States Code, with respect to any wire, oral or electronic communication that is subject to electronic surveillance under provisions of this title."

SEC. 154. FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE INFORMATION SHARING.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, it shall be lawful for foreign intelligence information obtained as part of a criminal investigation (including, without limitation, information subject to Rule 6(e) of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure and information obtained pursuant to chapter 119 of title 18, United States Code) to be provided to any federal law enforcement, intelligence, national security, national defense, protective or immigration personnel, and to the President and Vice President of the United States.

SEC. 155. PEN REGISTER AND TRAP AND TRACE AUTHORITY.

(a) Section 402 of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978 (50 U.S.C. 1842) is amended —

(1) in subsection (a)(1), by striking "for any investigation to gather foreign intelligence information or information concerning international terrorism" and inserting "for any investigation to protect against international terrorism or clandestine intelligence activities, provided that such an investigation of a United States person is not conducted solely upon the basis of activities protected by the First Amendment of the Constitution of the United States."

(2) by amending subsection (c)(2) to read as follows:

"(2) a certification by the applicant that the information likely to be obtained from the telephone line to which the pen register or trap and trace device is to be attached, or the communication instrument or device to be covered by the pen register or trap and trace device is relevant to an ongoing investigation to protect against international terrorism or clandestine intelligence activities, provided that such an investigation of a United States person is not conducted solely upon the basis of activities protected by the First Amendment of the Constitution of the United States.;

(3) by striking paragraph (c)(3); and

(4) by amending subsection (d)(2)(A) to read as follows:

"(A) shall specify—

"(i) the identity, if known, of the person who is the subject of the investigation;

"(ii) the identity, if known, of the person to whom is leased or in whose name is listed the telephone line or other facility to which the pen register or trap and trace device is to be attached or applied;

"(iii) the attributes of the communications to which the order applies, such as the number or other identifier, and, if known, the location of the telephone line or other facility to which the pen register or trap and trace device is to be attached or applied and, in the case of a trap and trace device, the geographic limits of the trap and trace order."

(b) Section 403 of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978 (50 U.S.C. 1843) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a), by striking "foreign intelligence information or information concerning international terrorism" and inserting "information concerning international terrorism or clandestine intelligence activities, provided that such information of a United States person is not being gathered solely upon the basis of activities protected by the First Amendment of the Constitution of the United States";

(2) in subsection (b)(1), by striking "foreign intelligence information or information concerning international terrorism" and inserting "information concerning international terrorism or clandestine intelligence activities, provided that such information of a United States person is not being gathered solely upon the basis of activities protected by the First Amendment of the Constitution of the United States".

SEC. 156. BUSINESS RECORDS.

The Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act of 1978 is amended—

(1) in section 501 (50 U.S.C. 1861), by amending the same to read as follows:

"§ 501. Administrative subpoenas.

"(a) In any investigation to gather foreign intelligence information or an investigation concerning international terrorism, which investigation is being conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation under such guidelines as the Attorney General may approve pursuant to Executive Order 12333 (or a successor order), the Attorney General may, by administrative subpoena, require the production of any tangible things (including books, records, papers, documents, and other items) that are relevant to the investigation.

"(b) A person who, in good faith, produces tangible things under a subpoena issued pursuant to this section shall not be liable to any other person for such production. Such production shall not be deemed to constitute a waiver of any privilege in any other proceeding or context."; and

(2) by striking section 502 (50 U.S.C. 1862).

SEC. 157. MISCELLANEOUS NATIONAL-SECURITY AUTHORITIES.

- (a) Section 2709(b) of title 18, United States Code, is amended—
 - (1) in the matter preceding paragraph (1), by inserting "at Bureau headquarters or a Special Agent in Charge in a Bureau field office designated by the Director" after "Assistant Director";
 - (2) in paragraph (1)—
 - (A) by striking "in a position not lower than Deputy Assistant Director"; and
 - (B) by striking "made that" and all that follows and inserting the following: "made that the name, address, length of service, and toll billing records sought are relevant to an authorized foreign counterintelligence investigation to protect against international terrorism or clandestine intelligence activities, provided that such an investigation of a United States person is not conducted solely upon the basis of activities protected by the First Amendment of the Constitution of the United States"; and
 - (3) in paragraph (2)—
 - (A) by striking "in a position not lower than Deputy Assistant Director"; and
 - (B) by striking "made that" and all that follows and inserting the following: "made that the information sought is relevant to an authorized foreign counterintelligence investigation to protect against international terrorism or clandestine intelligence activities, provided that such an investigation of a United States person is not conducted solely upon the basis of activities protected by the First Amendment of the Constitution of the United States"; and
- (b) Section 1114(a)(5)(A) of the Right to Financial Privacy Act of 1978 (12 U.S.C. 3414(a)(5)(A)) is amended—
 - (1) by inserting "in a position not lower than Deputy Assistant Director at Bureau headquarters or a Special Agent in Charge in a Bureau field office designated by the Director" after "designee"; and

TITLE II—IMMIGRATION

SEC. 201. DEFINITIONS RELATING TO TERRORISM.

The Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 is amended—

(a) in Section 212(a)(3) (8 U.S.C. 1182)—

(1) in paragraph (B) —

(A) in clause (i) —

(i) by amending paragraph (IV) to read as follows:

"(IV) is a representative (as defined in clause (iv)) of : (a) a terrorist organization as designated by the Secretary under section 219 or paragraph (v)(ii), or (b) a political, social or other similar group whose public endorsement of acts of terrorist activity the Secretary has determined undermines U.S. efforts to reduce or eliminate terrorist activities, or";

(ii) by amending paragraph (V) to read as follows:

"(V) is a member of a terrorist organization as designated by the Secretary under section 219 or paragraph (v)(ii) paragraph, which the alien knows or should have known is a terrorist organization, or" ; and

(iii) by adding new paragraphs (VI) and (VII) to read as follows:

"(VI) has used his or her position of prominence within any country to endorse or espouse terrorist activity, or persuade others to support terrorist activity or a foreign terrorist organization, in a way that the Secretary of State has determined undermines U.S. efforts to reduce or eliminate terrorist activities; or

(VII) (a) is the spouse or child of an alien who is inadmissible under this section, if the activity causing the alien to be found inadmissible occurred within the last 5 years,"

(B) Exceptions for certain spouses and children. Clause (VII)(a) shall not apply to a spouse or child :

- (i) who did not know or should not reasonably have known of the activity causing the alien to be found inadmissible under this section; or
- (ii) whom the consular officer or the Attorney General has reasonable grounds to believe has renounced the activity causing the alien to be found inadmissible under this section";

(B) in clause (ii)--

(i) by inserting "it had been" before "committed in the United States"; and

(ii) by replacing "or firearm" with ", firearm, or other weapon or dangerous device";

(C) by amending clause (iii) to read as follows:

"(iii) Engage in terrorist activity defined

"As used in this chapter, the term "engage in terrorist activity" means, in an individual capacity or as a member of an organization--

"(I) to commit or to incite to commit, under circumstances indicating an intention to cause death or serious bodily injury, an act of terrorist activity;

"(II) to prepare or plan a terrorist activity;

"(III) to gather information on potential targets for terrorist activity;

"(IV) to solicit funds or other things of value for terrorist activity or for any terrorist organization;

"(V) to solicit any individual for membership in a terrorist organization, a government that supports terrorism, or to engage in a terrorist activity; or

"(VI) otherwise to commit an act that the actor knows, or reasonably should know, affords material support (including, without limitation, a safe house, transportation, communications, funds, transfer of funds or other material financial benefit, false documentation or identification, weapons (including, without limitation, chemical, biological, and radiological weapons), explosives, or training), to any organization that the actor knows, or reasonably should know, is a terrorist organization, or to any individual whom the actor knows, or reasonably should know, has committed or plans to commit any terrorist activity.

"Provided, however, that this clause shall not apply to any material support the alien afforded to an organization or individual who has committed terrorist activity if the Secretary, after consultation with the Attorney General, or the Attorney General, after consultation with the Secretary, concludes in his sole unreviewable discretion, that this clause should not apply."; and

(D) by adding a new clause after clause (iv) to read as follows:

"(v) Terrorist organization defined

"As used in clause i(VI) and clause (iii), the term "terrorist organization" includes but is not limited to an organization—

(i) designated under Section 219; or

(ii) otherwise designated by the Secretary of State, in consultation with or upon the request of the Attorney General, as a terrorist organization for purposes of this section.

Any such designation shall be controlling in all administrative and judicial proceedings, including actions under 28 U.S.C. 2241, and shall be conclusive evidence that the organization is a terrorist organization. With respect to an alien who was present in the United States at the time the act was committed, such designation shall also be conclusive evidence that the alien should have known that the organization was a terrorist organization unless the alien demonstrates that he acted prior to the designation and that he should not have known that it was a terrorist organization. With respect to other aliens, such designation shall be conclusive evidence that the alien should have known that the organization was a terrorist organization unless the alien demonstrates that he acted prior to the enactment of this clause and that he should not have known that he was supporting terrorist activity. In determining whether an organization is a terrorist organization in cases where no designation has been made, it shall not be considered that the organization also engages in nonterrorist activity."; and

(2) by adding a new subparagraph (F) as follows:

"(F) Any alien who the Secretary of State, after consultation with the Attorney General, or the Attorney General, after consultation with the Secretary of State, determines has been associated with a terrorist organization and intends while in the United States to engage solely, principally, or incidentally in activities that could endanger the welfare, safety, or security of the United States is inadmissible.";

(b) in Section 219(a) (8 U.S.C. 1189(a))--

(A) in paragraph (1)(B), by inserting "or terrorism (as defined in section 140(d)(2) of the State Department Authorization Act, Public Law 100-204 (22 U.S.C. 2656f(d)(2)) or retains the capability and intent to engage in terrorist activity or terrorism)" after "212(a)(3)(B))";

(B) in paragraph (1)(C), by inserting "or terrorism" after "terrorist activity";

(C) by amending paragraph (2)(A) to read as follows:

"(A) NOTICE.—

"(i) Seven days before making a designation under this subsection, the Secretary shall, by classified communication, notify the Speaker and

Minority Leader of the House of Representatives, the President pro tempore, Majority Leader, and Minority Leader of the Senate, and the members of the relevant committees, in writing, of the intent to designate an organization under this subsection, together with the findings made under paragraph (1) with respect to that organization, and the factual basis therefor.

"(ii) The Secretary shall publish the designation in the Federal Register seven days after providing the notification under clause (i).";

(D) in paragraph (2)(B)(i), by replacing "subparagraph (A)" with "subparagraph (A)(ii)";

(E) in paragraph (2)(C), by replacing "paragraph (2)" with "paragraph (2)(A)(i)";

(F) in paragraph (3)(B), by replacing "subsection (c)" with "subsection (b)";

(G) in paragraph (4)(B), by inserting after the first sentence the following:

"The Secretary also may redesignate such organization at the end of any 2-year redesignation period (but not sooner than 60 days prior to the termination of such period) for an additional 2-year period upon a finding that the relevant circumstances described in paragraph (1) still exist. Any redesignation shall be effective immediately following the end of the prior 2-year designation or redesignation period unless a different effective date is provided in such redesignation.";

(H) in paragraph (6)(A),

(i) by inserting "or a redesignation made under paragraph (4)(B)" after "paragraph (1)";

(ii) in clause (i), by

(I) inserting "or redesignation" after "designation" the first time it appears; and

(II) striking "of the designation"; and

(iii) in clause (ii), by striking "of the designation";

(I) in paragraph (6)(B), by

(i) replacing "through (4)" with "and (3)"; and

(ii) inserting the following new sentence at the end:

"Any revocation shall take effect on the date specified in the revocation or upon publication in the Federal Register if no effective date is specified.";

(J) in paragraph (7), by inserting ", or the revocation of a redesignation under paragraph (6)," after "paragraph (5) or (6)"; and

(K) in paragraph (8), by

(i) replacing "paragraph (1)(B)" with "paragraph (2)(B), or if a redesignation under this subsection has become effective under paragraph (4)(B)";

(ii) inserting "or an alien in a removal proceeding" after "criminal action"; and

(iii) inserting "or redesignation" before "as a defense".

SEC. 204. APPLICABILITY.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the amendments made by this title shall apply to all aliens, regardless of whether any such aliens entered the United States before or after the date of the enactment of this Act, or whether any relevant activity by any such aliens occurred before or after such date, and shall apply to all past, pending, or future deportation, exclusion, removal, or other immigration proceedings.

SEC. 205. MULTILATERAL CO-OPERATION AGAINST TERRORISTS.

Section 222(f) of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 is amended—

(A) by inserting ": (1)" after "except that"; and

(B) by inserting the following before the period at the end:

"and (2) the Secretary of State in his discretion and on the basis of reciprocity may provide to a foreign government information in the Department of State's computerized visa lookout database and, when necessary and appropriate, other records covered by this section related to information in the database:

(A) with regard to individual aliens, at any time on a case-by-case basis for the purpose of preventing, investigating or punishing, acts that would constitute a crime in the United States, including, but not limited to, terrorism or trafficking in controlled substances, persons or illicit weapons; or

(B) with regard to any or all aliens in the database, pursuant to such conditions as he shall establish in an agreement with another government in which that government agrees to use such information and records for the purposes described in paragraph (A) or to deny visas to persons who would be inadmissible to the United States."

SEC. 206. INTER-AGENCY DATA SHARING.

(a) Section 105 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1105), is amended—

(1) in the caption by adding "and Data Exchange" after "Officers";

(2) by designating all of section 105 as subsection (a);

(3) in subsection (a) as so designated, by inserting the words "and border" after the word "internal" in the second place that it appears; and

(4) by adding new subsections (b), (c) and (d) as follows:

"(b) The Attorney General and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide the Department of State and the Service with access to the criminal history record information contained in the National Crime Information Center's (NCIC) Interstate Identification Index (NCIC-III), Wanted Persons File, and to any other files maintained by the National Crime Information Center that may be mutually agreed upon by the Attorney General and the agency to be provided access for the purpose of determining whether a visa applicant or applicant for admission has a criminal history record indexed in any such file. Such access shall be provided by means of extracts of the records for placement in the automated visa lookout or other appropriate database, and shall be provided without any fee or charge. The Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide periodic updates of the extracts at intervals mutually agreed upon. Upon receipt of such updated extracts, the reviewing agency shall make corresponding updates to its database and destroy previously provided extracts. Such access to any extract does not entitle the Department of State to obtain the full content of the corresponding automated criminal history record. To obtain the full content of a criminal history record, the Department of State shall submit the applicant's fingerprints and any appropriate fingerprint processing fee authorized by law to the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"(c) The provision of the extracts mentioned in subsection (b) may be reconsidered by the Attorney General and the receiving agency upon the development and deployment of a more cost-effective and efficient means of sharing the information.

"(d) For purposes of administering this Section, the Department of State shall, prior to receiving access to National Crime Information Center data, promulgate final regulations to establish the conditions for the use of the information received from the Federal Bureau of

Subtitle A--Electronic Surveillance

SEC. 101. MODIFICATION OF AUTHORITIES RELATING TO USE OF PEN REGISTERS AND TRAP AND TRACE DEVICES.

(a) General Limitation on Use by Governmental Agencies.-Section 3121(c) of title 18, United States Code, is amended-

(1) by inserting "or trap and trace device" after "pen register";

(2) by inserting "`, routing, addressing," after "dialing"; and

(3) by striking "call processing" and inserting "the processing and transmitting of wire and electronic communications".

(b) Issuance of Orders.-

(1) In general.-Subsection (a) of section 3123 of title 18, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"(a) In General.-

(1) Upon an application made under section 3122(a)(1), the court shall enter an ex parte order authorizing the installation and use of a pen register or trap and trace device anywhere within the United States, if the court finds that the attorney for the Government has certified to the court that the information likely to be obtained by such installation and use is relevant to an ongoing criminal investigation. The order shall, upon service thereof, apply to any person or entity providing wire or electronic communication service in the United States whose assistance may facilitate the execution of the order.

"(2) Upon an application made under section 3122(a)(2), the court shall enter an ex parte order authorizing the installation and use of a pen register or trap and trace device within the jurisdiction of the court, if the court finds that the State law-enforcement or investigative officer has certified to the court that the information likely to be obtained by such installation and use is relevant to an ongoing criminal investigation."

(2) Contents of order.-Subsection (b)(1) of section 3123 of title 18, United States Code, is amended-

(A) in subparagraph (A)-

(i) by inserting "or other facility" after "telephone line"; and

(ii) by inserting before the semicolon at the end "or applied"; and

(B) by striking subparagraph (C) and inserting the following new subparagraph

(4) by adding at the end the following:

"(b)(1) Upon the promulgation of final regulations under subsection (d), the Attorney General and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide the Department of State and the Service access to the criminal record information contained in the National Crime Information Center's Interstate Identification Index (NCIC-III), Wanted Persons File, and to any other files maintained by the National Crime Information Center that may be mutually agreed upon by the Attorney General and the agency receiving the access, for the purposes of determining whether or not a visa applicant or applicant for admission has a criminal history record indexed in any such file.

"(2) Such access shall be provided by means of extracts of the records for placement in the automated visa lookout or other appropriate database, and shall be provided without any fee or charge.

"(3) The Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide periodic updates of the extracts at intervals mutually agreed upon with the agency receiving access. Upon receipt of such updated extracts, the receiving agency shall make corresponding updates to its database and destroy previously provided extracts.

"(4) Access to an extract does not entitle the Department of State or the Service to obtain the full content of the corresponding automated criminal history record. To obtain the full content of a criminal history record, the Department of State or the Service shall submit the applicant's fingerprints and any appropriate fingerprint processing fee authorized by law to the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"(c) The provision of the extracts described in subsection (b) may be reconsidered by the Attorney General and the receiving agency upon the development and deployment of a more cost-effective and efficient means of sharing information.

"(d) For purposes of administering this section, the Department of State and the Service shall, prior to receiving access to the NCIC data but not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this subsection, promulgate final regulations—

"(1) to implement procedures for the taking of fingerprints; and

"(2) to establish the conditions for the use of the information received from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in order—

"(A) to limit the dissemination of such information;

"(B) to ensure that such information is used solely to determine whether or not to issue a visa to an alien or to admit an alien to the United States;

"(C) to ensure the security, confidentiality, and destruction of such information; and

"(D) to protect any privacy rights of individuals who are subjects of such information."

(b) REPORTING REQUIREMENT.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Attorney General and the Secretary of State jointly shall report to Congress on the implementation of the amendments made by this section.

(c) STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section, or in any other law, shall be construed to limit the authority of the Attorney General or Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to provide access to the criminal history record information contained in the National Crime Information Center's (NCIC) Interstate Identification Index (NCIC-III), or to any other information maintained by the NCIC, to any Federal agency or officer authorized to enforce or administer the immigration laws of the United States, for the purpose of such

(B) Exceptions for certain spouses and children. Clause (VII)(a) shall not apply to a spouse or child :

- (i) who did not know or should not reasonably have known of the activity causing the alien to be found inadmissible under this section; or
- (ii) whom the consular officer or the Attorney General has reasonable grounds to believe has renounced the activity causing the alien to be found inadmissible under this section";

(B) in clause (ii)–

(i) by inserting "it had been" before "committed in the United States"; and

(ii) by replacing "or firearm" with ", firearm, or other weapon or dangerous device";

(C) by amending clause (iii) to read as follows:

"(iii) Engage in terrorist activity defined

"As used in this chapter, the term "engage in terrorist activity" means, in an individual capacity or as a member of an organization--

"(I) to commit or to incite to commit, under circumstances indicating an intention to cause death or serious bodily injury, an act of terrorist activity;

"(II) to prepare or plan a terrorist activity;

"(III) to gather information on potential targets for terrorist activity;

"(IV) to solicit funds or other things of value for terrorist activity or for any terrorist organization;

"(V) to solicit any individual for membership in a terrorist organization, a government that supports terrorism, or to engage in a terrorist activity; or

"(VI) otherwise to commit an act that the actor knows, or reasonably should know, affords material support (including, without limitation, a safe house, transportation, communications, funds, transfer of funds or other material financial benefit, false

"Provided, however, that this clause shall not ~~be construed~~ apply to ~~encompass~~ any material support the alien afforded to an organization or individual who ~~had previously~~ has committed terrorist activity if the alien ~~establishes by clear and convincing evidence that such support was afforded only after that individual had permanently and publicly renounced and rejected the use of, and had ceased to commit or support, any terrorist~~ Secretary, after consultation with the Attorney General, or the Attorney General, after consultation with the Secretary, concludes in his sole unreviewable discretion, that this clause should not apply."; and

(D) by adding a new clause after clause (iv) to read as follows:

"(v) Terrorist organization defined

"As used in clause i(VI) and clause (iii), the term "terrorist organization" includes but is not limited to an organization—

- (i) designated under Section 219; or
- (ii) otherwise designated by the Secretary of State, in consultation with or upon the request of the Attorney General, as a terrorist organization for purposes of this section.

Any such designation shall be controlling in all administrative and judicial proceedings, including actions under 28 U.S.C. 2241, and shall be conclusive evidence that the organization is a terrorist organization. With respect to an alien who was present in the United States at the time the act was committed, such designation shall also be conclusive evidence that the alien should have known that the organization was a terrorist organization unless the alien demonstrates that he acted prior to the designation and that he should not have known that it was a terrorist organization. With respect to other aliens, such designation shall be conclusive evidence that the alien should have known that the organization was a terrorist organization unless the alien demonstrates that he acted prior to the enactment of this clause and that he should not have known that he was supporting terrorist activity. In determining whether an organization is a terrorist organization in cases where no designation has been made, it shall not be considered that the organization also engages in nonterrorist activity."; and

(2) by adding a new subparagraph (F) as follows:

"Any

"(F) Any alien who the Secretary of State, after consultation with the Attorney General, or the Attorney General, after consultation with the Secretary of State, determines has been associated with a terrorist organization and intends while in the United States to engage solely, principally, or incidentally in activities that could endanger the welfare, safety, or security of the United States is inadmissible.";

(b) in Section 219(a) (8 U.S.C. 1189(a))--

(A) in ~~subparagraph~~-paragraph (1)(B), by inserting "or terrorism (as defined in section 140(d)(2) of the State Department Authorization Act, Public Law 100-204 (22 U.S.C. 2656f(d)(2)) or retains the capability and intent to engage in ~~terrorist~~terrorist activity or terrorism)" after "212(a)(3)(B))";

(B) in ~~subparagraph~~-paragraph (1)(C), by inserting "or terrorism" after "terrorist activity";

(C) by amending ~~subparagraph~~-paragraph (2)(A) to read as follows:

"(A) NOTICE.—

"(i) Seven days before making a designation under this subsection, the Secretary shall, by classified communication, notify the Speaker and Minority Leader of the House of Representatives, the President pro tempore, Majority Leader, and Minority Leader of the Senate, and the members of the relevant committees, in writing, of the intent to designate an organization under this subsection, together with the findings made under paragraph (1) with respect to that organization, and the factual basis therefor.

"(ii) The Secretary shall publish the designation in the Federal Register seven days after providing the notification under clause (i).";

(D) in ~~clause~~-paragraph (2)(B)(i), by replacing "subparagraph (A)" with "subparagraph (A)(ii)";

(E) in ~~subparagraph~~-paragraph (2)(C), by replacing "paragraph (2)" with "paragraph (2)(A)(i)";

(F) in ~~subparagraph~~-paragraph (3)(B), by replacing "subsection (c)" with "subsection (b)";

(G) in ~~subparagraph~~-paragraph (4)(B), by inserting after the first sentence the following:

"The Secretary also may redesignate such organization at the end of any 2-year redesignation period (but not sooner than 60 days prior to the termination of such period) for an additional 2-year period upon a finding that the relevant circumstances described in paragraph (1) still exist. Any redesignation shall be effective immediately following the end of the prior 2-year designation or redesignation period unless a different effective date is provided in such redesignation.";

(H) in ~~subparagraph~~ paragraph (6)(A),

(i) by inserting "or a redesignation made under paragraph (4)(B)" after "paragraph (1)";

(ii) in clause (i), by

(I) inserting "or redesignation" after "designation" the first time it appears; and

(II) striking "of the designation"; and

(iii) in clause (ii), by striking "of the designation";

(I) in ~~subparagraph~~ paragraph (6)(B), by

(i) replacing "through (4)" with "and (3)"; and

(ii) inserting the following new sentence at the end:

"Any revocation shall take effect on the date specified in the revocation or upon publication in the Federal Register if no effective date is specified.";

(J) in paragraph (7), by inserting ", or the revocation of a redesignation under paragraph (6)," after "paragraph (5) or (6)"; and

(K) in paragraph (8), by

(i) replacing "paragraph (1)(B)" with "paragraph (2)(B), or if a redesignation under this subsection has become effective under paragraph (4)(B)";

~~(1) by redesignating subsection (e) as (f) and by inserting before the same the following new subsection:~~

~~"(e) Detention of Terrorist Aliens.--~~

~~"(1) Custody.--The Attorney General shall take into custody any alien who is certified under paragraph (3).~~

~~"(2) Release.--The Attorney General shall maintain custody of any such alien until such alien is removed from the United States. Such custody shall be maintained irrespective of any relief from removal the alien may be eligible for or granted until the Attorney General deems such alien is no longer an alien who may be certified pursuant to paragraph (3).~~

~~"(3) Certification.--The Attorney General may certify an alien to be an alien he has reason to believe may commit, further, or facilitate acts described in section 237(a)(4)(A)(i), (A)(iii), or (B), or engage in any other activity that endangers the national security of the United States."~~

~~SEC. 203. HABEAS CORPUS AND JUDICIAL REVIEW.~~

~~Section 236 of the Immigration and Nationality Act is amended by adding the following new subsection (g):~~

~~"(g) Habeas corpus. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, including section 2241 of title 28, United States Code, judicial review of any issue arising out of the detention of any alien under section 236(e) of this Act may be had only by petition for~~ ~~writ of habeas corpus in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, without regard to where the alien is detained."~~

SEC. 204. APPLICABILITY.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the amendments made by this title shall apply to all aliens, regardless of whether any such aliens entered the United States before or after the date of the enactment of this Act, or whether any relevant activity by any such aliens occurred before or after such date, and shall apply to all past, pending, or future deportation, exclusion, removal, or other immigration proceedings.

SEC. 205. MULTILATERAL CO-OPERATION AGAINST TERRORISTS.

Section 222(f) of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 is amended—

(A) by inserting ": (1)" after "except that"; and

(B) by inserting the following before the period at the end:

"and (2) the Secretary of State in his discretion and on the basis of reciprocity may provide to a foreign government information in the Department of State's computerized visa lookout database and, when necessary and appropriate, other records covered by this section related to information in the database:

(A) with regard to individual aliens, at any time on a case-by-case basis for the purpose of preventing, investigating or punishing, acts that would constitute a crime in the United States, including, but not limited to, terrorism or trafficking in controlled substances, persons or illicit weapons; or

(B) with regard to any or all aliens in the database, pursuant to such conditions as he shall establish in an agreement with another government in which that government agrees to use such information and records for the purposes described in paragraph (A) or to deny visas to persons who would be inadmissible to the United States."

SEC. 206. INTER-AGENCY DATA SHARING.

(a) Section 105 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1105), is amended—

(1) in the caption by adding "and Data Exchange" after "~~Officers~~" "Officers";

(2) by designating all of section 105 as subsection (a);

(3) in subsection (a) as so designated, by inserting the words "and border" after the word "internal" in the second place that it appears; and

(4) by adding new subsections (b), (c) and (d) as follows:

"(b) The Attorney General and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide the Department of State and the Service with access to the criminal history record information contained in the National Crime Information Center's (NCIC) Interstate Identification Index (NCIC-III), Wanted Persons File, and to any other files maintained by the National Crime Information Center that may be mutually agreed upon by the Attorney General and the agency to be provided access for the purpose of determining whether a visa applicant or applicant for admission has a criminal history record indexed in any such file. Such access shall be provided by means of extracts of the records for placement in the automated visa lookout or other appropriate database, and shall be provided without any fee or charge. The Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide periodic updates of the extracts at intervals mutually agreed upon. Upon receipt of such updated extracts, the reviewing agency shall make corresponding updates to its database and destroy previously provided extracts. Such access to any extract does not entitle the Department of State to obtain the full content of the corresponding automated criminal history record. To obtain the full content of a criminal history record, the Department of State shall submit the applicant's fingerprints and any appropriate fingerprint processing fee authorized by law to the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"(c) The provision of the extracts mentioned in subsection (b) may be reconsidered by the Attorney General and the receiving agency upon the development and deployment of a more cost-effective and efficient means of sharing the information.

"(d) For purposes of administering this Section, the Department of State shall, prior to receiving access to National Crime Information Center data, promulgate final regulations to establish the conditions for the use of the information received from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in order-

"(1) to limit the redissemination of such information;

"(2) to ensure that such information is used solely to determine whether to issue a visa to an individual;

"(3) to ensure the security, confidentiality and destruction of such information; and

"(4) to protect any privacy rights of individuals who are subjects of such information."

(b) Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit such authority as the Attorney General or the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation may have pursuant to other law (and procedures thereunder) to provide access to the criminal history record information contained in the National Crime Information Center's (NCIC) Interstate Identification Index (NCIC-III), or to any other information maintained by the NCIC, to any Federal agency or officer authorized to enforce or administer the immigration laws of the United States for the purpose of such enforcement or administration, upon terms that are consistent with such other law.

"(9)- With respect to offenses committed by or against a United States national, as defined in Section 1203(c) of this title, (A) the premises of United States diplomatic, consular, military or other U.S. Government -missions or entities in foreign states, including the buildings, parts of buildings, and land appurtenant or ancillary thereto or used for purposes of those missions or entities, irrespective of ownership, and (B) residences in foreign states and the land appurtenant or ancillary thereto, irrespective of ownership, used for purposes of those missions or entities or used by United States personnel assigned to those missions or entities, provided that nothing in this subsection shall be deemed to supercede any treaty or international agreement in force on the date of enactment of this subsection with which this subsection conflicts.

This paragraph does not apply with respect to an offense committed by a person described in Section 3261(a) of this title. Nothing in this paragraph shall be deemed to supercede any treaty or international agreement in force with which this paragraph conflicts.

SEC. 357. PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS FOR GOVERNMENT ATTORNEYS.

(a) Professional Standards for Government Attorneys.-Section 530B of title 28, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

``§530B. Professional Standards for Government Attorneys

``(a) Definitions.-In this section:

``(1) Government attorney.-The term 'Government attorney'-

``(A) means the Attorney General; the Deputy Attorney General; the Solicitor General; the Associate Attorney General; the head of, and any attorney employed in, any division, office, board, bureau, component, or agency of the Department of Justice; any United States Attorney; any Assistant United States Attorney; any Special Assistant to the Attorney General or Special Attorney appointed under section 515; any Special Assistant United States Attorney appointed under section 543 who is authorized to conduct criminal or civil law enforcement investigations or proceedings on behalf of the United States; any other attorney employed by the Department of Justice who is authorized to conduct criminal or civil law enforcement proceedings on behalf of the United States; any independent counsel, or employee of such counsel, appointed under chapter 40; and any outside special counsel, or employee of such counsel, as may be duly appointed by the Attorney General; and

``(B) does not include any attorney employed as an investigator or other law enforcement agent by the Department of Justice who is not authorized to represent the United States in criminal or civil law enforcement litigation or to supervise such proceedings.

``(2) State.-The term 'State' includes a Territory and the District of Columbia.

``(b) Choice of Law.-Subject to any uniform national rule prescribed by the Supreme Court under chapter 131, the standards of professional responsibility that apply to a Government attorney with respect to the attorney's work for the Government shall be-

``(1) for conduct in connection with a proceeding in or before a court, or conduct reasonably intended to lead to a proceeding in or before a court, the standards of professional responsibility established by the rules and decisions of the court in or before which the proceeding is brought or is intended to be brought;

"(2) for conduct in connection with a grand jury proceeding, or conduct reasonably intended to lead to a grand jury proceeding, the standards of professional responsibility established by the rules and decisions of the court under whose authority the grand jury was or will be empaneled; and

``(3) for all other conduct, the standards of professional responsibility established by the rules and decisions of the Federal district court for the judicial district in which the attorney principally performs his or her official duties.

``(c) Licensure.-A Government attorney (except foreign counsel employed in special cases)-

``(1) shall be duly licensed and authorized to practice as an attorney under the laws of a State; and

``(2) shall not be required to be a member of the bar of any particular State.

``(d) Covert Activities.-Notwithstanding any provision of State law, including disciplinary rules, statutes, regulations, constitutional provisions, or case law, a Government attorney may, for the purpose of enforcing Federal law, provide legal advice, authorization, concurrence, direction, or supervision on conducting covert activities, and participate in such activities, even though such activities may require the use of deceit or misrepresentation.

“(e) Admissibility of Evidence.-No violation of any disciplinary, ethical, or professional conduct rule shall be construed to permit the exclusion of otherwise admissible evidence in any Federal criminal proceedings.

“(f) Rulemaking Authority.-The Attorney General shall make and amend rules of the Department of Justice to ensure compliance with this section.”.

(b) Technical and Conforming Amendment.-The analysis for chapter 31 of title 28, United States Code, is amended, in the item relating to section 530B, by striking “Ethical standards for attorneys for the Government” and inserting “Professional standards for Government attorneys”.

(c) Reports.-

(1) Uniform rule.-In order to encourage the Supreme Court to prescribe, under chapter 131 of title 28, United States Code, a uniform national rule for Government attorneys with respect to communications with represented persons and parties, not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Judicial Conference of the United States shall submit to the Chief Justice of the United States a report, which shall include recommendations with respect to amending the Federal Rules of Practice and Procedure to provide for such a uniform national rule.

(2) Actual or potential conflicts.-Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Judicial Conference of the United States shall submit to the Chairmen and Ranking Members of the Committees on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives and the Senate a report, which shall include-

(A) a review of any areas of actual or potential conflict between specific Federal duties related to the investigation and prosecution of violations of Federal law and the regulation of Government attorneys (as that term is defined in section 530B of title 28, United States Code, as amended by this Act) by existing standards of professional responsibility; and

(B) recommendations with respect to amending the Federal Rules of Practice and Procedure to provide for additional rules governing attorney conduct to address any areas of actual or potential conflict identified pursuant to the review under subparagraph (A).

(3) Report considerations.-In carrying out paragraphs (1) and (2), the Judicial Conference of the United States shall take into consideration-

(A) the needs and circumstances of multiforum and multijurisdictional litigation;

(B) the special needs and interests of the United States in investigating and prosecuting violations of Federal criminal and civil law; and

(C) practices that are approved under Federal statutory or case law or that are otherwise consistent with traditional Federal law enforcement techniques.

Title VI—PROTECTING THE NORTHERN BORDER

SEC. 601. ENSURING ADEQUATE PERSONNEL ON THE NORTHERN BORDER.

The Attorney General is authorized to waive any FTE cap on personnel assigned to the Immigration and Naturalization Service to address the national security needs of the United States on the Northern border.

SEC. 602. NORTHERN BORDER PERSONNEL.

There are authorized to be appropriated—

(1) such sums as may be necessary to triple the number of Border Patrol personnel (from the number authorized under current law) in each State along the Northern Border;

(2) such sums as may be necessary to triple the number of Customs Service personnel (from the number authorized under current law) at ports of entry in each State along the Northern Border;

(3) such sums as may be necessary to triple the number of INS inspectors (from the number authorized on the date of enactment of this Act) at ports of entry in each State along the Northern Border; and

(4) an additional $50,000,000 each to the Immigration and Naturalization Service and the United States Customs Service for purposes of making improvements in technology for monitoring the Northern Border and acquiring additional equipment at the Northern Border.

SEC. 603. ACCESS BY THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE AND THE INS TO CERTAIN IDENTIFYING INFORMATION IN THE CRIMINAL HISTORY RECORDS OF VISA APPLICANTS AND APPLICANTS FOR ADMISSION TO THE UNITED STATES.

(a) AMENDMENT OF THE IMMIGRATION AND NATIONALITY ACT.—Section 105 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1105) is amended—

(1) in the section heading, by inserting ";DATA EXCHANGE" after "SECURITY OFFICERS";

(2) by inserting "(a)" after "SEC. 105."

(3) in subsection (a), by inserting "and border" after "internal" the second place it appears; and

(4) by adding at the end the following:

"(b)(1) Upon the promulgation of final regulations under subsection (d), the Attorney General and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide the Department of State and the Service access to the criminal record information contained in the National Crime Information Center's Interstate Identification Index (NCIC-III), Wanted Persons File, and to any other files maintained by the National Crime Information Center that may be mutually agreed upon by the Attorney General and the agency receiving the access, for the purposes of determining whether or not a visa applicant or applicant for admission has a criminal history record indexed in any such file.

"(2) Such access shall be provided by means of extracts of the records for placement in the automated visa lookout or other appropriate database, and shall be provided without any fee or charge.

"(3) The Federal Bureau of Investigation shall provide periodic updates of the extracts at intervals mutually agreed upon with the agency receiving access. Upon receipt of such updated extracts, the receiving agency shall make corresponding updates to its database and destroy previously provided extracts.

"(4) Access to an extract does not entitle the Department of State or the Service to obtain the full content of the corresponding automated criminal history record. To obtain the full content of a criminal history record, the Department of State or the Service shall submit the applicant's fingerprints and any appropriate fingerprint processing fee authorized by law to the Criminal Justice Information Services Division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"(c) The provision of the extracts described in subsection (b) may be reconsidered by the Attorney General and the receiving agency upon the development and deployment of an more cost-effective and efficient means of sharing information.

"(d) For purposes of administering this section, the Department of State and the Service shall, prior to receiving access to the NCIC data but not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this subsection, promulgate final regulations—

"(1) to implement procedures for the taking of fingerprints; and

"(2) to establish the conditions for the use of the information received from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in order—

"(A) to limit the redissemination of such information;

"(B) to ensure that such information is used solely to determine whether or not to issue a visa to an alien or to admit an alien to the United States;

"(C) to ensure the security, confidentiality, and destruction of such information; and

"(D) to protect any privacy rights of individuals who are subjects of such information."

(b) REPORTING REQUIREMENT.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Attorney General and the Secretary of State jointly shall report to Congress on the implementation of the amendments made by this section.

(c) STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section, or in any other law, shall be construed to limit the authority of the Attorney General or Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to provide access to the criminal history record information contained in the National Crime Information Center's (NCIC) Interstate Identification Index (NCIC-III), or to any other information maintained by the NCIC, to any Federal agency or officer authorized to enforce or administer the immigration laws of the United States, for the purpose of such enforcement or administration, upon terms that are consistent with the National Crime Prevention and Privacy Compact Act of 1998 (subtitle A of title II of Public Law 105–251; 42 U.S.C. 14611–16) and section 552a of title 5, United States Code.

SEC. 604. LIMITED AUTHORITY TO PAY OVERTIME.

AND MUSLIM AMERICANS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Arab Americans, Muslim Americans, and Americans from South Asia play a vital role in our Nation and are entitled to nothing less than the full rights of every American.

(2) The acts of violence that have been taken against Arab and Muslim Americans since the September 11, 2001, attacks against the United States should be and are condemned by all Americans who value freedom.

(3) The concept of individual responsibility for wrongdoing is sacrosanct in American society, and applies equally to all religious, racial, and ethnic groups.

(4) When American citizens commit acts of violence against those who are, or are perceived to be, of Arab or Muslim descent, they should be punished to the full extent of the law.

(5) Muslim Americans have become so fearful of harassment that many Muslim women are changing the way they dress to avoid becoming targets.

(6) Many Arab Americans and Muslim Americans have acted heroically during the attacks on the United States, including Mohammed Salman Hamdani, a 23-year-old New Yorker of Pakistani descent, who is believed to have gone to the World Trade Center to offer rescue assistance and is now missing.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.— It is the sense of Congress that--

(1) the civil rights and civil liberties of all Americans, including Arab Americans, Muslim Americans, and Americans from South Asia, must be protected, and that every effort must be taken to preserve their safety;

(2) any acts of violence or discrimination against any Americans be condemned; and

(3) the Nation is called upon to recognize the patriotism of fellow citizens from all ethnic, racial, and religious backgrounds.

Please give me a list of all provisions that you find bad and that are worse than current Senate bill as soon as possible so that I can work with Apperson/Viet in preparing for the mark-up.
I do not think that the Title 3 provisions fit in that category; indeed, I think they are very good. On the conspiracy provision, please note subsection (b), which references a list of crimes that do not include the intent/motive requirement. The bottom line is that the intent/motive requirement matters only when prosecutors want to seek an alternative maximum sentence for crimes such as computer crimes that otherwise have lesser maximums; prosecutors need not be charge the terrorism crime if they do not wish. DOJ had no persuasive theory (indeed, no theory at all) why that would be worse than current law. And it's much better than current law. That's why it's there.

I have conferred with Viet. Our preliminary position on the House bill (pending any further comments from Courtney this afternoon, and she has indicated she may well have some) is that it is a good package given the circumstances, but that it has three primary problems that we should try to have eliminated in the House-Senate pre-conference or otherwise: (i) the sunset provision in Section 160, although that is apparently a condition of Conyers' agreement to Title I; (ii) Section 111, although that incorporates part of a provision that passed House Judiciary 20-1 a year ago, but that we nonetheless believe is not a good provision; and (iii) Sections 201 and 202, which, inter alia, define foreign terrorist organization in a way that neither DOJ nor State is entirely satisfied with.

O'Neill's statement looks okay; Gurule's is obviously stale and should at least be updated; they are both consistent with Administration policy as far as I can tell and avoid making new resource commitments.

The Honorable John J. LaFalce
Ranking Member
Committee on Financial Services
U.S. House of Representative
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Mr. LaFalce:

We are responding to your request for our views as to whether it is appropriate to enact legislation to revise the bankruptcy and bank insolvency laws to facilitate the termination and netting of financial contracts.

Such legislation would reduce the impact of the failure of any one institution on the stability of the financial system. As a consequence, we support its prompt enactment. Such strengthening of the legal framework for financial contracts is perhaps the most important legislative recommendation contained in the April 1999 report of the President's Working Group on Financial Markets entitled Hedge Funds, Leverage, and the Lessons of Long-Term Capital Management.

Whether as part of comprehensive bankruptcy reform legislation or as a stand-alone bill, Congress should not fail to enact netting legislation this year. Further delays would unnecessarily place the financial system at greater risk.

Sincerely,

Alan Greenspan

The Honorable Paul O'Neill
 Secretary
 Department of the Treasury
 Washington, DC 20551

Dear Chairman Greenspan and Secretary O'Neill:

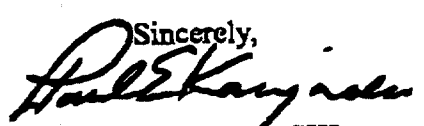

We are writing to request your views on the need for the immediate consideration of legislation to revise the bankruptcy and bank insolvency laws with respect to the termination and netting of financial contracts. This legislation has been passed by both the Senate and the House for two years in a row as a non-controversial part of the bankruptcy bills to update our bank insolvency and bankruptcy laws to ensure the enforceability of financial contract close-out and netting in the event of a counterparty failure. The legislation was developed by the President's Working Group on the Financial Markets to provide certainty to the swap markets and other financial markets in order to prevent market destabilization in the event of the failure of a participant.

The language on netting needed to update the insolvency laws currently is included in the bankruptcy bills that have passed each house and are currently being considered by a Conference Committee. That Committee has not yet begun its reconciliation of the bills. Indeed, the Committee's first meeting was canceled as a result of the tragic events of September 11th. Given the many serious issues that remain to be resolved between the two houses, it will be some time before a final bill emerges.

As our economy and markets continue to recover from the events of September 11, we are concerned about the potential impact of delaying the amendment of our insolvency laws to provide certainty to the financial markets. Even in the absence of a major bankruptcy or insolvency, we are concerned that the increased risk of counterparty failure may lead to market instability, reducing the ability of firms to use these markets to manage their risks. We would like your views as to whether enactment of netting legislation would be a useful step that we could take to reduce the heightened systemic risk our financial system now faces.

We would appreciate your views on this matter at the earliest possible time.

 JOHN J. LAFALCE

 Committee on Financial Services

I think they're wrong. The proposal that is in our bill was fully vetted within the administration. As you know, the provision that most offends the Leahy folks is the "possession in unreasonable amounts" provision that ALSO cleared the OMB process in 1999 or 2000 and was included in the Biden bill in 2000.

>>> Daley, Cybele K 10/03/01 11:01AM >>>

All -- I am advised by the Biden staff that Bioterrorism is about to be dropped by Leahy due to opposition from the groups. I am also told that the suggestion has been made that our proposal was not fully vetted within the Adm. (HHS, etc). I don't know what we can do to preserve what we currently have but pass this on.

Please let me know if there is something I can do!!

I heard from Courtney (chime in here if you know more) that HHS has problems with the regulatory portion of our bill and likes section 204 of their own bill better. I don't know whether they want to substitute it now, or just cut the HHS portion of our bill and then pass their bill down the road.

For those of you who have been following all the proposed regulatory amendments to the current bill, HHS section 204 is a bit puzzling to me and to the TVCS leg person. For some reason HHS repeals the authority for the current "select agent" rule, Section 511 of the AEDPA. Then after repealing it, they make references to to 511(d)(1)(B)(i) in their draft, which I think they they earlier repealed. I'm sure there's some explanation, but it has confused at least two of us.

Subject: Re: Sen. Biden/Bioterrorism

I think they're wrong. The proposal that is in our bill was fully vetted within the administration. As you know, the provision that most offends the Leahy folks is the "possession in unreasonable amounts" provision that ALSO cleared the OMB process in 1999 or 2000 and was included in the Biden bill in 2000.

>>> Daley, Cybele K 10/03/01 11:01AM >>>

All -- I am advised by the Biden staff that Bioterrorism is about to be dropped by Leahy due to opposition from the groups. I am also told that the suggestion has been made that our proposal was not fully vetted within the Adm. (HHS, etc). I don't know what we can do to preserve what we currently have but pass this on.

Please let me know if there is something I can do!!

49 USC § 301

“The Secretary of Transportation shall. . . under the direction of the President, exercise leadership in transportation matters, including those matters affecting national defense and those matters involving national or regional emergencies.”

49 USC § 322. - General powers

- (a) The Secretary of Transportation may prescribe regulations to carry out the duties and powers of the Secretary. An officer of the Department of Transportation may prescribe regulations to carry out the duties and powers of the officer.
- (b) The Secretary may delegate, and authorize successive delegations of, duties and powers of the Secretary to an officer or employee of the Department. An officer of the Department may delegate, and authorize successive delegations of, duties and powers of the officer to another officer or employee of the Department. However, the duties and powers specified in sections 103(c)(1), 104(c)(1), and 106(g)(1) of this title may not be delegated to an officer or employee outside the Administration concerned.
- (c) On a reimbursable basis when appropriate, the Secretary may, in carrying out aviation duties and powers -
 - (1) use the available services, equipment, personnel, and facilities of other civilian or military departments, agencies, and instrumentalities of the United States Government, with their consent;
 - (2) cooperate with those departments, agencies, and instrumentalities in establishing and using aviation services, equipment, and facilities of the Department; and
 - (3) confer and cooperate with, and use the services, records, and facilities of, State, territorial, municipal, and other agencies.
- (d) The Secretary may make expenditures to carry out aviation duties and powers, including expenditures for -
 - (1) rent and personal services;
 - (2) travel expenses;
 - (3) office furniture, equipment, supplies, lawbooks, newspapers, periodicals, and reference books, including exchanges;
 - (4) printing and binding;
 - (5) membership in and cooperation with domestic or foreign organizations related to, or a part of, the civil aeronautics industry or the art of aeronautics;
 - (6) payment of allowances and other benefits to employees stationed in foreign countries to the same extent authorized for members of the Foreign Service of comparable grade;
 - (7) investigations and studies about aeronautics; and
 - (8) acquiring, exchanging, operating, and maintaining passenger-carrying aircraft and automobiles and other property.
- (e) The Secretary may negotiate, without advertising, the purchase of technical or special property related to air navigation when the Secretary decides that -
 - (1) making the property would require a substantial initial investment or an extended period of preparation; and
 - (2) procurement by advertising would likely result in additional cost to the Government by duplication of investment or would result in duplication of necessary preparation that would unreasonably delay procuring the property.

49 USC § 40101 - Policy

(c) General Safety Considerations. - In carrying out subpart III of this part and those provisions of subpart IV applicable in carrying out subpart III, the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration shall consider the following matters:

- (1) the requirements of national defense and commercial and general aviation.
- (2) the public right of freedom of transit through the navigable airspace.

(d) Safety Considerations in Public Interest. - In carrying out subpart III of this part and those provisions of subpart IV applicable in carrying out subpart III, the Administrator shall consider the following matters, among others, as being in the public interest:

- (1) assigning, maintaining, and enhancing safety and security as the highest priorities in air commerce.

49 USC § 40110 – General Procurement Authority

(a) General. - In carrying out this part, the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration

- (1) to the extent that amounts are available for obligation, may acquire services or, by condemnation or otherwise, an interest in property, including an interest in airspace immediately adjacent to and needed for airports and other air navigation facilities owned by the United States Government and operated by the Administrator;
- (2) may dispose of an interest in property for adequate compensation; and
- (3) may construct and improve laboratories and other test facilities.

49 USC § 44107 – Recordation of conveyances, leases, and security instruments

(a) Establishment of System. - The Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration shall establish a system for recording -

- (1) conveyances that affect an interest in civil aircraft of the United States;
- (2) leases and instruments executed for security purposes, including conditional sales contracts, assignments, and amendments, that affect an interest in -
 - (A) a specifically identified aircraft engine having at least 750 rated takeoff horsepower or its equivalent;
 - (B) a specifically identified aircraft propeller capable of absorbing at least 750 rated takeoff shaft horsepower;
 - (C) an aircraft engine, propeller, or appliance maintained for installation or use in an aircraft, aircraft engine, or propeller, by or for an air carrier holding a certificate issued under section 44705 of this title; and
 - (D) spare parts maintained by or for an air carrier holding a certificate issued under section 44705 of this title; and
- (3) releases, cancellations, discharges, and satisfactions related to a conveyance, lease, or instrument recorded under clause (1) or (2) of this subsection.

(b) General Description Required. - A lease or instrument recorded under subsection (a)(2)(C) or (D) of this section only has to describe generally the engine, propeller, appliance, or spare part by type and designate its location.

(c) Acknowledgment. - Except as the Administrator otherwise may provide, a conveyance, lease, or instrument may be recorded under subsection (a) of this section only after it has been acknowledged before -

- (1) a notary public; or
- (2) another officer authorized under the laws of the United States, a State, the District of Columbia, or a territory or possession of the United States to acknowledge deeds.
- (d) Records and Indexes. - The Administrator shall -
 - (1) keep a record of the time and date that each conveyance, lease, and instrument is filed and recorded with the Administrator; and
 - (2) record each conveyance, lease, and instrument filed with the Administrator, in the order of their receipt, and index them by -
 - (A) the identifying description of the aircraft, aircraft engine, or propeller, or location specified in a lease or instrument recorded under subsection (a)(2)(C) or (D) of this section; and
 - (B) the names of the parties to each conveyance, lease, and instrument.

49 USC § 44502. General facilities and personnel authority

- (a) General Authority. -
 - (1) The Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration may -
 - (A) acquire, establish, improve, operate, and maintain air navigation facilities; and
 - (B) provide facilities and personnel to regulate and protect air traffic.
 - (3) The Secretary of Transportation may authorize a department, agency, or instrumentality of the United States Government to carry out any duty or power under this subsection with the consent of the head of the department, agency, or instrumentality.

49 UCS § 44701. General requirements

- (a) Promoting Safety. - The Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration shall promote safe flight of civil aircraft in air commerce by prescribing -
 - (5) regulations and minimum standards for other practices, methods, and procedure the Administrator finds necessary for safety in air commerce and national security.
- (c) Reducing and Eliminating Accidents. - The Administrator shall carry out this chapter in a way that best tends to reduce or eliminate the possibility or recurrence of accidents in air transportation. However, the Administrator is not required to give preference either to air transportation or to other air commerce in carrying out this chapter.

49 USC § 44702 – Issuance of Certificates

- (a) General Authority and Applications. - The Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration may issue airman certificates, type certificates, production certificates, airworthiness certificates, air carrier operating certificates, airport operating certificates, air agency certificates, and air navigation facility certificates under this chapter. An application for a certificate must -
 - (1) be under oath when the Administrator requires; and
 - (2) be in the form, contain information, and be filed and served in the way the Administrator prescribes.

49 USC § 44706 - Airport operating certificates

- (a) General. - The Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration shall issue an airport operating certificate to a person desiring to operate an airport -

- (1) that serves an air carrier operating aircraft designed for at least 31 passenger seats;
- (2) that is not located in the State of Alaska and serves any scheduled passenger operation of an air carrier operating aircraft designed for more than 9 passenger seats but less than 31 passenger seats; and
- (3) that the Administrator requires to have a certificate;

if the Administrator finds, after investigation, that the person properly and adequately is equipped and able to operate safely under this part and regulations and standards prescribed under this part.

49 USC § 44901 - Screening passengers and property

(a) General Requirements. - The Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration shall prescribe regulations requiring screening of all passengers and property that will be carried in a cabin of an aircraft in air transportation or intrastate air transportation. The screening must take place before boarding and be carried out by a weapon-detecting facility or procedure used or operated by an employee or agent of an air carrier, intrastate air carrier, or foreign air carrier.

49 USC § 44903 - Air transportation security

(b) Protection Against Violence and Piracy. - The Administrator shall prescribe regulations to protect passengers and property on an aircraft operating in air transportation or intrastate air transportation against an act of criminal violence or aircraft piracy. When prescribing a regulation under this subsection, the Administrator shall -

- (1) consult with the Secretary of Transportation, the Attorney General, the heads of other departments, agencies, and instrumentalities of the United States Government, and State and local authorities;
- (2) consider whether a proposed regulation is consistent with -
 - (A) protecting passengers; and
 - (B) the public interest in promoting air transportation and intrastate air transportation;
- (3) to the maximum extent practicable, require a uniform procedure for searching and detaining passengers and property to ensure -
 - (A) their safety; and
 - (B) courteous and efficient treatment by an air carrier, an agent or employee of an air carrier, and Government, State, and local law enforcement personnel carrying out this section; and
- (4) consider the extent to which a proposed regulation will carry out this section.

(c) Security Programs. - (1) The Administrator shall prescribe regulations under subsection (b) of this section that require each operator of an airport regularly serving an air carrier holding a certificate issued by the Secretary of Transportation to establish an air transportation security program that provides a law enforcement presence and capability at each of those airports that is adequate to ensure the safety of passengers. The regulations shall authorize the operator to use the services of qualified State, local, and private law enforcement personnel. When the Administrator decides, after being notified by an operator in the form the Administrator prescribes, that not enough qualified State, local, and private law enforcement personnel are available to carry out subsection (b), the Administrator may authorize the operator to use, on a reimbursable basis, personnel employed by the Administrator, or by another department, agency, or instrumentality of the Government with the consent of the head of the department, agency, or instrumentality, to supplement State, local, and private law enforcement personnel. When deciding whether additional personnel are needed, the Administrator shall consider the number of passengers boarded at the airport, the extent of anticipated risk of criminal violence or aircraft piracy at the airport or to the air carrier aircraft operations at the airport, and the availability of qualified State or local law enforcement personnel at the airport.

(e) Exclusive Responsibility Over Passenger Safety. – The Administrator has the exclusive responsibility to direct law enforcement activity related to the safety of passengers on an aircraft involved in an offense under section 46502 of this title from the moment all external doors of the aircraft are closed following boarding until those doors are opened to allow passengers to leave the aircraft. When requested by the Administrator, other departments, agencies, and instrumentalities of the Government shall provide assistance necessary to carry out this subsection.

49 USC § 44904 - Domestic air transportation system security

(a) Assessing Threats. - The Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration and the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation jointly shall assess current and potential threats to the domestic air transportation system. The assessment shall include consideration of the extent to which there are individuals with the capability and intent to carry out terrorist or related unlawful acts against that system and the ways in which those individuals might carry out those acts. The Administrator and the Director jointly shall decide on and carry out the most effective method for continuous analysis and monitoring of security threats to that system.

(c) Improving Security. - The Administrator shall take necessary actions to improve domestic air transportation security by correcting any deficiencies in that security discovered in the assessments, analyses, and monitoring carried out under this section.

49 USC § 44905 - Information about threats to civil aviation

(c) Guidelines on Public Notice. –

(1) The President shall develop guidelines for ensuring that public notice is provided in appropriate cases about threats to civil aviation. The guidelines shall identify officials responsible for -

(A) deciding, on a case-by-case basis, if public notice of a threat is in the best interest of the United States and the traveling public;

(B) ensuring that public notice is provided in a timely and effective way, including the use of a toll-free telephone number; and

(C) canceling the departure of a flight or series of flights under subsection (b) of this section.

(2) The guidelines shall provide for consideration of -

(A) the specificity of the threat;

(B) the credibility of intelligence information related to the threat;

(C) the ability to counter the threat effectively;

(D) the protection of intelligence information sources and methods;

- (E) cancellation, by an air carrier or the Administrator, of a flight or series of flights instead of public notice;
- (F) the ability of passengers and crew to take steps to reduce the risk to their safety after receiving public notice of a threat; and
- (G) other factors the Administrator considers appropriate.

49 USC § 44931 - Director of Intelligence and Security

(b) Duties and Powers. - The Director shall . . .

- (5) carry out other duties and powers the Secretary decides are necessary to ensure, to the extent possible, the security of the traveling public.

49 USC § 44932 - Assistant Administrator for Civil Aviation Security

(b) Duties and Powers. - The Assistant Administrator shall . . .

- (6) assess threats to civil aviation
- (7) carry out other duties and powers the Administrator considers appropriate.

Can you guys plan to be at the markup in the event questions come up in your respective areas? Chairman Sensenbrenner has requested that make experts (this means you Elwood) available, and Dan specifically requested you three. We'll get seats in the front row; making faces and paper airplanes at Mr. Conyers are both encouraged.

In case opportunities arise to suggest amendments -- either now or later in the process -- I am enclosing amendment text with a brief explanation for section 308 of the House bill, relating to increased supervision periods for terrorists. Of the provisions discussed in my memo, this is the most important one on which we really do not have decent options in either the House or Senate bills as they now stand. (The House bill uniformly requires proof of terrorist motivation under this provision; Leahy's bill requires proof of the occurrence/risk of death or serious injury.)

The enclosed amendment would make the supervised release provision exactly parallel the statute of limitations reform in section 301 of the House bill: It would use the two lists in the bill's statute of limitations reform, which include a list of "super terrorism" offenses for which there is no statute of limitations, and a list of "lesser terrorism" offenses for which a 15 year limitation period is proposed. In parallel fashion, the amendment would authorize up to lifetime supervision for offenses in the "super terrorism" list, and supervision up to 15 years for offenses in the "lesser terrorism" list. The conceptual similarity to what they have done in section 301 would hopefully give this a certain appeal to the drafters and Members.

THIS AMENDMENT WOULD PROVIDE A STRONGER PROVISION TO EXTEND POSTRELEASE SUPERVISION PERIODS FOR TERRORISTS, MODELED ON THE CORRESPONDING STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS REFORM IN SECTION 301 OF THE BILL. THE PERTINENT OFFENSES WOULD EFFECTIVELY BE DIVIDED INTO TWO LISTS – IN THE SAME MANNER AS IN THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS REFORM – WITH SUPERVISION PERIODS OF UP TO LIFE AUTHORIZED FOR OFFENSES IN THE MORE AGGRAVATED LIST, AND SUPERVISION PERIODS OF UP TO 15 YEARS AUTHORIZED FOR OFFENSES IN THE LESSER OFFENSE LIST.

Amend section 308 ("Post-release Supervision of Terrorists") to read as follows:

SEC. 308. POSTRELEASE SUPERVISION OF TERRORISTS.

Section 3583 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(j) SUPERVISED RELEASE TERMS FOR TERRORISM OFFENSES. – Notwithstanding subsection (b), the authorized terms of supervised release for any offense described in subsection (a) of section 3286 are any term of years or life, and the authorized terms of supervised release for any offense described in subsection (b) of section 3286 are not more than 15 years."

How are y'all coming on your insurance pieces? I have a draft of the basic memo, which I would like to plug things into tomorrow. I think we need to meet Friday afternoon to go over the details. Josh would like us to present the plan at next Wednesday's DCPC. This means we should try to pre-clear with our bosses on Monday.

Thanks,

Marc

All -- as you know we're in the home stretch of the legislative process on the terrorism bill. Now that Senate and House text have been separately "agreed", we are about to become embroiled in negotiations over what the final bill should look like.

To that end, we need to develop ASAP a side-by-side comparison of the new Senate and House bills (the Senate version is attached: I will forward the House version as soon as I have it). Viet requests that each of you take responsibility for producing the section of the side by side in your areas of expertise as follows (please delegate this if needed, but we ask that you or your designee set aside as much of the day today as possible to get this done). We ask that you start immediately and provide us with a preliminary draft by 3:30, and a final text no later than 7 pm. We will use the preliminary draft for the first round of pre-conference discussions which start at 4.

Please use the attached format (5 columns as marked) to assist me in generating one document at the end of the process.

Thanks very much for your help.

COMMENTS ON FISA AND RELATED PROVISIONS OF THE SENATE BILL
(O:\JEN\JEN01.909 "FINAL DRAFT" S.L.C.)
October 4, 2001

Section 106. This corresponds to Section 159 of the Administration's proposal, concerning Presidential authority to seize assets. It is identical to the Administration's proposal.

Section 203. This corresponds to Sections 103, 154, and 354 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the authority to share information developed in a criminal investigation with intelligence, protective, and other personnel. Section 203 allows us to share foreign intelligence or counterintelligence information developed from a Title III or a grand jury investigation with appropriate intelligence, defense, and other personnel without a court order. The recipients may use the information in the performance of their official duties. The Attorney General is directed to establish procedures for the dissemination of such information where it identifies a U.S. person as defined in FISA. Although Section 154 of the Administration's bill permitted sharing of information "[n]otwithstanding any other provision of law," and therefore eliminated all limits on sharing, it was always directed at Title III and Rule 6, and we could not identify another criminal-law limit on sharing information. Legislative history should emphasize that Section 203's amendment to Fed. R. Crim. P. 6(e)(3)(C) does not detract from the existing or proposed dissemination authority in Fed. R. Crim. P. 6(e)(3)(A). See discussion of Section 712, infra.

Section 204. This corresponds to Section 104 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the distinction between various electronic surveillance authorities. It is substantively identical to the Administration's proposal. [This is a CCIPS proposal.]

Section 206. This corresponds to Section 152 of the Administration's proposal, concerning multi-point or roving FISA wiretaps. It is identical to the Administration's proposal.

Section 207. This corresponds to Section 151 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the period of authorization for FISA court orders. The Administration's proposal allowed the FISA Court to issue one-year orders for agents of a foreign power as defined in 50 U.S.C. 1801(b)(1)(A). Section 207 allows the FISA Court to issue 120-day initiation orders for such agents, and one-year renewal orders. That is not ideal, but it is a compromise that was deemed necessary to achieve consensus. The Administration's proposal allowed the FISA Court to issue 90-day orders for physical searches in routine cases, and Section 207 does the same. There are typographical errors on page 16, lines 7 and 9: "Section 105(d)(1)" should be "Section 105(e)(1)"; and "1805(d)(1)" should be "1805(e)(1)". There are typographical errors on page 16, line 15, and page 17, line 1: "section 101(b)(A)" should be "section 101(b)(1)(A)" in both places. There are typographical errors on page 17, line 5: "Section 105(d)(2)" should be "Section 105(e)(2)"; and "1805(d)(2)" should be "1805(e)(2)". The final phrase added to the statute by the final provision of the amendment, Section 207(b)(2) – "or against an agent of a foreign power as defined in section 101(b)(1)(A)" – should have a comma added at the end.

Section 208. This does not correspond to any provision in the Administration's proposal. It would add four judges to the FISA Court, and require that three FISA judges live within 20 miles of the District of Columbia. It is a good provision.

Section 215. This corresponds to Section 155 of the Administration's proposal, concerning FISA pen-trap orders. Instead of allowing the use of FISA pen-trap orders in any FI or IT investigation, which is the scope in current law and in the Administration's proposal, Section 215 allows the use of pen-trap orders only in investigations to protect against IT or clandestine intelligence activities, and also prevents their use in investigations of U.S. persons based on First Amendment protected activities. That is a limitation that negotiators believed was necessary to achieve consensus. Where current law requires a certification that the information sought is relevant, and a demonstration to the court that the telephone or communication facility to be monitored is connected to an agent of a foreign power or person engaged in international terrorism or clandestine intelligence activities in violation of U.S. law, Section 215 requires only a demonstration of relevance. That is not much of an improvement, because the requirement to demonstrate, rather than certify, is what consumes so much time. If possible, we should change the provision to permit a pen-trap order upon a certification of relevance, which would make FISA pen-trap orders analogous to their criminal counterparts.

Section 216. This corresponds to Section 156 of the Administration's proposal, concerning FISA subpoenas for business records. The Administration's proposal would have allowed the Attorney General to issue subpoenas without prior court involvement. Section 216 allows the FISA Court or a designated magistrate to issue subpoenas upon a certification from an FBI ASAC or higher official that the documents are sought "for" an authorized investigation. The subpoena is limited to use in investigations to protect against IT or clandestine intelligence activities, and is not available in investigations of U.S. persons based on First Amendment protected activities. This is not much of an improvement over current law, which merely requires a certification, albeit a broader one. But this problem is not as important as the problem with the pen-trap provision discussed above.

Section 220. This corresponds to Section 153 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the "purpose" of FISA activity. It adopts the "significant purpose" standard. That is acceptable.

Section 505. This also corresponds to Section 153 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the "purpose" of FISA activity. It deals with "purpose" issues at ground-level, by making clear that intelligence and law-enforcement officials may "coordinate" without affecting the purpose of the FISA activity. This is Senator Leahy's language, not the language suggested by ODAG after consultation with various components. CRM prefers Senator Leahy's language, and there is no basis for seeking a change at this time, although we may revisit the issue in the next 24 hours.

Section 712. This corresponds to Sections 103, 154, and 354 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the authority to share information developed in a criminal investigation with intelligence, protective, and other personnel. It allows sharing of grand jury information to prevent or investigate acts of domestic or international terrorism, and requires after-the-fact notice to the court overseeing the grand jury. See discussion of Section 203, supra.

Section 901. This does not correspond to any provision in the Administration's proposal. It comes from the Graham-Feinstein bill, S. 1448. It adds "international terrorism" to the definition of "foreign intelligence" in the National Security Act of 1947. The Department of Justice previously sent a letter to SSCI on this provision. OLA has that letter.

Section 902. This provision does not correspond to any provision in the Administration's proposal. It comes from the Graham-Feinstein bill, S. 1448. It expresses the sense of the Congress that CIA should be able to recruit sleazy assets abroad. Section 902 is acceptable to the Administration in concept; CIA may have comments on the drafting.

Section 904. This provision does not correspond to any provision in the Administration's proposal. It comes from the Graham-Feinstein bill, S. 1448. It requires the federal law-enforcement community to report to the DCI foreign intelligence information discovered in a criminal investigation, and requires DOJ to respond within 15 days to certain CIA requests concerning potential CIA assets. The reporting requirement is acceptable to the Administration. CRM may have objections to the 15-day reporting requirement. There are two typographical errors: On page 126, line 5, "(a)" should be "(a)(1)"; on page 126, line 12, there should be a comma inserted after "Intelligence".

Section 905. This provision does not correspond to any provision in the Administration's proposal. It comes from the Graham-Feinstein bill, S. 1448. The provision is acceptable to the Department. There are four typographical errors: On page 128, line 20, page 129, line 3, and page 129, line 6, the words "the Attorney General" should be added before "the Secretary"; on page 129, line 11, "2001" should be "2002".

October 4, 2001

Section 106. This corresponds to Section 159 of the Administration's proposal, concerning Presidential authority to seize assets. It is identical to the Administration's proposal.

Section 203. This corresponds to Sections 103, 154, and 354 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the authority to share information developed in a criminal investigation with intelligence, protective, and other personnel. Section 203 allows us to share foreign intelligence or counterintelligence information developed from a Title III or a grand jury investigation with appropriate intelligence, defense, and other personnel without a court order. The recipients may use the information in the performance of their official duties. The Attorney General is directed to establish procedures for the dissemination of such information where it identifies a U.S. person as defined in FISA. Although Section 154 of the Administration's bill permitted sharing of information "[n]otwithstanding any other provision of law," and therefore eliminated all limits on sharing, it was always directed at Title III and Rule 6, and we could not identify another criminal-law limit on sharing information. Legislative history should emphasize that Section 203's amendment to Fed. R. Crim. P. 6(e)(3)(C) does not detract from the existing or proposed dissemination authority in Fed. R. Crim. P. 6(e)(3)(A). See discussion of Section 712, infra.

Section 204. This corresponds to Section 104 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the distinction between various electronic surveillance authorities. It is substantively identical to the Administration's proposal. [This is a CCIPS proposal.]

Section 206. This corresponds to Section 152 of the Administration's proposal, concerning multi-point or roving FISA wiretaps. It is identical to the Administration's proposal.

Section 207. This corresponds to Section 151 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the period of authorization for FISA court orders. The Administration's proposal allowed the FISA Court to issue one-year orders for agents of a foreign power as defined in 50 U.S.C. 1801(b)(1)(A). Section 207 allows the FISA Court to issue 120-day initiation orders for such agents, and one-year renewal orders. That is not ideal, but it is a compromise that was deemed necessary to achieve consensus. The Administration's proposal allowed the FISA Court to issue 90-day orders for physical searches in routine cases, and Section 207 does the same. There are typographical errors on page 16, lines 7 and 9: "Section 105(d)(1)" should be "Section 105(e)(1)"; and "1805(d)(1)" should be "1805(e)(1)". There are typographical errors on page 16, line 15, and page 17, line 1: "section 101(b)(A)" should be "section 101(b)(1)(A)" in both places. There are typographical errors on page 17, line 5: "Section 105(d)(2)" should be "Section 105(e)(2)"; and "1805(d)(2)" should be "1805(e)(2)". The final phrase added to the statute by the final provision of the amendment, Section 207(b)(2) – "or against an agent of a foreign power as defined in section 101(b)(1)(A)" – should have a comma added at the end.

Section 208. This does not correspond to any provision in the Administration's proposal. It would add four judges to the FISA Court, and require that three FISA judges live within 20 miles of the District of Columbia. It is a good provision.

Section 215. This corresponds to Section 155 of the Administration's proposal, concerning FISA pen-trap orders. Instead of allowing the use of FISA pen-trap orders in any FI or IT investigation, which is the scope in current law and in the Administration's proposal, Section 215 allows the use of pen-trap orders only in investigations to protect against IT or clandestine intelligence activities, and also prevents their use in investigations of U.S. persons based on First Amendment protected activities. That is a limitation that negotiators believed was necessary to achieve consensus. Where current law requires a certification that the information sought is relevant, and a demonstration to the court that the telephone or communication facility to be monitored is connected to an agent of a foreign power or person engaged in international terrorism or clandestine intelligence activities in violation of U.S. law, Section 215 requires only a demonstration of relevance. That is not much of an improvement, because the requirement to demonstrate, rather than certify, is what consumes so much time. If possible, we should change the provision to permit a pen-trap order upon a certification of relevance, which would make FISA pen-trap orders analogous to their criminal counterparts.

Section 216. This corresponds to Section 156 of the Administration's proposal, concerning FISA subpoenas for business records. The Administration's proposal would have allowed the Attorney General to issue subpoenas without prior court involvement. Section 216 allows the FISA Court or a designated magistrate to issue subpoenas upon a certification from an FBI ASAC or higher official that the documents are sought "for" an authorized investigation. The subpoena is limited to use in investigations to protect against IT or clandestine intelligence activities, and is not available in investigations of U.S. persons based on First Amendment protected activities. This is not much of an improvement over current law, which merely requires a certification, albeit a broader one. But this problem is not as important as the problem with the pen-trap provision discussed above.

Section 220. This corresponds to Section 153 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the "purpose" of FISA activity. It adopts the "significant purpose" standard. That is acceptable.

Section 505. This also corresponds to Section 153 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the "purpose" of FISA activity. It deals with "purpose" issues at ground-level, by making clear that intelligence and law-enforcement officials may "coordinate" without affecting the purpose of the FISA activity. This is Senator Leahy's language, not the language suggested by ODAG after consultation with various components. CRM prefers Senator Leahy's language, and there is no basis for seeking a change at this time, although we may revisit the issue in the next 24 hours.

Section 712. This corresponds to Sections 103, 154, and 354 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the authority to share information developed in a criminal investigation with intelligence, protective, and other personnel. It allows sharing of grand jury information to prevent or investigate acts of domestic or international terrorism, and requires after-the-fact notice to the court overseeing the grand jury. See discussion of Section 203, supra.

Section 901. This does not correspond to any provision in the Administration's proposal. It comes from the Graham-Feinstein bill, S. 1448. It adds "international terrorism" to the definition of "foreign intelligence" in the National Security Act of 1947. The Department of Justice previously sent a letter to SSCI on this provision. OLA has that letter.

Section 902. This provision does not correspond to any provision in the Administration's proposal. It comes from the Graham-Feinstein bill, S. 1448. It expresses the sense of the Congress that CIA should be able to recruit sleazy assets abroad. Section 902 is acceptable to the Administration in concept; CIA may have comments on the drafting.

Section 904. This provision does not correspond to any provision in the Administration's proposal. It comes from the Graham-Feinstein bill, S. 1448. It requires the federal law-enforcement community to report to the DCI foreign intelligence information discovered in a criminal investigation, and requires DOJ to respond within 15 days to certain CIA requests concerning potential CIA assets. The reporting requirement is acceptable to the Administration. CRM may have objections to the 15-day reporting requirement. There are two typographical errors: On page 126, line 5, "(a)" should be "(a)(1)"; on page 126, line 12, there should be a comma inserted after "Intelligence".

Section 905. This provision does not correspond to any provision in the Administration's proposal. It comes from the Graham-Feinstein bill, S. 1448. The provision is acceptable to the Department. There are four typographical errors: On page 128, line 20, page 129, line 3, and page 129, line 6, the words "the Attorney General" should be added before "the Secretary"; on page 129, line 11, "2001" should be "2002".

The issue, of course, is determining the "official" position? Who will make that determination? And when? We obviously need to know our position today or tomorrow.

Is this an official administration position that we oppose this language? I would suggest doing nothing about it until, and only if, we know an official administration position.

Subject: ExIm Bank problem with House Amdt to Anti-Terror Bill

Export-Import Bank has run across this House amendment to the Anti-Terrorism bill. The language would allow the President to enlist the Export-Import Bank in financing defense articles or services.

Ex-Im opposes this language since it would consume their limited resources, and would put pressure on them to financing un-creditworthy transactions.

According to the foreign military financing examiner (Jim Nix) -- we have other tools for exporting weapons and defense services, including legislation for loans to countries both through the Arms Export Control Act (a State-sponsored act) and through the Defense Arms Export Loan Guarantee Program (under DOD). Neither of these is currently over-subscribed; there is no/no demand for loans currently.

What should we do to keep this language out of the House bill?

AMENDMENT TO H.R. 2975, AS REPORTED
OFFERED BY _____

At the end of title V, insert the following:

1 SEC. ____ . SPECIAL AUTHORITY UNDER THE EXPORT-IM-
2 PORT BANK ACT OF 1945 TO COMBAT TER-
3 RORISM.

4 (a) SPECIAL AUTHORITY.—The President of the 5 United States may direct the Board of Directors of the 6 Export-Import Bank of the United States to authorize 7 under the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 the furnishing 8 of assistance or financing for the export of defense articles
9 or services (as defined in section 2(b)(6)(G) of such Act)
10 if the President determines that the exercise of such au-
11 thority is important to United States efforts to respond
12 to, deter, or prevent acts of international terrorism.

13 (b) TRANSMITTAL TO CONGRESS OF WRITTEN POL-
14 ICY JUSTIFICATION.—Not later than 30 days after the 15 President makes a determination pursuant to subsection
16 (a) with respect to a furnishing of assistance or financing
17 described in subsection (a), the President shall transmit
18 to the Committee on Financial Services of the House of 19 Representatives and the Committee on Banking, Finance,
20 and Urban Affairs of the Senate a written policy justifica-
21 tion which describes—

1 (1) the nature and amount of assistance or fi-
2 nancing involved;

3 (2) the actions that the proposed or actual re-
4 cipient of the assistance or financing has taken or 5 has committed to take which justify the provision of 6 the assistance or financing; and

7 (3) any other information regarding how the 8 provision of the assistance or financing will con-
9 tribute to United States efforts to respond to, deter,
10 or prevent acts of international terrorism.

11 (c) SUNSET.—The authority provided by subsection
12 (a) shall not apply after September 30, 2005.

Please note that Title IV.B, relating to immigration, is not in the current draft. I assume that language we agreed to last night is being added?

Here is my first cut at an evaluation of the Senate Bill. If I find new issues, I'll pass them on.

Subject: URGENT: Senate and House bill comparison

All -- as you know we're in the home stretch of the legislative process on the terrorism bill. Now that Senate and House text have been separately "agreed", we are about to become embroiled in negotiations over what the final bill should look like.

To that end, we need to develop ASAP a side-by-side comparison of the new Senate and House bills (the Senate version is attached: I will forward the House version as soon as I have it). Viet requests that each of you take responsibility for producing the section of the side by side in your areas of expertise as follows (please delegate this if needed, but we ask that you or your designee set aside as much of the day today as possible to get this done). We ask that you start immediately and provide us with a preliminary draft by 3:30, and a final text no later than 7 pm. We will use the preliminary draft for the first round of pre-conference discussions which start at 4.

Please use the attached format (5 columns as marked) to assist me in generating one document at the end of the process.

Thanks very much for your help.

Title I FISA: David Kris
Title II: Mike Lindemann

(O:\JEN\JEN01.909 "FINAL DRAFT S.L.C.)
October 4, 2001

Section 106. This corresponds to Section 159 of the Administration's proposal, concerning Presidential authority to seize assets. It is identical to the Administration's proposal.

Section 203. This corresponds to Sections 103, 154, and 354 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the authority to share information developed in a criminal investigation with intelligence, protective, and other personnel. Section 203 allows us to share foreign intelligence or counterintelligence information developed from a Title III or a grand jury investigation with appropriate intelligence, defense, and other personnel without a court order. The recipients may use the information in the performance of their official duties. The Attorney General is directed to establish procedures for the dissemination of such information where it identifies a U.S. person as defined in FISA. Although Section 154 of the Administration's bill permitted sharing of information "[n]otwithstanding any other provision of law," and therefore eliminated all limits on sharing, it was always directed at Title III and Rule 6, and we could not identify another criminal-law limit on sharing information. Legislative history should emphasize that Section 203's amendment to Fed. R. Crim. P. 6(e)(3)(C) does not detract from the existing or proposed dissemination authority in Fed. R. Crim. P. 6(e)(3)(A). See discussion of Section 712, infra.

Section 204. This corresponds to Section 104 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the distinction between various electronic surveillance authorities. It is substantively identical to the Administration's proposal. [This is a CCIPS proposal.]

Section 206. This corresponds to Section 152 of the Administration's proposal, concerning multi-point or roving FISA wiretaps. It is identical to the Administration's proposal.

Section 207. This corresponds to Section 151 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the period of authorization for FISA court orders. The Administration's proposal allowed the FISA Court to issue one-year orders for agents of a foreign power as defined in 50 U.S.C. 1801(b)(1)(A). Section 207 allows the FISA Court to issue 120-day initiation orders for such agents, and one-year renewal orders. That is not ideal, but it is a compromise that was deemed necessary to achieve consensus. The Administration's proposal allowed the FISA Court to issue 90-day orders for physical searches in routine cases, and Section 207 does the same. There are typographical errors on page 16, lines 7 and 9: "Section 105(d)(1)" should be "Section 105(e)(1)"; and "1805(d)(1)" should be "1805(e)(1)". There are typographical errors on page 16, line 15, and page 17, line 1: "section 101(b)(A)" should be "section 101(b)(1)(A)" in both places. There are typographical errors on page 17, line 5: "Section 105(d)(2)" should be "Section 105(e)(2)"; and "1805(d)(2)" should be "1805(e)(2)". The final phrase added to the statute by the final provision of the amendment, Section 207(b)(2) – "or against an agent of a foreign power as defined in section 101(b)(1)(A)" – should have a comma added at the end.

Section 208. This does not correspond to any provision in the Administration's proposal. It would add four judges to the FISA Court, and require that three FISA judges live within 20 miles of the District of Columbia. It is a good provision.

Section 215. This corresponds to Section 155 of the Administration's proposal, concerning FISA pen-trap orders. Instead of allowing the use of FISA pen-trap orders in any FI or IT investigation, which is the scope in current law and in the Administration's proposal, Section 215 allows the use of pen-trap orders only in investigations to protect against IT or clandestine intelligence activities, and also prevents their use in investigations of U.S. persons based on First Amendment protected activities. That is a limitation that negotiators believed was necessary to achieve consensus. Where current law requires a certification that the information sought is relevant, and a demonstration to the court that the telephone or communication facility to be monitored is connected to an agent of a foreign power or person engaged in international terrorism or clandestine intelligence activities in violation of U.S. law, Section 215 requires only a demonstration of relevance. That is not much of an improvement, because the requirement to demonstrate, rather than certify, is what consumes so much time. If possible, we should change the provision to permit a pen-trap order upon a certification of relevance, which would make FISA pen-trap orders analogous to their criminal counterparts.

Section 216. This corresponds to Section 156 of the Administration's proposal, concerning FISA subpoenas for business records. The Administration's proposal would have allowed the Attorney General to issue subpoenas without prior court involvement. Section 216 allows the FISA Court or a designated magistrate to issue subpoenas upon a certification from an FBI ASAC or higher official that the documents are sought "for" an authorized investigation. The subpoena is limited to use in investigations to protect against IT or clandestine intelligence activities, and is not available in investigations of U.S. persons based on First Amendment protected activities. This is not much of an improvement over current law, which merely requires a certification, albeit a broader one. But this problem is not as important as problem with the pen-trap provision discussed above.

Section 220. This corresponds to Section 153 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the "purpose" of FISA activity. It adopts the "significant purpose" standard. That is acceptable.

Section 505. This also corresponds to Section 153 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the "purpose" of FISA activity. It deals with "purpose" issues at ground-level, by making clear that intelligence and law-enforcement officials may "coordinate" without affecting the purpose of the FISA activity. This is Senator Leahy's language, not the language suggested by ODAG after consultation with various components. CRM prefers Senator Leahy's language, and there is no basis for seeking a change at this time.

Section 712. This corresponds to Sections 103, 154, and 354 of the Administration's proposal, concerning the authority to share information developed in a criminal investigation with intelligence, protective, and other personnel. It allows sharing of grand jury information to prevent or investigate acts of domestic or international terrorism, and requires after-the-fact notice to the court overseeing the grand jury. See discussion of Section 203, supra.

Section 901. This does not correspond to any provision in the Administration's proposal. It comes from the Graham-Feinstein bill, S. 1448. It adds "international terrorism" to the definition of "foreign intelligence" in the National Security Act of 1947. The Department of Justice previously sent a letter to SSCI on this provision. OLA has that letter.

Section 902. This provision does not correspond to any provision in the Administration's proposal. It comes from the Graham-Feinstein bill, S. 1448. It expresses the sense of the Congress that CIA should be able to recruit sleazy assets abroad. Section 902 is acceptable to the Administration in concept; CIA may have comments on the drafting.

Section 904. This provision does not correspond to any provision in the Administration's proposal. It comes from the Graham-Feinstein bill, S. 1448. It requires the federal law-enforcement community to report to the DCI foreign intelligence information discovered in a criminal investigation, and requires DOJ to respond within 15 days to certain CIA requests concerning potential CIA assets. The reporting requirement is acceptable to the Administration. CRM may have objections to the 15-day reporting requirement. There are two typographical errors: On page 126, line 5, "(a)" should be "(a)(1)"; on page 126, line 12, there should be a comma inserted after "Intelligence".

Section 905. This provision does not correspond to any provision in the Administration's proposal. It comes from the Graham-Feinstein bill, S. 1448. The provision is acceptable to the Department. There are four typographical errors: On page 128, line 20, page 129, line 3, and page 129, line 6, the words "the Attorney General" should be added before "the Secretary"; on page 129, line 11, "2001" should be "2002".

Subject: Re: URGENT: Senate and House bill comparison

Jennifer:

Attached is the final text of for the side-by-side comparison of the Senate anti-terrorism bill with sections 401 through 404 of the House anti-terrorism bill. The changes from the draft I sent earlier are an elaboration of the additional amendments to 18 USC 2339A in section 806 of the Senate bill as compared to section 402 of the House bill and a stated preference for the more inclusive Senate version.

Mike Payne

>>> Newstead, Jennifer 10/04/01 11:31AM >>>

All -- as you know we're in the home stretch of the legislative process on the terrorism bill. Now that Senate and House text have been separately "agreed", we are about to become embroiled in negotiations over what the final bill should look like.

To that end, we need to develop ASAP a side-by-side comparison of the new Senate and House bills (the Senate version is attached: I will forward the House version as soon as I have it). Viet requests that each of you take responsibility for producing the section of the side by side in your areas of expertise as follows (please delegate this if needed, but we ask that you or your designee set aside as much of the day today as possible to get this done). We ask that you start immediately and provide us with a preliminary draft by 3:30, and a final text no later than 7 pm. We will use the preliminary draft for the first round of pre-conference discussions which start at 4.

Please use the attached format (5 columns as marked) to assist me in generating one document at the end of the process.

Thanks very much for your help.

Title I FISA: David Kris
Title II: Mike Lindemann
Title III (substantive crim. law): David Karp
Title III (crim. procedure): John Elwood

CEA has a different view on pricing than is inherent in the Treasury memo just sent. We attach the following for your consideration at today's meeting.

REV_00132866

Pricing the Federal Excess Loss Coverage

The federal government should charge the insurance industry a “fair market price” for excess loss coverage. The price would be determined by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Rationale:

1. The purpose of pricing insurance is to provide proper incentives for loss mitigation activity. The magnitude of losses from terrorist activity is not fixed, but depend on the level of ex ante mitigation activity. Because individual economic actors can affect the loss distribution, it is important that they internalize the cost of their decisions. Charging them a fair price provides the right incentives. In the case of terrorism, mitigation activities could include such decisions as:
 - Investing in new security procedures
 - Investing in better data back-up systems to reduce business interruption
 - Reducing the spatial concentration of firm business activity
 - Locating future firm operations in areas that are less prone to terrorist attack
 - Focusing new construction on buildings that are less likely to be terrorist targets (e.g., smaller buildings)
2. These prices should be set ex ante rather than ex post for two reasons:
 - This is there is a credibility problem with ex post pricing. Actors will rationally expect that the government may not actually levy the charges after an incident. In other words, ex post pricing will is highly likely to reduce to “free coverage.”
 - Even if the government could credibly commit to ex post pricing, it still would not get the incentives exactly right. The reason is that due to entry and exit from affected industries, the actors that would be levied ex post will not necessarily be the same actors who took the risks ex ante. For example, some firms could take a high level of risk, and then simply declare bankruptcy and default ex post.

How would the Treasury determine prices?

From the perspective of providing proper incentives, charging even an arbitrary cost-based price would be an improvement over a zero price, but using market signals would be even better. Obtaining market prices is a challenge because the reason for government intervention in the first place is that the private market does not have the capacity to absorb extremely large losses.

There are many potential mechanisms for determining the right price to charge, including:

1. Hiring a private sector actuarial firm to determine the actuarial fair price, and then adjusting this price to reflect standard underwriting costs for catastrophe insurance. (There is much data in the private market for catastrophe insurance with which to determine the adjustment factor.)
2. The government could offer to sell a small “slice” (e.g., 1-2%) of the excess loss to the private market. Example: The government then offers to the private market a securitized package along the lines of “1% of losses between $50 billion and $100 billion.” Thus, the maximum exposure to the purchaser of this contract is $0.5 billion, and in expectation is much less. Such a package could be sold directly to a private actor (e.g., Berkshire Hathaway) and use that price as a basis for setting premiums.

3. The government could directly securitize a portion of the excess loss coverage through the use of Treasury-issued “cat bonds” or “cat call options.” For example, the government could sell catastrophic option contracts that pay out when aggregate insured losses exceeding a certain amount. One type of contract is the Catastrophic Options contract that trades on the Chicago Board of Trade. The model for these types of contracts is already in place and could be quickly implemented.

CEA has a different view on pricing than is inherent in the Treasury memo just sent. We attach the following for your consideration at today's meeting.

Pricing the Federal Excess Loss Coverage

The federal government should charge the insurance industry a “fair market price” for excess loss coverage. The price would be determined by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Rationale:

1. The purpose of pricing insurance is to provide proper incentives for loss mitigation activity. The magnitude of losses from terrorist activity is not fixed, but depend on the level of ex ante mitigation activity. Because individual economic actors can affect the loss distribution, it is important that they internalize the cost of their decisions. Charging them a fair price provides the right incentives. In the case of terrorism, mitigation activities could include such decisions as:
 - Investing in new security procedures
 - Investing in better data back-up systems to reduce business interruption
 - Reducing the spatial concentration of firm business activity
 - Locating future firm operations in areas that are less prone to terrorist attack
 - Focusing new construction on buildings that are less likely to be terrorist targets (e.g., smaller buildings)
2. These prices should be set ex ante rather than ex post for two reasons:
 - This is there is a credibility problem with ex post pricing. Actors will rationally expect that the government may not actually levy the charges after an incident. In other words, ex post pricing will is highly likely to reduce to “free coverage.”
 - Even if the government could credibly commit to ex post pricing, it still would not get the incentives exactly right. The reason is that due to entry and exit from affected industries, the actors that would be levied ex post will not necessarily be the same actors who took the risks ex ante. For example, some firms could take a high level of risk, and then simply declare bankruptcy and default ex post.

How would the Treasury determine prices?

From the perspective of providing proper incentives, charging even an arbitrary cost-based price would be an improvement over a zero price, but using market signals would be even better. Obtaining market prices is a challenge because the reason for government intervention in the first place is that the private market does not have the capacity to absorb extremely large losses.

There are many potential mechanisms for determining the right price to charge, including:

1. Hiring a private sector actuarial firm to determine the actuarial fair price, and then adjusting this price to reflect standard underwriting costs for catastrophe insurance. (There is much data in the private market for catastrophe insurance with which to determine the adjustment factor.)
2. The government could offer to sell a small “slice” (e.g., 1-2%) of the excess loss to the private market. Example: The government then offers to the private market a

securitized package along the lines of “1% of losses between $50 billion and $100 billion.” Thus, the maximum exposure to the purchaser of this contract is $0.5 billion, and in expectation is much less. Such a package could be sold directly to a private actor (e.g., Berkshire Hathaway) and use that price as a basis for setting premiums.

3. The government could directly securitize a portion of the excess loss coverage through the use of Treasury-issued “cat bonds” or “cat call options.” For example, the government could sell catastrophic option contracts that pay out when aggregate insured losses exceeding a certain amount. One type of contract is the Catastrophic Options contract that trades on the Chicago Board of Trade. The model for these types of contracts is already in place and could be quickly implemented.

I talked to Miguel. He is excited (in a Miguel way) about possibility of being part of Friday's events. Please let me know any details about the time for the events so that I can pass on to him. Also, please let me know your ideas about nature of any remarks he should make in Indian Treaty Room.

I thought of another possibility on liability -- too late unfortunately.
In addition to or instead of pursuing fed reforms, we could support tort reform efforts in the states. We could privately or publicly work through the Govs to enact terrorism related tort reform limiting damages, capping atty's fees, etc.

I take from your 7/27/01 email, that the fact that some Blackberry email many not be records managed is acceptable... is this right?

Brett-- Looks like we're moving forward with "blackberries" full speed ahead. At your earliest convenience, please provide a memo which states that Counsel approves the use of two way pagers. Thanks--AMH

803, 809	(1) Amends list of terrorism crimes in 18 USC 2332b(g)(5)(B) – adds some but deletes or restricts others. (2) Makes conforming amendment to 2332b(f) to avoid reduction of A.G.'s primary investigative jurisdiction. (3) Adds definition of "domestic terrorism" to 18 USC 2331 and makes conforming change in existing definition of "international terrorism."	309	(1) Creates new 18 USC 25 defining "Federal terrorism offense," including terrorist motivation requirement in 25(1), and offense list in 25(2)–(5). (2) Substitutes "Federal terrorism offense" as defined in the new section 25 for the existing offense list in 18 USC 2332b(g)(5). (This affects the A.G.'s primary investigative jurisdiction under 2332b(f).) (3) Terrorism definitions differ – House definition of "domestic terrorism" includes apparent effect (not just intent).
804	Creates new harboring offense where perpetrator knows or has reasonable grounds to believe that the person harbored has committed or is about to commit an offense in a short list of highly serious terrorism crimes. Includes venue provision	307	Creates harboring offense where perpetrator knows that the person harbored has committed or is about to commit an offense in the 25(2) list of terrorism crimes. (The provisions says "section 25(2) or this title," which would cover all title 18 offenses; presumably this is a drafting error and the intended reference is just the 25(2) offenses.) Includes explicit extraterritoriality and venue provisions.
805	Includes in special maritime and territorial jurisdiction offenses in U.S. foreign missions and related residences, committed by or against U.S. nationals. Excludes offenses by persons covered under 18 USC 3261(a) (which provides	355	Senate provision broader regarding coverage of buildings and lands associated with the missions separate extraterritorial provision for persons accompanying the armed forces)

806	In material support of terrorists offense: (1) deletes "within the U.S." restriction, (2) adds some additional predicate offenses, (3) adds venue for prosecution in district of underlying offense, (4) adds "monetary instruments" and "expert advice or assistance" as types of prohibited support. Also, adds material support of foreign terrorist organizations as money laundering predicate.	306, 402	Does not delete "within the U. S." restriction; amends material support predicates to be "any Federal terrorism offense" (as defined in section 309(a)) and all terrorism crimes in 25(2) list; same as Senate bill on venue, "monetary instruments," "expert advice or assistance," and money laundering predicates
806(a)(1)(A)	Strikes restriction of scope of the material support of terrorists offense to acts within the United States	354	General provision providing extraterritorial jurisdiction over any "Federal terrorism offense" (as defined in section 309(a)) or offense under the terrorism chapter of title 18
806(b) (and also sections 809 and 814)	Makes 18 U.S.C. § 2339B a specified unlawful activity for money laundering offenses; section 806(b) does this the same way as section 401 of the House bill; however, section 806(b) is redundant in the Senate bill because 809 accomplishes the same result by adding 18 U.S.C. § 2339B to 18 U.S.C. §2332b(g)(5)(B) which section 814 incorporates into 18 U.S.C. § 1961(1), all	401	House bill specifically adds 18 U.S.C. §2339B (material support to foreign terrorist organizations) as a new specified unlawful activity (SUA) for money laundering offenses at 18 U.S.C. § 1956(c)(7)(D)

	of whose offenses are specified unlawful activities (SUAs) for money laundering under to 18 U.S.C. § 1956(c)(7)(A).

Subject: POTOOL QUESTION

Noel, I've been invited to present the President's education agenda to the GA Republican Party. Since it's work-related, can they pay for my ticket? How does that work. I want to make sure everything is done above board, so in the interest of full disclosure, my family lives in GA (I am a former GA resident). Will that affect the ethics of my invitation?

All,

Cantwell's CoS, Caroline Fredickson (224-3441), just called me to get reaction on a proposal to limit the "a significant purpose" change to only non-U.S. citizens. I said that we would be opposed because it does not make sense conceptually and impossible operationally. I said that fears of misuse of FISA for criminal investigations are unfounded, etc., but she said she would still try to pursue it.

1. strip 111 and 112 (they are a package from H.R. 5018--I'm not trying to cheat).

2. Strip 162 (sunset)

3. substitute Senate or admin. provisions on info sharing (103, 154 and 353--again, I'm not trying to cheat).

Since I have your attention, will you permit me to go on to 4-6, as follows:

4. Substitute Admin. position on 201&202 (revised section 201(a), which we agreed to with State, attached).

5. strip section 702 (deputy IG)

6. strip Frank amendment (161) but this may be worked out, according to Carl Thorsen

Subject: Legislation--Most wanted provisions

Ambassador Jerry Bremer, Chairman of the President's Commission on Terrorism, is testifying before House Government Operations tomorrow. When I noted that the House had not included many of our legislative provisions (e.g IEEPA), Jerry asked me for some more examples that he can note in his testimony. He's a very persuasive advocate.

Can you all give me a few provisions of our provisions that either the House or Senate failed to include for Jerry to highlight? Need some ideas in the next couple of hours. Thanks.

Conceptually, yes, the RNC can pay for this. A few questions:
Who is coming? If we have some political invitees, then that would be helpful if the political entity is paying. Also, is the President speaking?

HI. I wrote a fundraising letter from our finance committee team, on behalf of Thune, to all of our $1000 donors (on my lap top at home). Is it permissible for me to ask Matthew Scully or David Frum to come by and tweak it a bit, since they are excellent writers? Or should I not do that since they are not political staff? Thanks.

Something is jiggy with Title VIII: Looks like 302 is an earlier version of 805 and 303-304 are identical to 806-807. And the definition of domestic terrorism (803 from the Senate bill) has been deleted from these House bills.

weekly mtg on Judicial nominees. You will recall the last meeting was on 9/11, and Viet and I think it would be helpful to all to regroup and bring everyone upto speed on various developments, as we prepare our strategy for the remainder of the year.

Given the fact that our usual mtg place does not provide us with adequate privacy (last time, Ralp Neas was there), tuesday's meeting will take place here in Dirksen 145. Hope to see you then. Makan

ATT CREATION TIME/DATE: 0 00:00:00.00

File attachment <P_VSK74004_WHO.TXT_1>

The Supreme Court opened its new Term on Monday. The most stable Court in history -- the same Justices have been serving since the opening of the 1994 Term -- issued its end-of-summer orders and began its long march toward a rush of decisions concluding with its anticipated June 2002 adjournment. Two cases were argued, and a host of lawyers from around the country were admitted to practice in the nation's highest court. But the ostensibly routine proceedings were not the same. With no recent precedent from which to draw, Chief Justice Rehnquist opened the Court's new session with a stirring tribute to the nation's courage and greatness. The great tide of recent events had not simply passed the Justices by. To the contrary, the Chief made specific reference to Solicitor General Ted Olson and the loss of his wife, Barbara. The Court family had been directly touched.

Not on the docket, but looming large in the background, were legal issues of high moment stemming from the September 11 attacks. Proposed legislation aimed at re-arming law enforcement in the struggle against terrorism was under debate across the oak-dotted lawn on Capitol Hill. Justice O'Connor, the week before, made what was seen by the press as an indirect reference to the Court's role in that unfolding debate -- and that of the judiciary more generally -- in remarks at New York University's School of Law. She spoke strongly about the need, even in crisis, "to preserve the rule of law." Part of her message was universal: The need to persuade "a sometimes hostile world that our dream of a society that conforms to the rule of law is a dream we all should share." But her point was also directed to the homeland, as if aimed at the congressional debate on the anti-terrorist legislation. "We wish it were not necessary; we wish we could set the clock back. But to preserve liberty, we must preserve the rule of law."

The Court is, of course, ordinarily the last word on these and other issues of moment, as we saw in the epic (and unexpected) high-stakes litigation last autumn culminating in Bush v. Gore. Toqueville wisely observed early in our history that, in this country, great issues of policy almost invariably become questions of law. The Court's landmark decision in the Steel Seizure case during the Korean Conflict stands as a jolting reminder that, even in times of war, the Court will strike down actions by the President if they are incompatible with constitutional or statutory commands. And so the question arises, whether the proposals submitted by the Administration -- which formed the basis for bills separately passed by the House and Senate in recent days -- will pass muster under the scrutiny of a closely-divided Court that frequently resolves some of the thorniest legal issues by a razor-thin 5-4 margin.

My early-on prediction is that the proposals will fare very well indeed when and if called to run the Supreme Court gauntlet. Much of the Administration's package is mild and non-controversial and responds directly to the threat of terrorist activities in the United States and against United States citizens. The lion's share of the proposals therefore will not pose difficult or novel legal questions.

One reason is that a unifying theme of the proposals is simply to update and modernize aging provisions of law, ensuring that the law enforcement arsenal employed in anti-terrorism investigations is as modern and serviceable as that used in, say, drug investigations. A number of these laws were enacted in a quieter era of rotary telephones. Terrorists and their support rings are thoroughly modern, using the Internet, e-mail and multiple cellular phones. The proposed law would apply the same legal standards that govern wiretaps on telephones to e-mail and the like. The government should not have to fight a modern war -- one that threatens our people and our way of life -- with antique weapons. The idea here is technological neutrality. Law enforcement's ability to detect the most serious and unsettling of crimes should not depend on the technology used by the would-be assailants and their comrades. The point is that there is no change in the legal standards that govern when or under what circumstances federal law enforcement could seek such information. That means the Supreme Court will choose to remain on the sidelines -- no one is purporting to change the law, as happened when Congress purported to overrule the Miranda decision only to find the Rehnquist Court rallying to its defense.

Improvements are also sought to ease the administrative burdens -- and delays -- attendant to getting approvals from the Attorney General and a special court created by Congress to review applications for surveillance in the United States directed at the agents of foreign powers. So too, parochial limitations of search warrants and surveillance orders would be jettisoned. Federal prosecutors, FBI agents and others would not have to seek, pointlessly, re-authorization in multiple judicial districts (94 in all) across the country. These too present no thorny legal question likely to interest the Justices. No standards are being changed. Legal shifts that fall within the category of streamlining, within the context of settled and accepted legal and constitutional principles, likewise are doubtful candidates for Supreme Court review.

There are also stepped-up penalties, for example stronger punishments for certain violent crimes that are terrorist crimes. These are classic policy questions that involve judgment calls by Congress and the President. No place for Supreme Court intervention there.

And then there are overdue provisions to break down the barriers between the intelligence agencies and the law enforcement agencies. These proposals will ensure that information important to both intelligence and criminal investigations can be easily shared so that vital information is available to all relevant federal agencies. This will help both to prevent terrorist acts before they happen and to severely punish terrorists and those who harbor and support terrorists. The idea again is simple: Terrorists should not be able to benefit from bureaucratic turf wars and agency tunnel vision. The President's new Office of Homeland Security, headed by Governor Tom Ridge, will add muscle to these provisions, helping to make sure that, as Governor Ridge put it, the only turf being protected is the country's turf.

Finally, the immigration reforms in the package are measured and appropriate. There is no authorization for indefinite detention of suspected terrorists, as has been widely assumed. Rather, the proposals are targeted, for example, authorizing detention of suspected terrorists who are otherwise subject to criminal or deportation proceedings and centralizing appellate judicial review of habeas corpus cases.

The Supreme Court, in short, has already laid down the relevant legal standards against which the Administration's proposals, once enacted, will be assessed. And it is plain that the Administration has kept a lawyerly eye on the Court's precedent in crafting the tools the President and the Attorney General want and need in facing the post-September 11 world.

H.R. 3004 - The Financial Anti-Terrorism Act of 2001
(Rep. Oxley (R) Ohio and 24 cosponsors)

The Administration supports House passage of H.R. 3004 and welcomes the anti-money laundering proposals that are included in this bill. In particular, the Administration welcomes the incorporation of due process into the regulations, orders, actions, and definitions that would be established under this legislation. In addition, the Administration supports the inclusion of relevant Administration representatives and banking regulators in decision-making that impacts the financial services industry and its conduct around the world.

The Administration does have some concerns with H.R. 3004. The Administration believes that the jurisdictional factors provided in Section 301 of the bill for determining whether a jurisdiction, financial institution, or class of transactions is "of primary money laundering concern" may not constitute definitive proof of money laundering. In that regard, the Administration especially appreciates the elimination in the House bill of references to tax havens and lower tax rates as possible indications of money laundering concern. In addition, the Administration expects that a small but financially efficient economy would not find itself targeted under this bill on the grounds of these jurisdictional factors alone.

Despite these concerns, the Administration applauds the overall efforts reflected by this legislation to equip enforcement officials with the new anti-money laundering tools needed to successfully conduct the war on terrorism. The Administration appreciates the opportunity to work with the Financial Services Committee on this legislation and looks forward to continuing to work with Congress as these proposals move through the legislative process.

OMB/LA Clearance: _____.

We understand that a manager's amendment to H.R. 3004 is under development, for consideration as early as this evening under suspension of the rules, that makes significant changes to the introduced version of the bill and the manager's amendment ordered reported by the House Financial Services Committee on October 11, 2001. However the text of the new manager's amendment was not available when the description of the bill below was prepared.

Administration Position to Date

The Administration has not taken a position on H.R. 3004.

Summary of H.R. 3004

The description below is based on the introduced version of H.R. 3004.

Title I - Strengthening Law Enforcement

Title I of H.R. 3004 would enhance the ability of law enforcement agencies to identify the financial infrastructure of terrorist and other criminal organizations, by requiring interagency coordination and information exchange.

Specifically Title I of H.R. 3004 would:

abmake it a Federal crime, punishable by up to 5 years in prison, for anyone to knowingly conceal more than $10,000 in currency or other monetary instruments on his person or in any conveyance, article of luggage, merchandise or other container, and to transport or attempt to transport that currency across the border with the intent to avoid the requirement that such currency be declared to Customs inspectors;

abmake it an offense to transport more than $10,000 in criminal proceeds in interstate commerce, if the courier knows the money came from an illegal source or that it was intended to be used for an unlawful purpose;

abprovide that the government need not establish that the defendant was familiar with the Federal statute making the operation of an unlicensed money remitter a criminal offense;

abgive district courts "long-arm" jurisdiction over a foreign bank that commits a money laundering offense in the United States, and authorizes the restraint of assets found in the United States that may be used to satisfy a civil judgment against such a bank;

abexpand the number of foreign offenses that are predicated for money laundering to include fraud, corruption, smuggling and other offenses, including crimes of violence perpetrated by terrorists;

abadd "material support for terrorism" to the list of predicate offenses that can give rise to a money laundering prosecution;

abprovide for the inadmissibility of any individual seeking entry to the U.S. who a consular officer has reason to believe has engaged in certain money laundering offenses, or any criminal activity in a foreign country that would constitute such an offense if committed in the U.S., as well as the spouse, son or daughter of such persons under certain circumstances;

abauthorize the seizure of laundered funds from correspondent accounts (accounts of foreign banks maintained in the U.S.);

abauthorize the U.S. Customs Service to conduct limited warrant-less searches of outbound international mail when there is a reasonable suspicion that the mail contains bulk cash or other illegal contraband. The bill would extend authority to outbound international mail sent via the U.S. Postal Service. The bill also includes a provision that would prohibit U.S. Customs Service inspectors from reading, copying, or seizing any correspondence without a search warrant or the written consent of the sender;

abmake it a Federal crime, punishable by up to 5 years in prison, to knowingly falsify or conceal a customer's true identity in a transaction with a financial institution (including a bank, securities firm, or insurance company);

abrequire the Secretary of the Treasury to utilize already existing statutory authority to prescribe regulations requiring financial institutions to verify the identity of all persons who open and maintain accounts, and to keep records of the information used to verify such identification;

Title II - Public-Private Cooperation

This title would encourage cooperation and information exchange between the government and the financial services sector, to ensure that suspicious financial activities that may be related to terrorism are identified and investigated.

Specifically, Title II of H.R. 3004 would require the Secretary of the Treasury to:

- abestablish a secure website dedicated to receiving electronic filings of Suspicious Activity Reports by financial institutions and provide financial institutions with alerts and other information regarding suspicious activity that warrants enhanced scrutiny.

- abdisseminate quarterly reports to the financial services industry identifying and analyzing patterns of suspicious financial activity disclosed by the reports filed by the industry pursuant to the Bank Secrecy Act.

- abpublish by no later than December 31, 2001, a proposed regulation requiring securities broker-dealers to file Suspicious Activity Reports.

Title II of H.R. 3004 would also:

- abclarify the Bank Secrecy Act's "safe harbor" provision, which protects financial institutions that disclose possible violations of law or regulation from civil liability for reporting their suspicions and for not alerting those identified in the reports.

- abpermit a bank, upon request by another bank, to share information in a written employment reference concerning the possible involvement of a current or former officer or employee in potentially unlawful activity without fear of civil liability for sharing the information.

Title III - Combating International Money Laundering.

Title III of H.R. 3004 would address money laundering associated with off-shore secrecy havens and other countries that generally do not cooperate with U.S. law enforcement efforts to track terrorist assets and the proceeds of other criminal activity.

H.R. 3004 would give the Secretary of the Treasury discretionary authority to impose one or more of five special measures against foreign jurisdictions, financial institutions operating outside the United States, and international transactions that are determined to be of primary money laundering concern. Those measures include: (1) additional record keeping and reporting requirements; (2) identification of beneficial ownership of accounts held by foreign persons; (3) identification of persons permitted to use a payable-through account with an institution outside the U.S.; (4) identification of persons permitted to use a correspondent account with an institution outside the U.S.; and (5) prohibition of, or imposition of conditions on, correspondent or payable-through accounts with institutions outside the U.S.

The bill would require the Secretary to consult with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General to determine whether a foreign jurisdiction is of "primary money laundering concern," by taking into consideration: (1) whether a jurisdiction offers bank secrecy and special tax advantages; (2) the quality of its bank supervision and anti-money laundering laws; (3) the volume of transactions relative to the size of its economy; and (4) the experience of U.S. law enforcement officials in receiving cooperation from the jurisdiction.

H.R. 3004 would prohibit a gambling business from accepting bank instruments in connection with unlawful Internet gambling. Covered instruments include credit cards, electronic fund transfers, and checks.

H.R. 3004 would define the term "bets or wagers" as the staking or risking by any person of something of value upon the outcome of a contest of others, a sporting event, or a game predominantly subject to chance with the agreement that the winner will receive something of greater value than the amount staked or risked. The bill would clarify that bets or wagers do not include a bona fide business transaction governed by the securities laws; a transaction subject to the Commodity Exchange Act; an over-the-counter derivative instrument; a contract of indemnity or guarantee; a contract for life, health, or accident insurance; a deposit with a depository institution; or certain participation in a simulation sports game or education game. The bill would also clarify that businesses of betting or wagering do not generally include any financial intermediary (creditor, credit card issuer, insured depository institution, transmitter of an electric fund transfer, money transmitting business, or network used to effect a credit transaction, electronic fund transfer, stored value product transaction, or money transmitting service, or any participant in such network).

H.R. 3004 would authorize civil penalties, including a preliminary injunction or injunction, against any person to prevent or restrain a violation of this section, including expedited proceedings in exigent circumstances, to be brought by the U.S. Attorney General, or the attorney general of a State or other appropriate State official. The bill would also clarify that the bill is not intended to alter, supercede, or otherwise affect the application of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act.

H.R. 3004 would authorize criminal penalties, including fines or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both. The bill would also authorize a permanent injunction against a person convicted under this subsection, enjoining such person from placing, receiving, or otherwise making bets or wagers or sending, receiving, or inviting information assisting in the placing of bets or wagers.

H.R. 3004 would provide that the "safe harbor provided" to a financial intermediary (creditor, credit card issuer, financial institution, operator of a terminal at which an electronic fund transfer may be initiated, money transmitting business, or national, regional, or local network) does not apply to a financial intermediary that operates, manages, supervises, or directs an Internet website at which unlawful bets or wagers are or may be placed, received, or otherwise made; or is owned or controlled by any person who operates, manages, supervises, or directs such an Internet website.

H.R. 3004 would authorize the appropriate Federal banking agency to prohibit an insured depository institution from extending credit, or facilitating an extension of credit, electronic fund transfer, or money transmitting service, or from paying, transferring, or collecting on any check, draft, or other instrument drawn on any depository institution, where the institution has actual knowledge that a person is violating this section in connection with such activities. The bill would provide that a financial intermediary is not held liable for a violation of this act solely based on the unknowing and unintentional involvement of the intermediary through the use of the facilities of such intermediary in an unlawful Internet gambling transaction, unless the intermediary acted as an agent of a gambling business and had: (1) actual knowledge that the specific transaction is an unlawful Internet gambling transaction; and (2) the intent to engage in the business of submitting into the payment system Internet gambling transactions prohibited by this section.

H.R. 3004 would provide that, in deliberations between the U.S. Government and any other country on money laundering, corruption, and crime issues, the U.S. Government should encourage cooperation by foreign governments in identifying whether Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering, corruption, or other crimes, advance policies that promote the cooperation by foreign governments in the enforcement of this Act, and encourage the Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering to study the extent to which Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering.

Title IV - Currency Protection

Title IV of H.R. 3004 would make it a criminal offense to possess an electronic image of an obligation or security document of the United States with intent to defraud, also increasing maximum sentences for a series of counterfeiting offenses. This title would also conform the legal prohibition on counterfeiting foreign security documents or obligations within the U.S. to that of counterfeiting U.S. security document or obligations.

This title would also permit the Secretary of the Treasury to authorize production of currency, stamps or other security documents for foreign countries if such work does not interfere with the production of such documents for the U.S. and if the Secretary of State has concurred in the production.

Pay-As-You-Go Scoring

According to HTF (Hire), H.R. 3004 would increase receipts; therefore, it is subject to the pay-as-you-go requirements of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990. This Office has not completed estimates, but expects that the effect will be marginal.

DRAFT -- NOT FOR RELEASE

October 16, 2001
(House)

H.R. 3004 - The Financial Anti-Terrorism Act of 2001
(Rep. Oxley (R) Ohio and 24 cosponsors)

The Administration supports House passage of H.R. 3004 and welcomes the anti-money laundering proposals that are included in this bill. In particular, the Administration welcomes the incorporation of due process into the regulations, orders, actions, and definitions that would be established under this legislation. In addition, the Administration supports the inclusion of relevant Administration representatives and banking regulators in decision-making that impacts the financial services industry and its conduct around the world.

The Administration does have some concerns with H.R. 3004. The Administration believes that the jurisdictional factors provided in Section 301 of the bill for determining whether a jurisdiction, financial institution, or class of transactions is "of primary money laundering concern" may not constitute definitive proof of money laundering. In that regard, the Administration especially appreciates the elimination in the House bill of references to tax havens and lower tax rates as possible indications of money laundering concern. In addition, the Administration expects that a small but financially efficient economy would not find itself targeted under this bill on the grounds of these jurisdictional factors alone.

Despite these concerns, the Administration applauds the overall efforts reflected by this legislation to equip enforcement officials with the new anti-money laundering tools needed to successfully conduct the war on terrorism. The Administration appreciates the opportunity to work with the Financial Services Committee on this legislation and looks forward to continuing to work with Congress as these proposals move through the legislative process.

OMB/LA Clearance: _____.

We understand that a manager's amendment to H.R. 3004 is under development, for consideration as early as this evening under suspension of the rules, that makes significant changes to the introduced version of the bill and the manager's amendment ordered reported by the House Financial Services Committee on October 11, 2001. However the text of the new manager's amendment was not available when the description of the bill below was prepared.

REV_00133662

Administration Position to Date

The Administration has not taken a position on H.R. 3004.

Summary of H.R. 3004

The description below is based on the introduced version of H.R. 3004.

Title I - Strengthening Law Enforcement

Title I of H.R. 3004 would enhance the ability of law enforcement agencies to identify the financial infrastructure of terrorist and other criminal organizations, by requiring interagency coordination and information exchange.

Specifically Title I of H.R. 3004 would:

- abmake it a Federal crime, punishable by up to 5 years in prison, for anyone to knowingly conceal more than $10,000 in currency or other monetary instruments on his person or in any conveyance, article of luggage, merchandise or other container, and to transport or attempt to transport that currency across the border with the intent to avoid the requirement that such currency be declared to Customs inspectors;

- abmake it an offense to transport more than $10,000 in criminal proceeds in interstate commerce, if the courier knows the money came from an illegal source or that it was intended to be used for an unlawful purpose;

- abprovide that the government need not establish that the defendant was familiar with the Federal statute making the operation of an unlicensed money remitter a criminal offense;

- abgive district courts "long-arm" jurisdiction over a foreign bank that commits a money laundering offense in the United States, and authorizes the restraint of assets found in the United States that may be used to satisfy a civil judgment against such a bank;

- abexpand the number of foreign offenses that are predicated for money laundering to include fraud, corruption, smuggling and other offenses, including crimes of violence perpetrated by terrorists;

- abadd "material support for terrorism" to the list of predicate offenses that can give rise to a money laundering prosecution;

- abprovide for the inadmissibility of any individual seeking entry to the U.S. who a consular officer has reason to believe has engaged in certain money laundering offenses, or any criminal activity in a foreign country that would constitute such an offense if committed in the U.S., as well as the spouse, son or daughter of such persons under certain circumstances;

- abauthorize the seizure of laundered funds from correspondent accounts (accounts of foreign banks maintained in the U.S.);

- abauthorize the U.S. Customs Service to conduct limited warrant-less searches of outbound international mail when there is a reasonable suspicion that the mail contains bulk cash or other illegal contraband. The bill would extend authority to outbound international mail sent via the U.S. Postal Service. The bill also includes a provision that would prohibit U.S. Customs Service inspectors from reading, copying, or seizing any correspondence without a search warrant or the written consent of the sender;

- abmake it a Federal crime, punishable by up to 5 years in prison, to knowingly falsify or conceal a customer's true identity in a transaction with a financial institution (including a bank, securities firm, or insurance company);

abrequire the Secretary of the Treasury to utilize already existing statutory authority to prescribe regulations requiring financial institutions to verify the identity of all persons who open and maintain accounts, and to keep records of the information used to verify such identification;

Title II - Public-Private Cooperation

This title would encourage cooperation and information exchange between the government and the financial services sector, to ensure that suspicious financial activities that may be related to terrorism are identified and investigated.

Specifically, Title II of H.R. 3004 would require the Secretary of the Treasury to:

abestablish a secure website dedicated to receiving electronic filings of Suspicious Activity Reports by financial institutions and provide financial institutions with alerts and other information regarding suspicious activity that warrants enhanced scrutiny.

abdisseminate quarterly reports to the financial services industry identifying and analyzing patterns of suspicious financial activity disclosed by the reports filed by the industry pursuant to the Bank Secrecy Act.

abpublish by no later than December 31, 2001, a proposed regulation requiring securities broker-dealers to file Suspicious Activity Reports.

Title II of H.R. 3004 would also:

abclarify the Bank Secrecy Act's "safe harbor" provision, which protects financial institutions that disclose possible violations of law or regulation from civil liability for reporting their suspicions and for not alerting those identified in the reports.

abpermit a bank, upon request by another bank, to share information in a written employment reference concerning the possible involvement of a current or former officer or employee in potentially unlawful activity without fear of civil liability for sharing the information.

Title III - Combating International Money Laundering.

Title III of H.R. 3004 would address money laundering associated with off-shore secrecy havens and other countries that generally do not cooperate with U.S. law enforcement efforts to track terrorist assets and the proceeds of other criminal activity.

H.R. 3004 would give the Secretary of the Treasury discretionary authority to impose one or more of five special measures against foreign jurisdictions, financial institutions operating outside the United States, and international transactions that are determined to be of primary money laundering concern. Those measures include: (1) additional record keeping and reporting requirements; (2) identification of beneficial ownership of accounts held by foreign persons; (3) identification of persons permitted to use a payable-through account with an institution outside the U.S.; (4) identification of persons permitted to use a correspondent account with an institution outside the U.S.; and (5) prohibition of, or imposition of conditions on, correspondent or payable-through accounts with institutions outside the U.S.

The bill would require the Secretary to consult with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General to determine whether a foreign jurisdiction is of "primary money laundering concern," by taking into consideration: (1) whether a jurisdiction offers bank secrecy and special tax advantages;

(2) the quality of its bank supervision and anti-money laundering laws;
(3) the volume of transactions relative to the size of its economy; and
(4) the experience of U.S. law enforcement officials in receiving cooperation from the jurisdiction.

H.R. 3004 would prohibit a gambling business from accepting bank instruments in connection with unlawful Internet gambling. Covered instruments include credit cards, electronic fund transfers, and checks.

H.R. 3004 would define the term "bets or wagers" as the staking or risking by any person of something of value upon the outcome of a contest of others, a sporting event, or a game predominantly subject to chance with the agreement that the winner will receive something of greater value than the amount staked or risked. The bill would clarify that bets or wagers do not include a bona fide business transaction governed by the securities laws; a transaction subject to the Commodity Exchange Act; an over-the-counter derivative instrument; a contract of indemnity or guarantee; a contract for life, health, or accident insurance; a deposit with a depository institution; or certain participation in a simulation sports game or education game. The bill would also clarify that businesses of betting or wagering do not generally include any financial intermediary (creditor, credit card issuer, insured depository institution, transmitter of an electronic fund transfer, money transmitting business, or network used to effect a credit transaction, electronic fund transfer, stored value product transaction, or money transmitting service, or any participant in such network).

H.R. 3004 would authorize civil penalties, including a preliminary injunction or injunction, against any person to prevent or restrain a violation of this section, including expedited proceedings in exigent circumstances, to be brought by the U.S. Attorney General, or the attorney general of a State or other appropriate State official. The bill would also clarify that the bill is not intended to alter, supercede, or otherwise affect the application of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act.

H.R. 3004 would authorize criminal penalties, including fines or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both. The bill would also authorize a permanent injunction against a person convicted under this subsection, enjoining such person from placing, receiving, or otherwise making bets or wagers or sending, receiving, or inviting information assisting in the placing of bets or wagers.

H.R. 3004 would provide that the "safe harbor provided" to a financial intermediary (creditor, credit card issuer, financial institution, operator of a terminal at which an electronic fund transfer may be initiated, money transmitting business, or national, regional, or local network) does not apply to a financial intermediary that operates, manages, supervises, or directs an Internet website at which unlawful bets or wagers are or may be placed, received, or otherwise made; or is owned or controlled by any person who operates, manages, supervises, or directs such an Internet website.

H.R. 3004 would authorize the appropriate Federal banking agency to prohibit an insured depository institution from extending credit, or facilitating an extension of credit, electronic fund transfer, or money transmitting service, or from paying, transferring, or collecting on any check, draft, or other instrument drawn on any depository institution, where the institution has actual knowledge that a person is violating this section in connection with such activities. The bill would provide that a financial intermediary is not held liable for a violation of this act solely based on the unknowing and unintentional involvement of the intermediary through the use of the facilities of such intermediary in an unlawful Internet gambling transaction, unless the intermediary acted as an agent of a gambling business and had: (1) actual knowledge that the specific transaction is an unlawful Internet gambling transaction; and (2) the intent to engage in the business of submitting into the payment system Internet gambling transactions prohibited by this section.

H.R. 3004 would provide that, in deliberations between the U.S. Government and any other country on money laundering, corruption, and crime issues, the U.S. Government should encourage cooperation by foreign governments in identifying whether Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering, corruption, or other crimes, advance policies that promote the cooperation by foreign governments in the enforcement of this Act, and encourage the Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering to study the extent to which Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering.

Title IV - Currency Protection

Title IV of H.R. 3004 would make it a criminal offense to possess an electronic image of an obligation or security document of the United States with intent to defraud, also increasing maximum sentences for a series of counterfeiting offenses. This title would also conform the legal prohibition on counterfeiting foreign security documents or obligations within the U.S. to that of counterfeiting U.S. security document or obligations.

This title would also permit the Secretary of the Treasury to authorize production of currency, stamps or other security documents for foreign countries if such work does not interfere with the production of such documents for the U.S. and if the Secretary of State has concurred in the production.

Pay-As-You-Go Scoring

According to HTF (Hire), H.R. 3004 would increase receipts; therefore, it is subject to the pay-as-you-go requirements of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990. This Office has not completed estimates, but expects that the effect will be marginal.

- permit a bank, upon request by another bank, to share information in a written employment reference concerning the possible involvement of a current or former officer or employee in potentially unlawful activity without fear of civil liability for sharing the information.

Title III - Combating International Money Laundering.

Title III of H.R. 3004 would address money laundering associated with off-shore secrecy havens and other countries that generally do not cooperate with U.S. law enforcement efforts to track terrorist assets and the proceeds of other criminal activity.

H.R. 3004 would give the Secretary of the Treasury discretionary authority to impose one or more of five special measures against foreign jurisdictions, financial institutions operating outside the United States, and international transactions that are determined to be of primary money laundering concern. Those measures include: (1) additional record keeping and reporting requirements; (2) identification of beneficial ownership of accounts held by foreign persons; (3) identification of persons permitted to use a payable-through account with an institution outside the U.S.; (4) identification of persons permitted to use a correspondent account with an institution outside the U.S.; and (5) prohibition of, or imposition of conditions on, correspondent or payable-through accounts with institutions outside the U.S.

The bill would require the Secretary to consult with the Secretary of State and the Attorney General to determine whether a foreign jurisdiction is of "primary money laundering concern," by taking into consideration: (1) whether a jurisdiction offers bank secrecy and special tax advantages; (2) the quality of its bank supervision and anti-money laundering laws; (3) the volume of transactions relative to the size of its economy; and (4) the experience of U.S. law enforcement officials in receiving cooperation from the jurisdiction.

H.R. 3004 would prohibit a gambling business from accepting bank instruments in connection with unlawful Internet gambling. Covered instruments include credit cards, electronic fund transfers, and checks.

H.R. 3004 would define the term "bets or wagers" as the staking or risking by any person of something of value upon the outcome of a contest of others, a sporting event, or a game predominantly subject to chance with the agreement that the winner will receive something of greater value than the amount staked or risked. The bill would clarify that bets or wagers do not include a bona fide business transaction governed by the securities laws; a transaction subject to the Commodity Exchange Act; an over-the-counter derivative instrument; a contract of indemnity or guarantee; a contract for life, health, or accident insurance; a deposit with a depository institution; or certain participation in a simulation sports game or education game. The bill would also clarify that businesses of betting or wagering do not generally include any financial intermediary (creditor, credit card issuer, insured depository institution, transmitter of an electric fund transfer, money transmitting business, or network used to effect a credit transaction, electronic fund transfer, stored value product transaction, or money transmitting service, or any participant in such network).

H.R. 3004 would authorize civil penalties, including a preliminary injunction or injunction, against any person to prevent or restrain a violation of this section, including expedited proceedings in exigent circumstances, to be brought by the U.S. Attorney General, or the attorney general of a State or other appropriate State official. The bill would also clarify that the bill is not intended to alter, supercede, or otherwise affect the application of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act.

H.R. 3004 would authorize criminal penalties, including fines or imprisonment for not more than five years, or both. The bill would also authorize a permanent injunction against a person convicted under this subsection, enjoining such person from placing, receiving, or otherwise making bets or wagers or sending, receiving, or inviting information assisting in the placing of bets or wagers.

H.R. 3004 would provide that the "safe harbor provided" to a financial intermediary (creditor, credit card issuer, financial institution, operator of a terminal at which an electronic fund transfer may be initiated, money transmitting business, or national, regional, or local network) does not apply to a financial intermediary that operates, manages, supervises, or directs an Internet website at which unlawful bets or wagers are or may be placed, received, or otherwise made; or is owned or controlled by any person who operates, manages, supervises, or directs such an Internet website.

H.R. 3004 would authorize the appropriate Federal banking agency to prohibit an insured depository institution from extending credit, or facilitating an extension of credit, electronic fund transfer, or money transmitting service, or from paying, transferring, or collecting on any check, draft, or other instrument drawn on any depository institution, where the institution has actual knowledge that a person is violating this section in connection with such activities. The bill would provide that a financial intermediary is not held liable for a violation of this act solely based on the unknowing and unintentional involvement of the intermediary through the use of the facilities of such intermediary in an unlawful Internet gambling transaction, unless the intermediary acted as an agent of a gambling business and had: (1) actual knowledge that the specific transaction is an unlawful Internet gambling transaction; and (2) the intent to engage in the business of submitting into the payment system Internet gambling transactions prohibited by this section.

H.R. 3004 would provide that, in deliberations between the U.S. Government and any other country on money laundering, corruption, and crime issues, the U.S. Government should encourage cooperation by foreign governments in identifying whether Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering, corruption, or other crimes, advance policies that promote the cooperation by foreign governments in the enforcement of this Act, and encourage the Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering to study the extent to which Internet gambling operations are being used for money laundering.

Title IV - Currency Protection

Title IV of H.R. 3004 would make it a criminal offense to possess an electronic image of an obligation or security document of the United States with intent to defraud, also increasing maximum sentences for a series of counterfeiting offenses. This title would also conform the legal prohibition on counterfeiting foreign security documents or obligations within the U.S. to that of counterfeiting U.S. security document or obligations.

This title would also permit the Secretary of the Treasury to authorize production of currency, stamps or other security documents for foreign countries if such work does not interfere with the production of such documents for the U.S. and if the Secretary of State has concurred in the production.

Pay-As-You-Go Scoring

According to HTF (Hire), H.R. 3004 would increase receipts; therefore, it is subject to the pay-as-you-go requirements of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990. This Office has not completed estimates, but expects that the effect will be marginal.

After my exposure to many of the House Republicans' bizarre views on the anti-terrorism legislation (many of them are quite anti-federal-law-enforcement, far more so than Sens Biden, Schumer, et al), I thought David Tell's assessment in this week's editorial in the Weekly Standard was interesting:

"House Republicans are reported still to be hopeful that they can circumscribe the legislation's new federal police powers when a final version is negotiated in conference with the Senate. . . . Amazing. Five thousand-plus people are slaughtered by a foreign terrorist attack on the United States, and the House Republican party's first instinct is hysterical recoil from the vigorous exercise of federal authority. Such a political party is fundamentally unserious, dangerously unmoored from reality. And a fundamentally unserious party is a party that cannot be trusted to hold power in the nation's legislature, especially at a time, like this, of genuine emergency."

STATEMENT
by John W. Carlin
Archivist of the United States^{Stat}

to the Subcommittee on Government Efficiency, Financial Management, and Intergovernmental Relations of the Committee on Government Reform
House of Representatives
Congress of the United States

On the Implementation and Effectiveness of the Presidential Records Act of 1978

19 October 2001

Chairman Horn, Congresswoman Schakowsky, members of the Subcommittee, and Subcommittee staff, I am John Carlin, Archivist of the United States, and I thank you for the opportunity to appear before you this morning on the implementation of the Presidential Records Act. Mr. Chairman, I particularly want to thank you for holding this hearing and for your continued interest in the programs and responsibilities of the National Archives and Records Administration. We are fully aware that with the jurisdiction of this subcommittee, attention to NARA is your job. However, you have taken a particular interest in our mission during your career in Congress and the people of NARA and our many constituent groups thank you for that interest.

In order to set the foundation for this dialogue today, I would like to set out the history of the Presidential Records Act and provide the Subcommittee with an overview of our implementation to date. The Presidential Records Act (PRA) was enacted in 1978 to establish public ownership of the records created by subsequent Presidents and their staffs and to establish procedures prevent a former or incumbent President from arguing, even after the 12-year period, that a particular confidential communication between the President and an advisor should not be released. To what extent the concept of “executive privilege” protects the confidentiality of a former or incumbent President’s communications with his advisors is an open question. If some future President believes that the 12-year closure period does not suffice, that President could object to the release of some document in the 13th or 15th or 20th year. This legislation does not resolve the outcome of such legal action; the issue would be resolved by the courts. The fourth amendment [to the pending legislation] would make it explicit that “nothing in this Act shall be construed to confirm, limit, or expand any constitutionally-based privilege which may be available to an incumbent or former President.”

Floor Statement of Senator Percy, Cong. Rec., Oct. 13, 1978, at 36844. This provision reflects the holding by the Supreme Court that the constitutionally based privileges available to a President “survive[] the individual President’s tenure.” Nixon v. Administrator of General Services, 433 U.S. 425, 449 (1977). But the Supreme Court also noted that “[t]he expectation of the confidentiality of executive communications thus has always been limited and subject to erosion over time after an administration leaves office.” Id. at 451.

Special Access to Presidential Records

In addition to establishing procedures for public access, the PRA also establishes procedures for what NARA calls “special access” to Presidential records that are otherwise closed from public access. These special access provisions are designed to accommodate requests by Congressional investigators, Federal prosecutors, other parties in litigation, and the incumbent President for the ongoing business of the current Administration. However, prior to providing such access, NARA must notify the former and incumbent Presidents and provide them an opportunity to review the records and consider whether to assert any constitutionally-based privilege.

Accordingly, either House of Congress, or a Committee or Subcommittee with appropriate jurisdiction, may request access to Presidential records. Similarly, Federal prosecutors may seek access through a grand jury subpoena, and other parties in litigation may seek access through court orders. The incumbent President may also obtain access to the records of a predecessor on behalf of his staff, such as the NSC, or any other agency, “for the conduct of current business.” 44 U.S.C. § 2205(2)(B). The former President and his designated representative are always entitled to access to the Presidential records of his Administration.

That concludes my formal statement, Mr. Chairman, and I would be happy to answer any questions at the appropriate time.

governing the preservation and public availability of the records. As noted in the House Report accompanying the pending bill:

The legislation would terminate the tradition of private ownership of Presidential papers and the reliance on volunteerism to determine the fate of their disposition. Instead, the preservation of the historical record of future Presidents would be assured and public access to the materials would be consistent under standards affixed in law. The primary function of the Presidential libraries remains unchanged. The libraries are to continue to provide information about their holdings and to make records available to researchers upon request on an impartial basis.

H. Rep. 95-1487, at 2-3 (95th Cong., 2d Sess., Aug. 14, 1978).

The PRA mandates that the Presidential records of an Administration be transferred to the legal and physical custody of the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) immediately upon the end of the President's last term of office. The Archivist of the United States is given the independent legal "responsibility for the custody, control, and preservation of, and access to, the Presidential records of th[e former] President." 44 U.S.C. § 2203(f)(1). The PRA also requires the Archivist to appoint a Library Director in "consultation with the former President." Id. § 2203(f)(2). The Library Director balances archival and public access considerations with national security, confidentiality, and privacy concerns.

Since its enactment, NARA has taken legal custody of the Presidential records of Presidents Ronald Reagan, George H.W. Bush, and William J. Clinton. The Reagan and Bush records are housed in Presidential Libraries in Simi Valley, California and College Station, Texas, respectively. The Clinton records are stored in a records storage facility in Little Rock, Arkansas, until they can be transferred to a Presidential Library that is being constructed by former President Clinton.

The PRA applies to all Vice-Presidential records in same manner as Presidential records, and affords the former Vice-Presidents the same authority as the former Presidents. Accordingly, all of the procedures and authorities that are ascribed in this testimony to the former Presidents also apply to the former Vice-Presidents (except that Vice-Presidential records may be stored at a separate location from the Presidential records).

Responsibilities of the Archivist of the United States Under the PRA

The PRA established Government control over Presidential records while codifying and preserving some of the basic practices that long existed with respect to the papers that Presidents had donated to the National Archives (dating back to President Hoover). As the House Report on the PRA bill stated: “It is anticipated that the Archivist will process the former Administration’s papers in a manner roughly similar to current practices.” H. Rep. 95-1487, at 15. The report also stated that “the determination whether access to a Presidential record or reasonably segregable portion thereof shall be restricted shall be made by the Archivist, in his discretion, after consultation with the former President.” Id. § 2204(b)(3).

The PRA mandates that “[t]he Archivist shall have an affirmative duty to make such records available to the public as rapidly and completely as possible consistent with the provisions of this Act.” Id. § 2203(f)(1). Overall, the PRA represents an effort to legislate a “careful balance between the public’s right to know, with its vast implications to historians and other academic interests, and the rights of privacy and confidentiality of certain sensitive records generated by the President and his staff during the course of their White House activities.” Floor Statement of Congressman Thompson, Cong. Rec., Oct. 10, 1978, at 34897.

The authorities of the Archivist of the United States changed in 1984, when Congress established the National Archives and Records Administration as an independent agency. Prior to that time, the National Archives and Records Service was a component of the General Services Administration. Among the reasons that Congress expressed for making NARA a separate Federal agency was a concern about “politicization.” The Senate Report, for example, noted that “NARS’ subordination to GSA has opened the door for archival decisionmaking which is politicized, rather than professional,” and described problems dating from the Eisenhower Administration through the controversies over the Nixon tapes and materials. See S. Rep. 98-373, on the National Archives and Records Administration Act of 1983, at 10-13 (98th Cong., 2d Sess., Apr. 3, 1984). The Senate Report concluded that “the record, under both Democratic and Republican administrations, amply demonstrates the dangers of politicization which can occur under the current arrangement.” Id. at 13. The House Report raised similar concerns about the “constant threat of manipulation of the Archives’ professional processes to achieve political purposes.” H. Rep. 98-707, on the National Archives and Records Administration Act of 1984, at 5 (98th Cong., 2d Sess., Apr. 25, 1984).

Presidential Papers and Materials Prior to the PRA

Prior to the PRA, and with the exception of the materials of former President Richard M. Nixon, the Presidential papers and materials maintained under NARA’s control at the Presidential Libraries of former Presidents Hoover, Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson,

Ford, and Carter are controlled by the terms of the deeds of gift by which the former Presidents donated their records to the National Archives. Each of these deeds has provisions outlining categories of records that may be withheld from public access for some period of time. All of them seek to protect information that could harm national security, invade personal privacy, or cause embarrassment or harassment. Some also seek to protect documents involving confidential communications directly with the President. The deeds of Presidents Ford and Carter model the restrictions on the PRA exemptions.

In all instances, the Director of the Presidential Library, who is appointed by NARA in close consultation with the former President or representative, was given the independent authority and discretion to process and open the papers, with very limited involvement by the former President or representative. Living former Presidents in some cases would establish priorities for the processing of particular subjects or series of records. In other cases, a representative or review board was established – such as for Presidents Roosevelt and Kennedy because they died in office, as well as for Truman and Eisenhower – that exercised limited control over the decisions made by the Libraries. The boards' principal concern was with respect to the President's personal and family matters, and, in most cases, they disbanded after a short period of time.

Under these deeds of gift, NARA processed and opened Presidential materials based on the deeds and professional archival considerations. Moreover, because the materials at these Libraries were donated to the United States, they are not subject to request under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) or any other public access statute. This meant that the Library staff were able to process and open most records in an organized and systematic way based on how the records were filed or arranged. Such “systematic processing” is generally much more efficient and less time consuming than processing in response to FOIA requests. However, researchers have no legal recourse to challenge the withholding of records or delays in responding to requests.

The records of President Nixon are governed by the Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation Act (PRMPA), 44 U.S.C. § 2111, note, which was passed by Congress in 1974 to ensure government control over the Nixon papers and tapes. The PRMPA also established a National Study Commission on Records and Documents of Federal Officials, which was charged with studying, among other things, “whether the historical practice regarding the records and documents produced by or on behalf of Presidents of the United States should be rejected or accepted and whether such practice should be made applicable with respect to all federal officials.” Pub. L. 93-526, 88 Stat. 1695 (December 19, 1974), sec. 202. That commission produced a final report in 1977, and its recommendations were considered by Congress in drafting the PRA. See Hearings before a Subcommittee of the Committee on Government Operations on H.R. 10998 (the Presidential Records Act of 1978) and Related Bills, 95th Cong., 2d Sess., (Feb. 23, 28, Mar. 2, 7, 1978) (PRA Hearings).

Public Access to Presidential Records

Presidential records are not subject to public access requests during the President’s term of office, and may be made available only by decision of the incumbent President. After the President leaves office, the records are also not available to public access requests for five years, unless NARA has processed an integral file segment sooner than five years. This five year period was intended principally to give NARA an opportunity to organize the records and begin systematic archival processing. At the end of the five year period, all Presidential records are subject to public access requests in accordance with the FOIA. However, for a period not to exceed 12 years from when the President leaves office, the President is authorized, but not required, to impose up to six Presidential restrictions (which must be imposed before the President leaves office and which are not subject to judicial review).

In addition, the PRA establishes that eight of the nine FOIA exemptions shall apply to Presidential records, which stay in effect after the Presidential restrictions expire. Congress specifically excluded Presidential records from the FOIA (b)(5) exemption concerning the deliberative process and other recognized privileges. Four of the six presidential restrictions are identical to corresponding FOIA exemptions: exemptions 1, for classified national security information; exemptions 3, for information protected by other statute; exemptions 4, for trade secrets and confidential business information; and exemptions 6, for unwarranted invasions of personal privacy. Presidential exemption 2 (“P2”), for “appointments to Federal office,” has no FOIA counterpart, but is subsumed, in large part, under FOIA exemption (b)(6). Presidential exemption 5 (“P5”), concerning “confidential communications requesting or submitting advice, between the President and his advisers, or between such advisers,” is similar to FOIA exemption (b)(5), and protects the disclosure of presidential communications, deliberations, and other information that could be subject to a common law or constitutionally-based privilege.

Because the PRA subjects all Presidential records to public access through the FOIA, PRA Libraries open records almost exclusively in response to FOIA requests (or mandatory declassification review requests under Executive Order 12958 on Classified National Security Information), and have very little opportunity to conduct systematic processing of records after the first five years. Moreover, Congressional and grand jury investigations and other litigation has significantly limited systematic processing even during the first five years.

PRA Restrictions

The PRA does not mandate the Presidential restrictions, but rather makes clear that they may be narrowed or waived any time after the President leaves office. Moreover, in the legislative history, Congress advised the Archivist and former Presidents to do just that:

It is also expected that the Archivist will follow past practice in applying the restrictive categories in former Presidents' deeds of gift, and negotiate with the ex-President or his representative on an on-going basis to lessen the number of years chosen for particular mandatory restriction categories, to eliminate entire categories, or to permit release of particular records otherwise restricted.

H. Rep. 95-1487, at 15. Former Presidents Reagan and Bush have both narrowed the scope of PRA exemptions P2 and P5, allowing significantly more records to be opened than what might otherwise be authorized. NARA will work with former President Clinton and his representative to try to narrow these exemptions as well.

The PRA also removes the authority to withhold Presidential records under FOIA exemption (b)(5) after the expiration of the P5 exemption. During debate on the bill, Senator Percy stated that “[a]fter the 12-year period, . . . no document should be withheld simply because it contains confidential materials; such a result would undermine a basic purpose of the legislation.

Consequently, the (b)(5) exemption has no place in this statutory scheme.” Floor Statement of Senator Percy, Cong. Rec., Oct. 13, 1978, at 36844.

In drafting the statute, Congress considered alternative time periods for how long the Presidential exemptions should be available. For example, the National Study Commission on Records and Documents of Federal Officials recommended that the restriction period be 15 years. Similarly, in his testimony on the pending legislation to establish the Presidential Records Act, the Archivist of the United States also recommended a 15-year period. On the other hand, early versions of the legislation set out a 10-year period. President Ford, in his 1976 deed of gift of his Presidential papers to the National Archives, established a 13-year restriction period, after which time all “communications made in confidence to me or between my advisors for the purpose of assisting or advising me” could be opened.

Ultimately, Congress settled on 12 years, which, in the words of Congressman Brooks, “will further insulate from partisan politics the pending public availability of a former President’s records by removing the mandatory restrictive period to include a third election cycle after the President has left office.” Floor Statement of Congressman Brooks, Cong. Rec., Oct. 5, 1978, at 33860.

The elimination of a statutory exemption in no way prevents a proper assertion of Executive privilege by the former or incumbent President. As the PRA itself notes, the incumbent and former Presidents have clear legal authority to assert an Executive privilege over the Presidential records of former Presidents: “Nothing in this Act shall be construed to confirm, limit, or expand any constitutionally-based privilege which may be available to an incumbent or former President.” 44 U.S.C. § 2204(c)(2). As Senator Percy explained, the PRA does not

Republicans, Leahy Continue To Clash (Roll Call)

By Paul Kane

Roll Call; October 18, 2001

Despite growing anxiety about the threat of anthrax, Senate and House leaders said yesterday that business will continue to proceed as normally as possible and that there will still be serious policy disputes over critical issues in the coming days and weeks.

"We will not let this stop the work of the Senate," Majority Leader Thomas Daschle (D-S.D.) said at a press conference in which he announced that 31 individuals, mostly members of his staff, had tested positive for anthrax exposure.

As if to prove the point, the Senate went ahead and overwhelmingly approved the Interior appropriations conference report late Wednesday afternoon and is expected to pass the military construction conference report today. And with serious prodding from the White House, House and Senate negotiators were very close to reaching bipartisan consensus on an anti-terrorism package that would reconcile the previously vast differences between the bills passed by the two chambers, aides said. But the Senate remained gridlocked over how to move the remaining appropriations bills it needs to move to House-Senate conferences, as Republicans maintained that they would continue blocking the spending bills because of the slow pace on judicial nominations. If anything, that dispute has grown more bitter and partisan in recent days.

Colorado GOP Sens. Wayne Allard and Ben Nighthorse Campbell this week accused Judiciary Chairman Patrick Leahy (D-Vt.) of threatening the future prospects of their home-state judicial nominees.

According to Allard, he and Campbell approached Leahy during a cloture vote Monday night on the foreign operations spending bill and asked the Vermont Senator if he could quickly bump up three judicial nominees from their state close to the top of the list of nominees being considered. At that point Leahy, who also chairs the foreign operations subcommittee, wanted to know if the pair was supporting the GOP blockade on appropriations, according to Allard. "Well, he asked, 'How did you vote on that bill?,'" Allard said.

"If I go ahead and vote for cloture, you'd move my judges to the top?" Allard recalled asking Leahy. "He said, 'Yep.'"

Campbell stood by that account of events yesterday, adding, "It's just unfortunate that Senator Leahy is holding up these nominations."

Leahy did not specifically deny the conversation with Allard and Campbell, but his staff hinted that the Colorado Senators may have misinterpreted comments that were intended to be a joke.

"He's one of the senators from the old school who does not discuss conversations with other senators," said David Carle, Leahy's spokesman.

"But it's probably fair to say that if Senator Allard approached Senator Leahy right then to talk about any newly received nominations, the opportunity for irony would have been especially high."

Leahy plans to hold an executive meeting today in one of the meeting rooms off the Senate floor, since the regular hearing room in the Dirksen building will be closed. He expects the committee to approve five judicial nominations as well as 13 U.S. attorneys and one post related to the Justice Department.

After the executive meeting, the Judiciary panel plans to hold a nomination hearing for another four judges. Of those judicial nominees who will be approved or have their hearing, most come from states with Senators who voted against cloture on the spending bill. "That kind of says it all," Carle said.

Some GOP Senators, however, said they view Leahy's comments to Allard and Campbell as part of an overall effort to slow the nomination process.

"This is too important a process to play that kind of political game," said Sen. Jeff Sessions (R-Ala.), ranking Member on Judiciary's subcommittee overseeing the federal bench.

Sen. Larry Craig (Idaho), chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, said Leahy so far had made a "meager effort" in approving judges, eight of whom have been confirmed by the full Senate with almost another 50 awaiting action. Craig said Daschle has "failed to instruct" Leahy to pass more judges out of his committee, noting that the Majority Leader has forced chairmen to pass key bills out of their panels or risk having them brought to the floor without committee approval.

"I see that as a disconnect of leadership or at least an inconsistency," Craig said.

At Tuesday's GOP luncheon, at least half a dozen Senators stood up to complain in highly personal terms about Leahy's handling of the judicial process, according to a GOP aide who was present.

Democrats, however, are standing solidly behind the Vermont lawmaker.

Daschle said Tuesday he was "very appreciative" of Leahy's work in handling the nomination process, saying any delays were due to paperwork problems and the White House's decision to not first vet nominees through the American Bar Association, a process that now takes place once a nomination arrives on Capitol Hill.

"We're doing the best we can," he added.

Daschle also said there was nothing to negotiate about with Republicans and Senate Minority Leader Trent Lott (R-Miss.) as far as the pace of judicial nominees is concerned, setting up a potentially lengthy standoff over judges and appropriations. "We talk about it a lot, but there are no negotiations," he said.

On the House side, Appropriations Chairman Bill Young (R-Fla.) said his committee would continue to move bills and conference reports on a "regular" basis. He said further delays caused by safety precautions may force Congress to pass another continuing resolution at the end of this month to fund government operations, but said passing an "omnibus" bill with all remaining spending measures was not something he predicted would happen.

Daschle had planned to hold another cloture vote on foreign operations yesterday morning, but that was canceled after the revelations about the number of staffers who initially tested positive for anthrax exposure. This prompted Senate leaders to hold a bipartisan conference in the Senate dining room, the third such extraordinary gathering of all Senators since the Sept. 11 attacks. The Senators received a briefing from top medical experts in the administration on the threats from the deadly chemical. Exiting the meeting, Senators said there was a unanimous feeling of support for Daschle and for maximizing the safety of staffers and others in the Capitol complex.

"There's total unity here. There's total support for Daschle," Craig said. "Everybody feels very together now. Whether that applies to other issues, I don't know," said Sen. Paul Wellstone (D-Minn.).

The second cloture vote on foreign operations is expected to come early next week. Because of all the distractions that Daschle has faced this week, Craig said it made sense to put off this contentious bill for now and allow less controversial legislation to move this week.

When the more divisive issues are revisited next week, the fighting is expected to resume. Sen. Jon Kyl (R-Ariz.), a senior Judiciary member, said he fully expects the Republicans to block the foreign operations bill. "It'll be the same vote as before," he said. "Nothing has changed."

Republicans, Leahy Continue To Clash (Roll Call)

By Paul Kane

Roll Call; October 18, 2001

Despite growing anxiety about the threat of anthrax, Senate and House leaders said yesterday that business will continue to proceed as normally as possible and that there will still be serious policy disputes over critical issues in the coming days and weeks.

"We will not let this stop the work of the Senate," Majority Leader Thomas Daschle (D-S.D.) said at a press conference in which he announced that 31 individuals, mostly members of his staff, had tested positive for anthrax exposure.

As if to prove the point, the Senate went ahead and overwhelmingly approved the Interior appropriations conference report late Wednesday afternoon and is expected to pass the military construction conference

And with serious prodding from the White House, House and Senate negotiators were very close to reaching bipartisan consensus on an anti-terrorism package that would reconcile the previously vast differences between the bills passed by the two chambers, aides said. But the Senate remained gridlocked over how to move the remaining appropriations bills it needs to move to House-Senate conferences, as Republicans maintained that they would continue blocking the spending bills because of the slow pace on judicial nominations. If anything, that dispute has grown more bitter and partisan in recent days.

Testimony of
R. Glenn Hubbard
Chairman
Council of Economic Advisers
Before the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs
U.S. Senate on the Budget
United States Senate

October 24, 2001
10:00 aA.mM.

Mr. Chairman, Senator Gramm~~Senator Domenici, and~~, and members of the Committee, it is a pleasure to appear before you today to discuss the situation facing insurance markets in the aftermath of the current terrorist threat. ~~outlook for the U.S. economy. The terrible.~~ The terrible tragedy associated with the terrorist attacks on New York and Washington exacted an economic toll on the United States as well as a human toll, and the Administration is working with Congress to address both losses.

Among the direct repercussions of these attacks has been an increased appreciation of the need to focus public policy on s-

Growth in the U. S. Economy and the Outlook Prior to September 11

It is useful to begin with the backdrop to these events. Prior to the tragedy on September 11, the United States was experiencing a growth slowdown: real GDP growth slowed to only an average 1.2 percent annual pace during the past four quarters, with a low of 0.2 percent in the second quarter, and 0.0 percent in the third quarter. NOTE: Change the numbers after GDP is released. While the probability of an outright recession was low, the fact that the economy was price, market, and service products for new types of risks. In the past, naysayers deemed reinsurance against the risks of natural catastrophes such as hurricanes as beyond the reach of private insurance markets. Experience has proven them wrong. By providing a temporary bridge of three years, a steadily receding Federal presence, and an explicit sunset, we will permit the industry to grow into this new market.

Second, the Administration's proposal recognizes that a limitation facing the insurance and reinsurance industry is its total capacity to absorb risk. For this reason, we provide the economic function of limiting its maximum exposure in order to provide a backstop against catastrophic losses, which could generate large increases in transactions costs for businesses and, ultimately, for consumers.

Third, because the industry shares in the losses – up to a maximum loss – and the share it shoulders rises over time, there will be a profit motive for insurance companies – and actuaries and economists – to begin now to refine pricing models. As I noted earlier, there are economic benefits to the efficient pricing of risks. While no covered individual company can control whether terrorists strike, efficient pricing can lead every covered company to take actions lessen the damage that results from terrorist incidents. After the approach sunsets, the industry will have made progress toward efficient pricing of risks. At that time, issues of pricing and the industry's capacity to absorb losses can be revisited.

In addition, having the industry participate will control costs after any event. If the government agrees to pick up 100 percent of all claims, the insurance industry has no incentive to do careful claims adjustments.

The potential losses facing insurers depend not only upon the security and economic environment, but on the legal setting as well. That is why the Administration approach would also includes elements of legal reform. These reforms to the tort process will bring damage claims closer to their economic foundation and reduce the uncertainty about the magnitude of potential claims. The consolidation of claims in a single federal forum, for example, helps to ensure that the claims will be treated in a consistent manner and eliminates the redundancy costs of litigating similar claims in multiple courts. In addition, consolidation tends to expedite the claims process, reducing the uncertainty about the length of the litigation. Limitations on punitive damages (other than those directed at perpetrators or abettors) and proportional liability for non-economic harms (except those caused by perpetrators or abettors) reduces the potential for open-ended claims. Such reforms are essential for economically enhancing the efficiency of the insurance market by increasing the ability of the insurance industry to price and absorb the risks associated with terrorism.

To conclude, the U. S. economy is very resilient, and, through the combined efforts of the Administration and Congress it is possible to provide transitional public policy to support the needs of purchasers of property and casualty insurance. Thank you again, Mr. Chairman, for the opportunity to appear before you today. I am happy to answer your questions.

growing slower than its potential rate of growth dictated that unemployment rate was likely to rise in the near term. Economic disruptions emanating from the bombings in New York and Washington almost certainly worsen the short-run growth prospects.

——— Growth rates this much below their potential levels are not acceptable. Accordingly, monetary and fiscal policy moved decisively to reverse pre-September 11 recessionary pressures. The Federal Reserve cut the target federal funds rate by 300 basis points from the beginning of the year through September 11, and $41 billion was returned to taxpayers during the third quarter as a downpayment on a large permanent tax cut.

——— Looking outside the nation, the United States had an interest in the resumption of economic growth in Japan and accelerated growth in Europe. During the first half of 2001, GDP declined in Japan, and the rate of decline accelerated. In Europe, the rate of GDP growth remains positive, but has decelerated. Moreover, European Commission surveys of the outlook for new manufacturing orders, industrial production, and consumer confidence indicate recent declines. More rapid growth in the major economies will in turn enhance the likelihood of stability and progress in the rest of the world, such as developing Asia and Latin America. In the absence of resumption of global growth, trends in output and asset prices may force painful adjustments.

Economic Consequences of the Events of September 11

——— To analyze the effects of the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, it is instructive to consider two steps. First, the collapse of the World Trade Center and surrounding buildings acted as an adverse supply shock to the economy. The physical damages from the attacks likely were not sufficiently consequential to affect the underlying potential growth rate of the economy. However, the destruction of the World Trade Center, the damage to the financial sector, and the interruption of commercial aviation temporarily restricted the economy's ability to supply goods and services in the short run. These "supply shock" consequences of the attacks substantially reduce the growth rate of GDP over the next two quarters and increase significantly the likelihood that the economy is in a recession. These consequences also imply a greater gap between the economy's actual and potential growth rate, with adverse consequences for employment.

— This first step treats — for strictly analytic purposes — the attacks as a contained physical event. Of course, there is a second, and more important, effect. Because the destruction on September 11 arose as a result of terrorism, the economic aftermath includes shocks to household and business confidence, and increased uncertainty regarding the overall environment. The effects on confidence and uncertainty give rise to a number of additional supply-side costs of transacting business — ranging from enhanced security to more costly insurance — which reduce output growth.

On the demand side, the attacks and their potential repercussions lowered household and business confidence about the future, and along with it their willingness to spend and invest. Prior to the attacks, a focus of policy was to ensure a continued flow of resources — incomes, cash flow, and so forth — to households and businesses to provide a base for sustained growth in aggregate demand. If confidence effects are substantial, the attacks must necessarily shift our focus somewhat — away from simply providing dollars to households, for example, and toward buttressing the confidence of households to make purchases out of those dollars.

What is the outlook for consumer confidence? To gain a sense of the magnitudes involved, one can derive estimates of the expected decline in confidence by utilizing the changes to the Blue Chip consensus forecast due to the terrorist attacks. The implied drop in confidence is substantial and likely incorporates effects of recent equity price declines. Using the most recent Blue Chip consensus forecast as a guide, the implied decline in confidence is temporary—following roughly the path of the confidence decline and recovery during the Gulf War—and is essentially eliminated by the second half of 2002. The Blue Chip Consensus forecast is, of course, only an estimate. More shallow declines in confidence would permit a more rapid recovery. Larger and more sustained declines in confidence would suggest a longer downturn and slower recovery, particularly if accompanied by prolonged weakness in equity prices.

———To be concrete, the consensus economic forecasts by private sector economists (as reflected in the September 20, 2001 release of the Blue Chip Economic Indicators) indicates a modest recession, again fueled by a decline in confidence and equity values. (While a recession is defined by the National Bureau of Economic Research, we use the term in its common association with two quarters of negative GDP growth.) The consensus estimate is for a decline in real GDP of 0.5 percent and 0.7 percent in the third and fourth quarters, respectively, of this year. Consensus estimates of GDP growth rebound in 2002, with growth of 1.4 percent and 2.8 percent, respectively, in the first two quarters of 2002, and 3.7 percent in the second half of 2002. Even with this recovery, the unemployment rate is likely to rise through 2002 [True?: More details?]

———A range of estimates underlies the Blue Chip forecasts, and that range reflects a divergence of views about the depth of the initial decline in confidence and the persistence of that decline. For example, the range between the top ten and bottom ten estimates is 0.4 percent to 1.5 percent for the third quarter of 2001, 1.5 percent to 2.4 percent for the fourth quarter of 2001, 3.3 percent to 0.8, percent for the first quarter of 2002, 4.0 percent to 1.0 percent in the second quarter of 2002, and 3.8 percent to 1.8 percent for growth during 2002 as a whole.

~~[Insert comment on implied range for unemployment rate].~~ This range suggests the need to think seriously about downside risks and policies that address the source of the economy's vulnerability in the quarter ahead.

Existing public policies also continue to buffer the downward pressure on aggregate demand. On the monetary side, the Federal Reserve reduced its federal funds rate target on September 17 by 50 basis points. From a fiscal perspective, the $40 billion emergency appropriation will provide additional stimulus later this year and throughout 2002. These policy moves will mitigate somewhat the effects of the terrorist attack on output growth and unemployment, and should aid a recovery in 2002, though again downside risks remain.

Implications for Public Policy

This simple analysis of the short-term economic consequences of the events of September 11 suggests important lessons for public policy. Consumer and business confidence is the key factor in calibrating the depth of any downturn occurring as a result of the terrorist attacks and the pace of the subsequent recovery. Indeed, improvements in confidence are themselves a potent stimulus; a rapid rebound of household and business sentiment will hasten the arrival and pace of recovery in 2002. A longer decline in confidence could lead to a significant period of mediocre output growth and rising unemployment, as I noted earlier.

Hence one way to evaluate policy responses is by their effect on household or business confidence. What is the framework for policies?

First, the tragedy of September 11 is a seminal event and policies should be forward-looking, not attempting to simply replicate the world of September 10. Policies should provide consumers and businesses with confidence that the policy infrastructure is in place to ensure the conduct of economic activity in this new environment. As an example, consider the response of the Administration and the Congress to the immediate problems in commercial aviation.

The problem is not simply one of keeping commercial aircrafts in the air. Instead a key feature of the policy response is the provision of funding for enhanced security, thereby addressing the root cause of the airline industry downturn—diminished confidence by travelers. This funding should address aircraft security, security personnel and screening of passengers and baggage. Prudent investment in aviation security restore confidence in air travel, and the hardened infrastructure in this economic sector will also support the numerous industries related to the travel and tourism sectors of the economy

On a broader scale, a policy focus on Security, including efforts toward defending American economic activity against terrorist intrusions. The need for security in economic activity – whether in such visible forms as Federal Air Marshals or more mundane needs like additional backup computer systems – raises the overall cost of transacting business. In this sense, the attacks acted as a shock to the costs of supplying goods and services in the economy. It is in our economic interest to contain these transactions costs as much as possible.

The attacks also raised the degree of uncertainty in the economic environment – from the state of aggregate demand, to the demand for particular goods and services (air travel, for example), to a myriad of other areas.

Commercial insurance lies at the intersection of these two forces. Property and casualty insurance is one mechanism by which economies respond efficiently to risks in the environment. Risks are spread, converting for each business a potential cost of unknowable size and timing into a set of smaller, known premium payments. The events of September 11 induced a dramatic revision in perceived risks. In normal circumstances, increased risks are translated into higher premiums. This serves the useful economic function of pricing risk, leading the private sector toward those activities where the risk is “worth it” -- there might be losses now and then, but on average society will benefit – and away from foolhardy gambles.

At the moment, however, the entire nation is unsure of the genuine likelihood of additional terrorist events. For insurance markets, unfortunately, the distinction between risk – not knowing when an event will happen, but having solid knowledge of the odds of an occurrence – and genuine uncertainty about the frequency of an insured event is the key to being able to price efficiently. Experience with our new security environment will mitigate this difficulty over time. In the near term, however, it would not be terribly surprising to experience disruption of the property and casualty market. In the extreme, customers may not be able to renew policies until the market resolves pricing difficulties.

An interruption of coverage is a particular, and extreme, version of an increase in transactions costs as a result of terrorist-associated risks. Still, there is the possibility that existing lines of coverage will be renewed only with quite substantial increases in premiums. I believe we are all now familiar with the difficulties facing aviation; disproportionate rises in insurance coverage or, in the extreme, withdrawal of insurance coverage, would hinder transition to a new operating environment. This phenomenon is more widespread, however. Lenders usually require businesses to insure any property they use to secure loans. The terms of terrorism coverage could diminish bank lending for new construction projects. It could as well act as a sharp impediment to transactions that permit existing commercial properties – skyscrapers, pipelines, power plants, and so forth – to change hands. It is important to point out that this “changing hands” is an important economic function. The relative efficiency with which our economy reallocates capital from less productive to more productive uses sets it apart from many other nations.

In short, a well-functioning insurance market is part of the financial infrastructure that underpins our economy. The Administration and Congress worked together to restore the institutional underpinnings of the financial markets in the week after September 11. In the same way, the Administration looks forward to working with the Congress to bolster the capacity of private insurance markets to provide the risk-sharing services that benefit commerce and consumers.

Principles for Government Involvement

To this end, the Administration believes that any federal intervention in the insurance market should adhere to four key principles:

1. Intervention should encourage, not discourage, private market incentives to expand its capacity to absorb and diversify risk.
2. Intervention should be temporary, permitting us to review in the future the ability of the insurance industry to price these risks and absorb losses.
3. Private market actors should face appropriate price incentives to encourage efforts to minimize the probability of a terrorist event and to limit losses should such an event occur.
4. Private sector uncertainty about liabilities that arise from litigation should be reduced.

The Administration's approach to Terrorism Insurance adheres to each of these four principles. In order to see this, please allow me to first explain the basic outlines of how this approach would work.

The Administration Proposal

Upon enactment of this legislation, if the United States were the victim of a terrorist attack before the end of 2002, the federal government would pay for 80 percent of the first $20 billion of insured losses, and 90 percent of insured losses in excess of this amount. The private insurance industry would pay for the remaining insured losses.

In the year 2003, the industry would be responsible for the first $10 billion in insured losses, and 50 percent of insured losses between $10 billion and $20 billion. Above $20 billion, the federal government would continue to pay 90 percent of all losses.

In the year 2004, the third and final year of this program, the industry would be responsible for 100 percent of the first $20 billion in losses, and 50 percent of insured losses between $20 billion and $40 billion. Above $40 billion, the federal government would continue to pay 90 percent of all losses.

In the event that total insured losses exceed $100 billion in any calendar year, Congress would determine the procedures for and source of any such payments.

In addition to this insurance component, the Administration approach would also consolidate all claims arising from a terrorist incident in a single federal forum. In addition, it would prohibit claims for punitive damages (other than those directed at the perpetrators), and require that non-economic damages be proportional to a defendant's responsibility (for economic losses, ordinary rules of joint and several liability would apply).

Consistency of Approach with Principles

This proposal is consistent with the Administration principles outlined above.

This proposal encourages private sector capacity building in several ways. First, it is forward-looking. It respects the insurance industry's proven ability to develop the capacity to

I think the only way to have this kind of breakfast (and not have it paid for by the individual attendees themselves) is to charge the White House entertainment account. The problem with this is that there is only a few thousand dollars in this account. Generally, it is not appropriate for outside groups to pay for official activities being conducted at the White House. What is the Republican National Hispanic Assembly, and what would be its involvement other than paying for the breakfast?

Subject: Decision Needed

We are proposing to Karl Rove that the White House monthly convene Hispanic Appointees from throughout the Administration to create a forum to discussing the President's Agenda.

Would we be allowed to have the Republican National Hispanic Assembly sponsor this event and pay for the breakfast, but us send out the invitations, tend to the details and host the group?

If not, how might we structure something like this?

CQ WEEKLY - APPROPRIATIONS

Senate Judicial Nominations Spat Again Frustrates Appropriators

By Daniel J. Parks, CQ Staff

Things had just started to go so well for the appropriators. They had a bipartisan spending deal in hand, and the prickly policy riders that dog the appropriations bills every year had mostly fallen away.

But appropriators hit a familiar obstacle the week of Oct. 15. Senate Republicans -- angry at the pace Democrats are processing President Bush's nominees to the federal bench -- stalled action on a must-pass foreign aid bill and signaled that four other appropriations bills face a similar fate until more judges are confirmed.

Tying up the floor is a time-honored tradition in the Senate. But the latest episode features a particularly combustible mix: a strong-willed Democratic chairman and angry minority Republicans intent on fighting for home-state nominees to the bench.

Post-attack bipartisanship continues to grease anti-terrorism legislation and other bills, and for a time smoothed the appropriations process.

No longer.

Republicans on Oct. 15

blocked the Senate from taking up the foreign operations spending bill (HR 2506) by holding together and refusing to give the Democrats a single vote toward the magic number of 60 required to end debate and proceed to the bill.

REV_00133777

The motion failed, 50-46. (Vote 303, p. 2491)

Republicans used similar delaying tactics this summer to win confirmations of Bush administration nominees. Those maneuvers occurred as Democrats were scrambling to advance the 13 fiscal 2002 spending bills through the schedule, in part to make room for an ambitious domestic agenda in the fall.

Whether the stall will work now remains to be seen. For starters, Majority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., seems to be in no hurry to close down the Senate for the year, and partisan measures have slid off the agenda.

Still, Republican senators say they will not budge unless Democrats confirm more federal judges soon. In a dispute that is unusually personal and public for the Senate, Republicans have accused Judiciary Committee Chairman Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., of abusing his post by slow-walking Bush nominees to fill more than 100 vacancies on the federal bench. Democrats retorted that the only reason so many vacancies exist is that Republicans dragged their feet in approving President Bill Clinton's nominees over the past several years.

Leahy is unpopular in GOP ranks, and the fact that he is the Foreign Operations Subcommittee chairman only strengthens Republican resolve, said a senior GOP aide. At the same time, rumors that Leahy was threatening Republican senators that he would hold up their nominees seemed to whip up the GOP conference.

Wayne Allard, R-Colo., said he approached Leahy on the Senate floor Oct. 15 to plead his case about some district court judges that he wanted approved. Leahy replied that Allard had "voted the wrong way" on the procedure motion on the foreign operations bill. "It's not professional," Allard said. "It's not the way you ought to be doing business."

Jousting or Joking?

Leahy said he has been moving nominees as fast as possible, and faster than his Republican predecessors did when they ran the Senate. He noted that his committee approved four U.S. District Court nominees on Oct. 18.

Leahy also noted the poor timing of Allard's request -- just moments after Allard had voted to block consideration of his foreign operations bill. "I said, you could have picked a better time to ask me to help you out," Leahy said. Still, Leahy insists he was joking with Allard, and that he would never block a fellow senator's judicial nominee because of the way the colleague voted on something else.

Allard recalls Leahy's demeanor as cocky, not comedic: "He was serious, and he was smiling. He was not joking."

Regardless of who is to blame for the impasse, appropriators from both parties responded with outrage. Some Democrats came close to painting the GOP tactic as unpatriotic: "Now is the time for the members of the Senate to exercise the leadership which our people have entrusted to us," Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., declared in a statement. "Now is the time to abandon partisanship and link arms against terror."

Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska, the top Republican on Appropriations, said he also is eager to move spending bills, but he added that he believed his GOP colleagues are right on principle and that he will continue to support them on procedural votes. "You don't leave the team on something like this," Stevens said.

Sen. Minority Whip Don Nickles, R-Okla., said lifting the appropriations blockade will require a promise from Democrats that a specific number of judicial nominees will be approved before Congress adjourns for the year. Nickles and other Republicans said that 40 or more judges, particularly those named before the August recess, would be reasonable. Democrats responded that they didn't even have all the necessary paperwork yet from some of the nominees.

No Promises

Daschle said the GOP's "intransigence" on the $15.6 billion foreign operations bill is holding up military assistance for U.S. allies and aid for Afghan refugees, among other priorities. Daschle said Democrats will keep moving judicial nominees as quickly as practical but will make no promises about specific numbers. "I think we're doing all we can," Daschle said. "Their tactic is counterproductive."

Senate Minority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., predicted that the Democrats eventually will have to make some deal on judicial nominees. "When you're majority leader, you can huff and puff about how you're not going to negotiate," Lott said. "But you have to."

Democrat Dianne Feinstein of California, who sits on both the Appropriations and Judiciary panels, said she disagreed with the Republican tactics, although she said, "I think [judicial nominations] could move more rapidly."

Despite the sparring over judicial nominees, Republicans allowed the first two of the 13 regular fiscal 2002 appropriations bills to be sent to the president. Both chambers on Oct. 17 cleared the Interior bill (HR 2217). The same day, the House adopted the conference report on the $10.5 billion military construction spending bill (HR 2904), and the Senate cleared the measure the following day. Bush is expected to sign both measures. (Interior, p. 2479; military construction, p. 2488)

House Appropriations Committee Chairman C.W. Bill Young, R-Fla., said he was concerned that the appropriations stalemate in the Senate could cause conference agreements or near-agreements on several spending bills to unravel. "Any time there's a delay, there's always reason to come back and revisit agreements," Young said. "Any time there's a delay, it usually costs us money."

Young, who has a reputation for optimistic pronouncements, said the legislative branch bill (HR 2647) and the VA-HUD measure (HR 2620) are inches from the finish line in conference. The Treasury-Postal Service bill (HR 2590) remains stuck on issues related to changing restrictions on travel to Cuba and on a reorganization of the executive office of the president, although an agreement is within sight, Young said.

Conferees for the bills that fund energy and water development (HR 2311) and the departments of Commerce, Justice and State (HR 2500) also are near agreement, Young said. The Transportation bill (HR 2299) has passed in both chambers, but the Senate has not named conferees yet.

Neither chamber has passed the defense spending bill, and the Senate has not yet passed four other fiscal 2002 spending bills.

Appropriations bills tend to be among the very last measures completed before Congress adjourns. And House-Senate negotiators often seem unable to cut deals on the big issues until a hard and fast deadline such as adjournment looms.

"I suspect we will hang out until the very last minute, since no one has incentive to negotiate until then," said a House staff aide involved in "pre-conference" negotiations on one of the bills.

Another complicating factor for appropriators could be the administration's Oct. 17 request concerning how Congress should allocate $20 billion in emergency funds to respond to September's terrorist attacks. The proposal is part of a $40 billion emergency spending package (PL 107-38) signed by Bush on Sept. 18. That legislation specified that half of the $40 billion would be subject to subsequent congressional action. (Supplemental, p. 2465)

Appropriators have not yet decided whether they will handle the administration's emergency spending request as a separate package, or parcel it out among the unfinished fiscal 2002 appropriations bills. The latter route could help speed passage of fiscal 2002 spending bills by sprinkling them with emergency spending sweeteners. However, it could also reopen those measures to a plethora of additional demands for spending by members of Congress.

Meanwhile, lawmakers on Oct. 17 cleared the third stopgap continuing resolution (H J Res 69) of the year to keep the federal government operating while Congress continues to work on the overdue fiscal 2002 bills. The latest "CR" runs through Oct. 31.

Deliberations on the continuing resolution occurred on Oct. 17, as House leaders were debating whether to adjourn early because of the anthrax scare in the Senate. "It's getting harder and harder to do the public's business," grouched James W. Dyer, the GOP staff director of the House Appropriations Committee. (Security, p. 2460)

The White House pressed appropriators to include language in the continuing resolution allowing for an automatic extension in the event that the Capitol had to be closed for an extended period of time. Appropriators from both parties typically balk at any type of automatic spending mechanisms, and they have worked hard in recent years to keep stopgap spending bills simple and straightforward.

Young said he believed that the provision requested by the White House could be unconstitutional. And R. Scott Lilly, Democratic staff director for the panel, said it was best to avoid setting any precedent that would allow the scope and function of such bills to expand, and the measure did not contain any such provision.

Just to close the loop on our last conversation regarding our inability to impose user fees, our last appropriations act provided: "That none of the funds in this Act shall available for the Federal Aviation Administration to plan, finalize, or implement any regulation that would promulgate new aviation user fees not specifically authorized by law after the date of the enactment of this Act." I suppose this wouldn't necessarily rule out having DOT or POTUS impose some kind of user fee, but it would rule out having me work on it!

Insurance Industry Risk Sharing

Question:

If the insurance industry cannot price the risk, why are we subjecting them to any exposure?

Answer:

- The insurance industry is not sure how to price the risk now because it is a new risk. But the plan aids in the adoption of pricing by eliminating the extreme losses from catastrophic events and lowers exposure to pricing mistakes. In short, we have provided substantially more certainty to the market.
- The private sector has the incentives to find out how to price it. Because the industry shares in the loss, there will be a strong profit motive for insurance companies, actuarial companies, consultants, and academics to begin now to find accurate pricing models.
- Industry thinks they can do it: Even in the industry proposal, they suggest that prices should be set by a Pool mechanism, based on long-term actuarial risks. They would not suggest this if they thought pricing was impossible.
- Past history suggests they will figure it out: There are now active markets for political risk, satellite launches, natural catastrophes, and many other events that were originally thought to be difficult to price.

Excess Profits for the Insurance Industry

Question:

Since we are requiring private insurers to have some first-dollar exposure, won't this lead to the potential for profiteering by the industry?

Answer:

- The insurance industry is a fairly competitive market. As of year-end 2000, there were over 2,000 P&C insurers operating in the U.S., with 690 of those organizations providing commercial insurance. If companies try to price the insurance at monopoly rates, there is a profit incentive for other companies to come in and compete away that business.
- Even if the prices charged are higher than the competitive rate, they will still be lower than what we would have in the absence of any government role.
- State level insurance regulation will play a role in determining that prices are within reasonable limits.

Terrorism and War Risk

Question:

What is the difference between terrorism and war risk?

Answer:

- Technically, war requires a declaration by Congress.
- Traditionally, the United States has provided first dollar coverage in the event of war. This proposal does not rule out the government's ability to do that if we enter a declared war.
- We believe it is important to specify this distinction in advance, so that insurers have some certainty with which to write their policies.

Full Government Coverage for Terrorism Risk

Question:

Why not follow the approach of War Insurance where the government pays for all losses?

Answer:

- We do not want to crowd-out private industry. Rather, we want to create an environment in which the private industry can operate and build its own future capacity.
- Terrorism is a risk to all of society, and we will only be effective at fighting it if all of society has moral, political and economic incentives for reducing its risk and resulting damages. The private market is better at providing such economic incentives.

Operations of the Risk Sharing Proposal

Question:

What happens if there are multiple events in a single year?

Answer:

- In the first year, all losses are covered so this distinction is not important.
- If years 2 and 3, the government trigger is based on cumulative losses. Therefore, two $10 billion losses will be treated the same as one $20 billion loss.

Question:

How do you decide how much individual companies receive?

Answer:

- Total payments to the industry are made as a percentage of total losses.
- Each company will receive reimbursement on a pro rata basis.

Question:

What prevents an insurance company from selling “Cadillac” policies at the government’s expense?

Answer:

- The administration proposal would require that coverage against terrorist events not be materially different from coverage for non-terrorist acts.

Tort Reform

Question:

Why is tort reform a necessary part of this package?

Answer:

- With taxpayer dollars being placed at risk, we believe tort reforms are an essential element to assure that liability is based on culpable conduct, not overzealous litigation tactics. Congress already recognized this need by providing for tort reforms in litigation arising out of the September 11 attacks.

$100 Billion Cap

Question:

Why is there a $100 billion cap on the government's exposure?

Answer:

- To preserve flexibility in an extraordinary attack, combined public/private liability for losses under the program would be capped at $100 billion in any year.
- We don't want to create any program that imposes open-ended liability on the government.
- A ceiling would enable the Administration and Congress to reevaluate the program in the very unlikely event that losses reached truly catastrophic levels.
- The ceiling is modeled somewhat on the Price Anderson Act's coverage of nuclear incidents. Price Anderson provides a dollar cap above which Congress commits to take whatever action is determined to be necessary to provide full and prompt compensation based on a plan the President submits.

Background:

The Price Anderson Act states that Congress "will take whatever action is determined to be necessary (including approval of appropriate compensation plans and appropriation of funds) to provide full and prompt compensation to the public," based on a plan submitted by the President. Congress may enact a revenue measure requiring nuclear licensees to fund any such action, notwithstanding the Act's retrospective pooling provisions. (42 U.S.C. 2210(e), (i))

Regarding retrospective pooling, the Act provides that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission may on a case-by-case basis advance funds to enable nuclear licensees to postpone annual deferred premiums. NRC also may provide reinsurance or guarantee payment of deferred premiums if there is a shortfall. In order to advance the necessary funds, the NRC must either (1) request a congressional appropriation, or (2) to the extent approved in appropriation Acts, issue obligations to the Treasury subject to terms and conditions agreed to by the NRC and the Treasury. Funds appropriated to postpone deferred premiums must be repaid to the general fund of the Treasury from deferred premium assessments on licensees plus interest determined by the Treasury. (42 U.S.C. 2210 (b)(4))

Insurers' Liability above the $100 Billion Cap

Question:

Would insurance companies continue to pay some losses if the $100 billion cap is exceeded?

Answer:

- No.
- Leaving an open-ended liability like that would be counter-productive because it would exacerbate the sort of uncertainty that we are trying to mitigate.

Term of Plan

Question:

Should this plan only encompass Year 1 and sunset thereafter?

Answer:

- Three years seems the right amount of time to enable the market failure to correct itself and the private sector to effectively price and manage terrorism risk going forward.
- A shorter duration may not give the plan time to work.
- Presumably we will all have more information on terrorism risk three years from now rather than one year from now.

Mandating Coverage under the Plan

Question:

Should we mandate coverage under the plan?

Answer:

- Currently, this is an open issue.
- The Treasury Department is trying to put incentives into the plan so that insurance companies can price their own slice of the risk.
- It would seem reasonable to require that any insurance company that wants to be able to participate in the loss-sharing program must include terrorism risk coverage in all of their policies.
- This would also help address concerns about adverse selection.

Federal Chartering of Insurance Companies

Question:

Should there be federal chartering of insurance companies?

Answer:

- This is an important question and one that needs to be addressed. But this is not the right time or context to answer it.
- I am aware that several proposals have been made on this subject. They will merit serious consideration at an appropriate future time.

Private Sector Risk Sharing

Question:

If terrorist events are completely outside the control of its targets, then why should the private sector bear any of the risk?

Answer:

- There are two primary reasons: prevention and controlling costs after a strike.
- Prevention: It is true that no individual company can control whether Bin Laden decides to attack again. But every company can take actions to:
 - Lessen the probability that they are targeted (better security, harder cockpits)
 - Lessen the damage that results (better evacuation procedures, better backup systems, etc)

Making the insurance industry, and thus the private sector, face part of the costs of an attack makes it more likely that they will invest in mitigation efforts.

- Controlling costs after a strike: If the government agrees to pick up 100% of all claims after a strike, then the insurance industry has no incentive to do careful claims adjustments. Rather, they can approve every single claim with full knowledge that the government picks up the tab.

Insurance Company Participation

Question:

What types of insurance companies are eligible to participate in the program?

Answer:

- We believe that all primary insurers who operate in the U.S., and who meet minimum financial solvency standards, should be permitted to participate in this program.
- It is important to avoid “double-dipping,” which is why we do not allow reinsurers or retrocessionaires to participate. However, nothing in our plan precludes reinsurance of the primary insurers' retention. In fact, our approach increasingly relies on reinsurance as the retention increases over time.
- The Secretary of the Treasury would have authority to promulgate implementing regulations, which could include financial insolvency standards, or other requirements to assure the integrity of the program. However, to the maximum extent possible, we hope to rely on the pre-existing regulatory standards imposed by state insurance regulators.

Paying Insurers Instead of Policy Holders

Question:

Why not pay the primary insurers directly rather than the policyholders?

Answer:

- This issue is under review. It's essentially a question of what works most efficiently for the policyholders, insurers, and the government.
- A key consideration is ensuring that policy holders are compensated in a timely manner.

Background:

For the primary insurer to receive the payment, a mechanism would be needed for the insurer to report to the Treasury that the policyholder had been paid in full. The Treasury would reimburse the primary insurer for the government's share according to the schedule provided in the plan.

Business Interruption Coverage

Question:

Why are you not covering business interruption insurance?

Answer:

- The primary need in the industry right now is to cover buildings and property.
- Business interruption insurance is subject to severe “moral hazard,” i.e., companies have less incentive to get back to business if they are being paid while not in business, and claims can be somewhat subjective.
- Our plan does not currently include “business interruption” coverage, however, we are open to discussion of this issue.

Business Interruption Coverage and Small Businesses

Question:

It seems unfair to small business owners not to include business interruption coverage in your plan. Are they protected under other federal programs, for example disaster relief under FEMA and the SBA?

Answer:

- Small businesses have another source of federal protection from business interruption -- "Economic Injury Disaster Loans" issued by the SBA.
- Although FEMA provides disaster relief for individuals, these SBA loans are the primary source of disaster relief for small businesses. To receive a loan, the business must be within a disaster relief area declared by the President.
- The loan is based on working capital losses and is used to help the business pay its outstanding loans and bills. The purpose of the loan is to bring the business back to normal and keep it "afloat" throughout this adjustment period.
- Businesses granted loans must file accounting statements with the SBA so the loan amount does not exceed what is necessary.

Background:

- FEMA acts as a "go-between" for the small business and the SBA. When a small business contacts FEMA, FEMA files an application for disaster relief and forwards it to the SBA.

Life and Health Insurance Coverage

Question:

Why are you not covering health or life insurance?

Answer:

- The purpose of this legislation is not to bailout the P&C industry. Instead, the purpose is to ensure that this supply side shock does not reverberate through the entire corporate sector in a way that is severely detrimental to our economic outlook. For example, insurance coverage for is necessary to ensure the continued financial backing of the property industry (e.g., mortgages). P&C lines are more central to this goal.
- There is an important scale issue here. The September 11 shock to the P&C industry is unprecedented in history and severely tapped industry capital. On the other hand, the life insurance industry handles, in a typical day, over 10,000 new policy claims. The capacity of the life insurance industry is not at risk in the same way.

Workers' Compensation Coverage

Question:

Why are you including workers' compensation coverage, but not health coverage?

Answer:

- Workers' compensation coverage is a significant cost for most companies and is subject to regulatory requirements.
- More so than general health insurance coverage, workers' compensation coverage could be directly related to terrorism event-related injuries and it is not related to the overall health of the insured.

Insurance of Government Property

Question:

How do governments insure their property?

Answer:

- Local Governments
 - Self-Insurance. This entails setting up a reserve fund from which to pay claims often structured in such a way that most years' (i.e. small) claims are paid out of income generated by the fund.
 - Insurance Pools. Intergovernmental insurance pools provide coverage through a joint entity, often the statewide league of municipalities. Pools may provide policies directly to governments or reinsurance for local entities that are self-insured. In many pools members are subject to assessments if there are particularly large losses.
 - Commercial Insurance. Insurance is bought through commercial carriers either through negotiation or through the placement of bids. Commercial reinsurance may be bought from commercial carriers for self insured local governments
- State Governments
 - Self-Insurance. Most states have some sort of self-insurance for buildings and other real property. This may be backed up with excess of loss coverage in one or several layers from commercial reinsurers.
 - Commercial Insurance. Some states insure specific types of property entirely through the commercial insurance market. North Carolina, for example self-insures real property but covers automobiles entirely through commercial carriers.
- Federal Government
 - The federal government self-insures for property and liability losses (see Principles of Federal Appropriations Law, Chapter 4 Section c (10)). This is a practice that dates back to the 19th Century.

Create a Victims' Fund?

Question:

Should Congress establish a victim's fund, as was done for victims after September 11th?

Answer:

- This is a separate issue than the one before us today.
- What we're trying to do here is to alleviate a discreet market failure in the insurance industry.
- Including an open-ended compensation fund would impede our ability to solve the insurance problem. We want to preserve incentives for individuals to continue to obtain private insurance to cover terrorism risk.

Tax Incentives for Insurance Companies

Question:

Should the plan include tax incentives to encourage insurance companies to build reserves for terrorism risk?

Answer:

- No. Tax-favored terrorism reserves are unlikely to assist in pricing terrorist risks, reducing insurer insolvency risk, or lowering the cost of insuring high-risk terrorist targets. Such reserves would reduce the industry's effective tax rate, but would not necessarily ensure increased capital to support policy growth. A reserve tax incentive could be both expensive and counterproductive in achieving the above-stated goals.
- We can expect a period of destabilization and uncertainty following a huge event such as the collapse of the World Trade Center. Insurers and reinsurers must reassess their exposures and rebuild their capital bases. For this transition period, we advocate a limited, temporary Federal program to assist the private insurance market in meeting its obligations in the event of future terrorist attacks. Our approach puts billions of taxpayer dollars at risk for the benefit of the industry and its customers. Tax reduction via terrorism reserves would be overkill.

Background:

If the Federal government does not agree to pay all, or virtually all, insured losses from terrorism, the insurance industry is likely to press for additional benefits in the form of tax-exempt terrorism reserves. Such reserves violate fundamental principles of income taxation, and are unlikely to be effective measures to ensure future industry solvency.

A tax-exempt terrorism reserve would differ from normal insurance reserves. It would not represent an insurance liability, but would be an accumulation of untaxed retained corporate profits. Similar reserves are used in a number of European countries with respect to natural disasters. The effect of such reserves is to smooth out over time the insurers' reported profits and to reduce their effective income tax rates. There is little evidence, however, that these tax benefits have created large additional amounts of surplus capital or a more stable insurance market that is less susceptible to losses from large catastrophic events.

Proposals for tax-favored reserves generally do not require insurers to take steps to increase their total capital. Insurers are likely to find ways to substitute tax-favored capital for non-favored capital, leaving the industry's total surplus funds unchanged. The tax benefit could also lead to less reinsurance, and thereby interfere with the efficient spreading and diversification of risk throughout the industry. Tax-free capital for supporting catastrophic risks is available today – in Bermuda and other tax-favored jurisdictions. In addition, nontraditional instruments in the form of derivatives and risk securitizations are becoming more widely used. It is clear that the insurance industry is able to continue to offer terrorism coverage regardless of the existence of domestic tax-breaks for terrorism reserves.

This sort of tax subsidy would not affect the relative cost of insuring the most vulnerable terrorist targets. Regardless of whether terrorism reserves exist, insurance availability is likely to increase (or premiums to decrease) with respect to low-risk targets and decrease (or premiums to increase) in areas that are high-risk terrorist targets.

Pricing of Insurance by the Government

Question:

Why does the government not charge for this insurance? What about ex-post assessments?

Answer:

- The insured companies are paying for their insurance coverage through the industry share of the costs.
- We did not want to involve the government in the collection of insurance premiums, because it is our desire that this program be sunset as quickly as possible. We do not want the federal government to have to create new bureaucracies for the collection of these premiums. Nor do we want the government to become “dependent” on a new, but transitory, source of revenue.
- Ultimately, we believe that private industry, not the government, is in the best position to determine prices. Government pricing could distort the market, and perhaps even send incorrect signals about the government’s “best estimate” of the likelihood of a terrorist event.
- Charging insurance companies for the government backstop, even on an ex-post basis, would defeat the purpose of the government's involvement -- treating terrorism as an attack on the nation and spreading the cost across all taxpayers.
- It also would be inconsistent with dampening the price effects on the insurance industry and the economy in the short term.

Preemption of Existing State Law

Question:

In what ways would your approach preempt existing state law?

Answer:

- We would require all policies to define terrorism risk as defined in this act.
- While we have given some consideration to preempting state rate regulation, it's our view that such preemption is not necessary.
- We recognize that in some states state insurance commissioners may need to give expedited approval for appropriate rate increase.
- We are also reviewing the extent to which we can partner with state insurance commissions to conduct audits of claims processing under this program.

Federal Preemption on Rate Setting

Question:

Should there be federal preemption on rate setting?

Answer:

- This is an open question. While we want to avoid excessive rate hikes, insurance companies need to be able to charge a fair rate for the risk involved in a matter as unpredictable as terrorism.
- We prefer to rely on market competition and existing state regulation to strike the right balance.
- To promote competition, it may be appropriate to require insurance companies to disclose to policyholders the Federal Government's involvement in protecting against terrorism risk.

Financial Condition of the Insurance Industry

Question:

The industry just suffered a $30-50 billion dollar loss. Can they handle additional exposure to losses?

Answer:

- Under the Administration proposal, in 2002 industry losses are capped at $12 billion. This is an amount they can absorb given current capital in the industry. This will give the industry time in which to build up additional capital capacity to handle longer-term risks.
- Even in year two, the industry will only be exposed to only $23 billion for a $100 billion dollar event.
- The industry is still well capitalized. At the end of 2000, the P&C industry had policyholder surplus (e.g., resources over and above required reserves) of $320 billion.
- $23 billion (which would only be incurred if events in 2003 were double the events of Sept 11) is small (only 8%) relative to the $300 billion in annual premiums for the property-casualty industry.
- While the industry has experienced a capital shock, S&P is forecasting a very good earnings year for the industry in 2002, suggesting that its capital base will improve substantially over the coming year.

Financial Condition of the Insurance Industry

Question:

Do you really think they can only handle $12 billion in losses in the first year?

Answer:

- The property and casualty industry had over $300 billion in policyholder surplus prior to the events of September 11. In addition, the industry earns over $300 billion in premiums on P&C lines in a year.
- However, it is important to note that these reserves have taken a substantial hit on September 11. Estimates of insured losses range from $30-$50 billion, with some analysts estimating as high as $70 billion. Based on past experiences, these numbers will likely grow as the full extent of damage becomes known.
- The resources available to this industry not just there to cover terrorist losses. In fact, prior to September 11, it is fair to say that none of these resources had been set aside for such an event. Rather, they are there to cover losses in many other lines of business.
- For example, were a hurricane, earthquake, or some other natural catastrophe to hit the industry in the next year, losses that are not covered by government insurance, they need the resources to respond to these events.

A First-Year Deductible

Question:

What would you think of having a $10 billion industry deductible in the first year, with a 90/10 government / industry loss sharing above that amount?

Answer:

- Relative to the first dollar loss sharing we have suggested, I believe that a $10 billion deductible in the first year suffers from two problems:
- First, it imposes a potentially significant additional cost burden on the industry before it has paid out the 40-$50 billion in claims arising from September 11.
- Second, imposing a deductible changes the economics of pricing terrorism risk at the policy level in such a way that it will likely add to the insurance industry's pricing problems in the near-term. Such near-term uncertainty, may lead to higher premiums or reductions in coverage that could reduce economic activity.
- Suppose a company has a $100 million insurance policy on a large property. Under first dollar loss sharing, the insurers maximum exposure in the first year would be $20 million -- 20 percent of the policy coverage limit under the assumption of a complete loss.
- With a deductible, the insurer's maximum exposure to that property is $100 million because aggregate industry losses for the year may well be under the $10 billion deductible.
- It seems quite reasonable to expect, then, that an insurance company will charge a higher premium under the deductible approach than under the first dollar approach because the insurance company's maximum exposure is greater.

Creating an Insurance Pool

Question:

The industry says that a pool is necessary for them to handle this risk, but your proposal does not provide for a federally chartered pool. Why is this?

Answer:

- A federally chartered or sponsored pool would, by necessity, pre-empt state insurance regulations. This would require unprecedented federal government involvement in what has always been a state-regulated industry.
- We are concerned that a formal pool mechanism might lead to monopoly pricing in the industry, subjecting companies to higher prices than necessary.
- We believe it is important to get the federal government out of the insurance business as quickly as possible, and we believe our structure is better suited to do this.

Pricing of Insurance to Policy Holders

Question:

Won't this proposal cause insurance premiums to rise?

Answer:

- Our primary concern is that companies are able to acquire terrorism coverage. They will be able to do so under this plan.
- Because the federal government in the first year is paying for 80% of even the first dollar of damage, the industry has the ability to begin re-building its capital base now. This will reduce pressure on premiums in the future.
- The maximum annual liability to the industry is $12 billion in the first year. This is only 4% of the $300 billion in annual premiums. Since this loss would only occur with a $100 billion of additional losses, the expected value is much less.
- The private market will have an incentive to figure out how to appropriately "risk class" their pricing. As such, companies will be able to reduce their premium increase by undertaking desirable activities that reduce the risk or resulting damage from terrorist activities.

Pricing of Insurance to Policy Holders

Question:

What happened to P&C premiums after other big events that shook the insurance industry?

Answer:

- Following Hurricane Andrew, there was a 67 percent increase in the price per dollar of limit for RE-insurance in just one year.
- From 1992-94, P&C premiums rose 10 percent in the aftermath of Hurricane Andrew and the WTC bombing.
- The Department of Transportation's initial projection is that, as a result of the September 11 attacks, airlines will have dramatically reduced coverage and pay nearly $1 billion in premium increases in the next year.

We are getting down to the final few integration and operational testing issues and I'd like to see if we can get a "finding" (maybe the wrong word) from you to say something like.. " the carrier provided services (i.e. paging, PIN to PIN communication, faxing, etc.) are exempt from ARMS because these are vendor provided services and, like cellular phone voice communication, it is not technologically feasible to records manage these services" However, all Lotus Notes email to and from Blackberries will be records managed.

Tim: I thought we resolved this issue at least with regard to OA and the other Federal Records Act (FRA) components (OMB, CEQ, OSTP, ONDCP, and USTR). Because substantive e-mail sent via PIN to PIN cannot be records managed and is not secure, I recommend that the PIN to PIN feature be disabled for the FRA components. This is consistent with what we did with the e-mail feature in Netscape and Internet Explorer.

As an alternative, in the event that Phil determines that the PIN to PIN feature is critical for operating in an emergency environment when the basic Blackberry services are unavailable, then the PIN to PIN feature could be enabled only for a limited number of staff determined by Phil to be emergency personnel. Such personnel would have to be advised in writing that PIN to PIN messaging is not secure and shall only be used in emergency situations when the basic Blackberry services are unavailable. Further, emergency personnel would have to be further advised of their responsibility to document and incorporate any substantive information created/received via the PIN to PIN feature for OA's official files as soon as practicable under the circumstances.

Obviously, I prefer the first approach, disabling PIN to PIN for all of the FRA components, but I can live with the second if it is truly critical for operating in an emergency. Let me know if you have any additional questions. I'll defer to Brett on the Presidential components. Kate

From our perspective for PRA, there is no need to disable this feature any more than there is to disable voice mail.

Securing The Skies? The Promises and Perils of the Aviation Security Act
Tuesday, October 30, 2001, 12:00 P.M.
<http://cf.heritage.org/events/eventDetails.cfm?EventID=58>

REV_00133947

federalization around town and in the media now. He will be in town next Monday through Wednesday and we are getting him in to see Administration folks, House folks, on media appearances and he will be at a public forum here (which any of you or your staff are welcome to attend - see above).

Also . . .

- We are putting out helpful information next week on how the President's original economic stimulus plan far exceeds the House plan or the Baucus plan in terms of real economic impact -- hoping that this gets back on track.

- We are also reeling from the Rumsfeld announcement on testing and the ABM this afternoon.

But we LOVE the leadership and statesmanship of this President for current events!

- Langhorne Bond, former FAA Administrator under Jimmy Carter has written a statement on airline security for Heritage. He has given us permission to widely distribute it to the Hill, press, etc. It was brought to a Leadership staff/outside groups meeting today in DeLay's office, will be distributed at Monday's Hill staff lunch and will be available at Tuesday's event with Robert Poole at Heritage.

Securing The Skies? The Promises and Perils of the Aviation Security Act
Tuesday, October 30, 2001, 12:00 P.M.
<http://cf.heritage.org/events/eventDetails.cfm?EventID=58>

REV_00133949

federalization around town and in the media now. He will be in town next Monday through Wednesday and we are getting him in to see Administration folks, House folks, on media appearances and he will be at a public forum here (which any of you or your staff are welcome to attend - see above).

Also . . .

- We are putting out helpful information next week on how the President's original economic stimulus plan far exceeds the House plan or the Baucus plan in terms of real economic impact -- hoping that this gets back on track.

- We are also reeling from the Rumsfeld announcement on testing and the ABM this afternoon.

But we LOVE the leadership and statesmanship of this President for current events!

- Langhorne Bond, former FAA Administrator under Jimmy Carter has written a statement on airline security for Heritage. He has given us permission to widely distribute it to the Hill, press, etc. It was brought to a Leadership staff/outside groups meeting today in DeLay's office, will be distributed at Monday's Hill staff lunch and will be available at Tuesday's event with Robert Poole at Heritage.

We would like to set up a meeting to discuss tort liability on Tuesday, October 30 at 11 a.m., in Mark McClellan's Office (Room 91). Also invited are John Ackerly, Rebecca Beynon, Jay Lefkowitz and (from the CEA) Diana Furchtgott-Roth, Peter Feather, and Wally Mullin.

Would you please let me know as soon as possible whether this is a good date/time on your schedule? My phone number is x55877, or return e-mail is fine too.

Thank you.
Sandy

Subject: Cap Narrative

Per Steve's request yesterday morning, attached please find a narrative description of the New Option for a per company cap that would apply as a percentage (10%) of direct (gross) premia collected for all of a company's commercial or residential P&C lines.. <<capnarrative.doc>>

Explanation of Per Company Payments Cap Based on 10% of Direct Premiums

For the first 12 months of the terrorism risk insurance program, the proposal would provide for an absolute cap on an individual company's exposure to losses resulting from acts of terrorism equal to 10% of direct (gross) premiums collected for all lines of commercial or residential property and casualty coverage during the preceeding 12 months.

The proposal would establish firm parameters for a company's outside losses from underwriting terrorism risk insurance during the early stages of the federal program, thereby providing greater certainty of risk exposure, particularly for those insurers writing P&C policies on high risk properties.

The cap would apply separately to commercial and residential lines. Thus if an insurer's policyholders suffered $100 million dollars of commercial P&C loss from a terrorist act, and had collected $900 million in P&C premia for all commercial lines and $600 million in premia for all residential lines, the cap would be $90 million. The insurer would pay $90 million in claims and the federal government would pay $10 million.

Aggregate industry exposure under this approach would be $32 billion, based on last year's P&C premiums, which totalled $320 billion. ($139 billion for commercial lines and $181 billion for residential.) Aggregate commercial exposure would be $13.9 billion and aggregate residential exposure would be $18.1 billion.

Losses would be calculated net of reinsurance. Thus the cap would maintain incentives for primary insurers to reinsure their exposures up to the cap.

It is possible that the cap would result in an individual company or companies receiving payments even though the $10 billion industry aggregate deductible had not been reached. The cap has been set at a relatively high 10% of premia to mitigate against this happening. Using the 10% benchmark, preliminary analysis indicates that only one of the major P&C insurers would have exceeded the cap as a result of losses on September 11. (see attached chart)

This proposal resulted from a suggestion by Ron Ferguson, CEO of General Re, made during the Banking Committee hearings in response to suggestions by CFA and others that there should be a per company cap based on a percentage of the company's surplus. The problem with a cap based on surplus is that it rewards poorly capitalized companies. The advantages of using premia is that the more a company increases premia, the higher its cap. In addition, premia are readily ascertainable and verifiable.

Brett, Thank you very much. This is helpful; we will, however, need a signed hard copy from Judge Gonzales to Mitch Daniels in the next day or so. Mac

Sec. O'Neill just mentioned that he was going to say at his stakeout "We can't put the American taxpayer at risk of paying punitive damages." It would be better if he said something like "We can't ask the American taxpayer at risk of paying damages without ensuring we have sensible legal procedures."

The American taxpayer won't be asked to pay punitive damages directly through the backstop b/c the generally aren't insurable (although the gov could effectively pay for them if they drive companies into bankruptcy and a bail out becomes necessary).

Subject: POTOCOL QUESTION

Noel, I've been invited to present the President's education agenda to the GA Republican Party. Since it's work-related, can they pay for my ticket?
How does that work. I want to make sure everything is done above board, so in the interest of full disclosure, my family lives in GA (I am a former GA resident). Will that affect the ethics of my invitation?

ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT BOOKS...SINCE THE END OF THE COLD WAR.
-Henry Kissinger on The Clash of Civilizations and the Remaking of the World Order-

"In the emerging era, clashes of civilizations are the greatest threat to world piece, and an international order based on civiliations is the surest safeguard against world war."

<<bair_terrorism_insurance.doc>> Tim, as we discussed here is Cox's letter to Bair on barring punitives and noneconomic damages in terrorism insurance cases. Baker, the head of Oxley's reinsurance task force, strongly agrees. Let me know how we can be helpful on this issue.

The Honorable Sheila Bair
Assistant Secretary for Financial Institutions
1500 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Room 2326
Washington, D.C. 20220

Dear Secretary Bair:

It was a pleasure to meet you on Wednesday at the Financial Services Capital Markets Subcommittee hearing, "Protecting Policyholders from Terrorism: Private Sector Solutions." I listened with great interest to the Administration's proposal on how to set up a temporary mechanism to assure the continued availability of insurance against acts of terrorism for businesses across America. I am writing to let you know of my keen interest in assisting your efforts to continue insurance coverage while at the same time reducing or eliminating the taxpayers' liability in the event that terrorism strikes home again. By far the largest single step we could take both to maximize the private sector's ability to provide coverage and minimize any taxpayer liability is to eliminate transaction costs associated with the tort system, including in particular punitive and non-economic damages.

Any terrorist act triggering the sort of federal guarantees we are considering would be expensive on a scale seldom or never before seen. It would strain both public and private resources simply to cover basic losses like death, injury, and destruction of property, before any consideration of emotional injuries or punitive damages.

Indeed, the scale of losses required to implicate these safeguards is such that to compensate some individuals to the fullest extent now usually permitted under our tort system, including emotional injury and punitive damages, would simply mean that other injured families would not be fairly compensated for the most basic losses such as health expenses, or death, or loss of their entire business; or that such compensation would be intolerably delayed; or both. These concerns are not conjectural: we have seen these unfair results occur repeatedly in the context of so-called mass torts in this country. Though unfair under any circumstances, in the context of an act of catastrophic terrorism compensated by the taxpayers these are wholly unacceptable outcomes.

The Honorable Secretary Bair

Indeed, the airline liability legislation enacted by Congress last month represents a near unanimous bipartisan endorsement of the fact that our current liability system could not cope with catastrophic acts of terrorism and indeed that if left in place it would have literally halted commercial civil aviation in this country indefinitely.

Moreover, losses from terrorism differ fundamentally from other losses the tort system is designed to deal with, in that we know in advance that the overwhelmingly culpable party, the terrorists, will not be before the court. Because the party with the greatest responsibility for a terrorist incident will not be in court, those who are before the court will be, by definition, marginal actors who do not deserve to be subjected to the full panoply of damages usually available in other contexts. This is even more the case if the taxpayers are interposed as insurers of last resort.

Thus, considerations both of fairness and of preserving a fund sufficient to fully and quickly compensate the most serious losses point toward the same conclusion: any scheme to bolster the insurance industry's ability to cope with terrorism, whether private, public, or a mixture of both, must begin by wringing out of the cost of terrorism the large unnecessary expenses associated with our tort system. I strongly support the Administration's attempt to control these additional transaction costs by prohibiting punitive damages and requiring a single federal forum for claims to be made. I also very strongly encourage you to prohibit so-called non-economic damages in this unique liability context.

I appreciate your consideration of these issues and I look forward to working with you to develop fully this legislation. Please do not hesitate to contact me at 225-5611 to discuss this issue further.

Sincerely,

Christopher Cox
U.S. Representative

FYI, At WH senior staff this morning, it was announced that the President was going to sign the PRA order today. Harriet Miers tells me that she has 3:45 time available for the President to sign the order, so I will be walking the order around for your review right away. I'm sorry for the short notice. Thank you, Mac

Kristen -- I want to apologize if I was too "passionate" in my arguments about the compromise Sen. Sarbanes presented at the meeting this a.m. I want you to know that I have tremendous respect for the job you are doing, and the able way you have been representing Josh and the POTUS on this issue. I don't know if Josh has decided yet as to whether this is a go, but regardless of his decision, we've gotten more than I ever dreamed possible on tort procedures, and I think that is entirely due to the fine work you and Brett have done as advocates for this piece of the legislation.

Regards
Sheila

Subject: Nominees & the War on Terrorism

REV_00134239

Heather, Dan, Candi, Jeff,

Thanks so much for attending the AAR. Mark & I will soon type up notes & bounce them off of all of you.

On a related, but separate matter, Santorum has discussed w/ Lott the idea of a press event to speed the pace of confirmations. However, in contrast with the efforts of the last couple weeks, we would like to make a more specific linking of the new terrorism bill to the need for judges. Our message would be: You can't get wire taps, search warrants, etc. without judges; confirm the President's slate so that efforts to capture terrorists won't be delayed. (see related article in yesterday's Wash Times pasted below)

Right now we're looking into an event next Wednesday (2:30) with Senator Thompson's office, and we'd also like to have Senator Hatch's participation. For coalition support, we plan to ask for the support & participation of some law enforcement folks. PLEASE let us know if you have any thoughts or ideas.

Also, we'd love to have evidence of a slowed investigation because of the lack of judges. Who could help us with this? Judiciary Committee? Dept of Justice?

thanks,
chris myers, sen repub conf

Slow confirmation pace hit as hurting security
By Audrey Hudson
THE WASHINGTON TIMES

The Senate is shirking its duty to approve key presidential nominees to lead the charge in the war against terrorism, a leading Republican said yesterday.

President Clinton's appointees were approved within eight months, but at the current speed it will take at least a year to confirm Bush administration nominees, said Sen. Fred Thompson, Tennessee Republican and ranking member of the Government Affairs Committee. That means President Bush will serve one-quarter of his term without his team in place.

"Now that may just be political fun and games until we get to a situation that we have here now, but we see it has national security implications, and we all must do a better job," Mr. Thompson said. Positions that remain unconfirmed include undersecretaries of the Air Force and Army, assistant to the secretary of defense for nuclear and chemical and biological defense programs, assistant secretary of state for population, refugees and migration and two positions at the Federal Emergency Management Agency, deputy director and associate director. Sen. Joseph I. Lieberman, Connecticut Democrat and chairman of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, said he is also concerned about the delay and is exploring a legislative solution with Mr. Thompson.

"Every part of the system is to blame," Mr. Lieberman said.

In some cases, the holdup is excessive pre-screening or late nominees from the administration, Mr. Lieberman said.

"We want to approve them quickly, but we want to make sure they are qualified to serve in the United States," said Sen. Robert G. Torricelli, New Jersey Democrat.

The Senate has confirmed 102 positions, but 14 nominations and 11 announced nominations are outstanding. Additionally, there are 17 holdovers from the Clinton administration and Mr. Bush has yet to name appointments for 20 positions, according to the Presidential Appointee Commission established by the Brookings Institution.

"It's important that the administration get these names up here and that Congress react to them promptly," Mr. Thompson said.

REV_00134240

Sen. Susan Collins, Maine Republican, said it must be a top priority for the Senate to approve essential nominees.

"It is critical to get the nominees through the process to assist and lead in the fight against terrorism," Miss Collins said.

Americans express an increased confidence in presidential appointees since the September 11 terrorist attacks, exceeding confidence in elected members of Congress, according to a poll by the Brookings Institution's Presidential Appointee Initiative.

The nationwide survey compares results from an identical July poll that found Americans were highly critical of appointees and the appointment process.

Seventy-nine percent of Americans now have a very favorable or somewhat favorable view of presidential appointees, up nearly 20 percent. Forty-two percent of Americans now say they would strongly encourage a close friend who is successful in business to take a presidential appointment, up from 30 percent.

"This report shows that Americans clearly believe that presidential appointees play a critical role in government, particularly during the current terrorist crisis," said Paul C. Light, senior adviser to the Presidential Appointee Initiative.

"Americans turn to the federal government in times of crisis because its very purpose is to solve broad, complex problems that the private sector cannot," Mr. Light said.

1ST SESSION

H. R. _____

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. OXLEY introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To ensure the continued financial capacity of insurers to provide coverage for risks from terrorism.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

3 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE AND TABLE OF CONTENTS.

4 (a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the
5 “Terrorism Risk Protection Act”.

6 (b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents for
7 this Act is as follows:

1 aggregate written premium for such insurer for
2 the preceding calendar year.

3 (B) MULTIPLE PAYMENTS.—If any
4 amounts required to be repaid under this sec-
5 tion for a calendar year are limited by operation
6 of subparagraph (A), the appropriate Adminis-
7 trator shall provide that all such remaining
8 amounts shall be reallocated among all commer-
9 cial insurers (in the manner provided in para-
10 graph (1)) over such immediately succeeding
11 calendar years, and repaid over such years, as
12 may be necessary to provide for full payment of 13 such remaining amounts, except that the limita-
14 tion under subparagraph (A) shall apply to the 15 amounts paid in any such successive calendar
16 years.

17 (C) ADMINISTRATIVE FLEXIBILITY.—

18 (i) TIMING OF ASSESSMENTS.—As-
19 sessments under this section in connection
20 with a triggering demonstration shall be
21 made, to the extent that the appropriate
22 Administrator considers practicable and
23 appropriate, at the beginning of the cal-
24 endar year immediately following the trig-
25 gering determination.

1 (ii) ESTIMATES AND CORRECTIONS.—

2 If the appropriate Administrator makes an
3 assessment at a time other than provided
4 under clause (i), the appropriate Adminis-
5 trator may—

6 (I) require commercial insurers
7 to estimate their aggregate written
8 premiums for the year in which the
9 assessment is made; and

10 (II) make a subsequent refund or
11 require additional payments to correct
12 such estimation at the end of the cal-
13 endar year.

14 (4) DEFERRAL OF CONTRIBUTIONS.—The ap-
15 propriate Administrator may defer the payment of 16 part or all of the assessment required under para-
17 graph (2) to be paid by a commercial insurer, but
18 only to the extent that the appropriate Adminis-
19 trator determines that such deferral is necessary to
20 avoid the likely insolvency of the commercial insurer.

21 SEC. 8. TERRORISM LOSS REPAYMENT SURCHARGE.

22 (a) IMPOSITION AND COLLECTION.—If, pursuant to
23 a triggering determination, the appropriate Administrator
24 determines that the aggregate amount of industry-wide

1 losses resulting from the triggering event involved exceeds
2 $20,000,000,000, the appropriate Administrator shall—

3 (1) establish and impose a policyholder pre-
4 mium surcharge, as provided under this section, on
5 commercial property and casualty insurance written
6 after such determination, for the purpose of repay-
7 ing financial assistance made available under section
8 6 in connection with such triggering determination;
9 and

10 (2) provide for commercial insurers to collect
11 such surcharge and remit amounts collected to the
12 appropriate Administrator.

13 (b) AMOUNT AND DURATION.—The surcharge under
14 this section shall be established in such amount, and shall
15 apply to commercial property and casualty insurance writ-
16 ten during such period, as the appropriate Administrator
17 determines is necessary to recover the aggregate amount
18 of financial assistance provided under section 6 to cover
19 insured losses resulting from the triggering event that ex-
20 ceed $20,000,000,000.

21 (c) OTHER TERMS.—The surcharge under this sec-
22 tion shall—

23 (1) be based on a percentage of the amount of 24 commercial property and casualty insurance cov-
25 erage that a policy provides; and

1 (2) be imposed with respect to all commercial
2 property and casualty insurance coverage written
3 during the period referred to in subsection (b).

4 SEC. 9. ADMINISTRATION OF ASSESSMENTS AND SUR-
5 CHARGES.

6 (a) MANNER AND METHOD.—The appropriate Ad-
7 ministrator shall provide for the manner and method of 8 carrying out assessments under section 7 and surcharges
9 under section 8, including the timing and procedures of
10 making assessments and surcharges, notifying commercial
11 insurers of assessments or surcharge requirements, col-
12 lecting payments from and surcharges through commercial
13 insurers, and refunding of any excess amounts paid or
14 crediting such amounts against future assessments.

15 (b) TIMING OF COVERAGES AND ASSESSMENTS.—
16 The appropriate Administrator may adjust the timing of
17 coverages and assessments provided under this Act to pro-
18 vide for equivalent application of the provisions of this Act
19 to commercial insurers and policies that are not based on
20 a calendar year.

21 (c) APPLICATION TO SELF-INSURANCE ARRANGE-
22 MENTS.—The appropriate Administrator may, in con-
23 sultation with the NAIC, apply the provisions of this Act,
24 as appropriate, to self-insurance arrangements by munici-
25 palities and other entities, but only if such application is

1 determined before the occurrence of a triggering event and
2 all of the provisions of this Act are applied uniformly to
3 such entities.

4 (d) ADJUSTMENT.—The appropriate Administrator
5 may adjust the assessments charged under section 7 or
6 the percentage imposed under the surcharge under section
7 8 at any time, as the appropriate Administrator considers
8 appropriate to protect the national interest, which may in-
9 clude avoiding unreasonable economic disruption or exces-
10 sive market instability.

11 SEC. 10. RESERVE FOR TERRORISM COVERAGE UNDER
12 COMMERCIAL LINES OF BUSINESS.

13 (a) IN GENERAL.—Section 832 of the Internal Rev-
14 enue Code of 1986 (relating to insurance company taxable
15 income) is amended by adding at the end the following
16 new subsection:

17 “(h) TERRORISM RESERVE FOR COMMERCIAL LINES
18 OF BUSINESS.—In the case of an insurance company sub-
19 ject to tax under section 831(a)—

20 “(1) INCLUSION FOR DECREASES, AND DEDUC-
21 TION FOR INCREASES, IN BALANCE OF RESERVE.—

22 “(A) DECREASE TREATED AS GROSS IN-
23 COME.—If for any taxable year—

24 “(i) the opening balance for the ter-
25 rorism commercial business reserve exceeds

1 “(ii) the closing balance for such re-
2 serve,
3 such excess shall be included in gross income
4 under subsection (b)(1)(F).

5 “(B) INCREASE TREATED AS DEDUC-
6 TION.—If for any taxable year—

7 “(i) the closing balance for the ter-
8 rorism commercial business reserve exceeds

9 “(ii) the opening balance for such re-
10 serve,
11 such excess shall be taken into account as a de-
12 duction under subsection (c)(14).

13 “(2) TERRORISM COMMERCIAL BUSINESS RE-
14 SERVE.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘ter-
15 rorism commercial business reserve’ means amounts
16 held in a segregated account (or other separately
17 identifiable arrangement or account) which are set
18 aside exclusively—

19 “(A) to mature or liquidate, either by pay-
20 ment or reinsurance, future unaccrued claims
21 arising from declared terrorism losses under
22 commercial lines of business, and

23 “(B) if so directed by the insurance com-
24 missioner of any State, to pay other claims as

1 part of a plan of the company to avoid insol-
2 vency.

3 “(3) LIMITATION ON AMOUNT OF RESERVE.—

4 “(A) IN GENERAL.—If the closing balance
5 of any terrorism commercial business reserve
6 for any taxable year exceeds such reserve’s limit
7 for such year—

8 “(i) such excess shall be included in
9 gross income under subsection (b)(1)(F)
10 for the following taxable year, and

11 “(ii) if such excess is distributed dur-
12 ing such following taxable year, the open-
13 ing balance of such reserve for such fol-
14 lowing taxable year shall be determined
15 without regard to such excess.

16 “(B) RESERVE LIMIT.—

17 “(i) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of
18 subparagraph (A), a reserve’s limit for any
19 taxable year is such reserve’s allocable
20 share of the national limit for the calendar
21 year in which such taxable year begins.

22 “(ii) NATIONAL LIMIT.—The national 23 limit is $40,000,000,000 ($13,340,000,000
24 for 2002).

25 “(iii) ALLOCATION OF LIMIT.—

1 “(I) IN GENERAL.—A reserve’s
2 allocable share of the national limit
3 for any calendar year is the amount
4 which bears the same ratio to the na-
5 tional limit for such year as the com-
6 pany’s net written premiums for com-
7 mercial lines of business bears to such
8 net written premiums for all compa-
9 nies for commercial line of business.

10 “(II) EXCLUSION OF PREMIUMS
11 FOR INSURANCE NOT COVERING DE-
12 CLARED TERRORISM LOSSES AND FOR
13 REINSURANCE.—Subclause (I) shall
14 be applied without regard to pre-
15 miums for insurance which does not
16 cover declared terrorism losses and
17 premiums for reinsurance.

18 “(III) DETERMINATION OF NET
19 WRITTEN PREMIUMS.—Except as oth-
20 erwise provided in this section, all de-
21 terminations under this subsection
22 shall be made on the basis of the
23 amounts required to be set forth on
24 the annual statement approved by the

1 National Association of Insurance
2 Commissioners.

3 “(iv) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT OF
4 LIMIT.—In the case of any calendar year
5 after 2002, the $40,000,000,000 amount
6 in clause (ii) shall be increased by an
7 amount equal to the product of—

8 “(I) such dollar amount, and

9 “(II) the cost-of-living adjust-
10 ment determined under subsection
11 (f)(3) for such calendar year, deter-
12 mined by substituting ‘calendar year
13 2001’ for ‘calendar year 1992’ in sub-
14 paragraph (B) thereof.

15 If any amount after adjustment under the
16 preceding sentence is not a multiple of
17 $1,000,000, such amount shall be rounded
18 to the nearest multiple of $1,000,000.

19 “(4) DECLARED TERRORISM LOSSES.—For pur-
20 poses of this subsection—

21 “(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘declared
22 terrorism losses’ means, with respect to a tax-
23 able year—

24 “(i) the amount of losses and loss ad-
25 justment expenses incurred in commercial

1 lines of business that are attributable to 1
2 or more declared terrorism events, plus

3 “(ii) any nonrecoverable assessments,
4 surcharges, or other liabilities that are
5 borne by the company and are attributable
6 to such events.

7 “(B) DECLARED TERRORISM EVENT.—The
8 term ‘declared terrorism event’ means any event
9 declared by the President to be an act of ter-
10 rorism against the United States for purposes
11 of this section.

12 “(5) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall pre-
13 scribe such regulations as may be appropriate to 14 carry out this subsection, and shall prescribe such
15 regulations after consultation with the National As-
16 sociation of Insurance Commissioners.”

17 (b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

18 (1) Paragraph (1) of section 832(b) of such 19 Code is amended by striking “and” at the end of 20 subparagraph (D), by striking the period at the end
21 of subparagraph (E) and inserting in lieu thereof “,
22 and”, and by adding at the end the following new
23 subparagraph:

24 “(F) each net decrease in reserves which is
25 required by paragraph (1) or (3) of subsection

- Sec. 1. Short title and table of contents.
- Sec. 2. Congressional findings.
- Sec. 3. Designation of Administrators.
- Sec. 4. Submission of premium information to Administrator.
- Sec. 5. Triggering determination and covered period.
- Sec. 6. Federal cost-sharing for commercial insurers.
- Sec. 7. Assessments.
- Sec. 8. Terrorism loss repayment surcharge.
- Sec. 9. Administration of assessments and surcharges.
- Sec. 10. Reserve for terrorism coverage under commercial lines of business.
- Sec. 11. State preemption.
- Sec. 12. Consistent State guidelines for coverage for acts of terrorism.
- Sec. 13. Consultation with State insurance regulators and NAIC.
- Sec. 14. Sovereign immunity protections.
- Sec. 15. Study of potential effects of terrorism on life insurance industry.
- Sec. 16. Definitions.
- Sec. 17. Extension of program.
- Sec. 18. Regulations.

1 SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS.

2 The Congress finds that—

3 (1) the terrorist attacks on the World Trade
4 Center and the Pentagon of September 11, 2001, re-
5 sulted in a large number of deaths and injuries, the
6 destruction and damage to buildings, and interrup-
7 tion of business operations;

8 (2) the attacks have inflicted possibly the larg-
9 est losses ever incurred by insurers and reinsurers;

10 (3) while the insurance and reinsurance indus-
11 tries have committed to pay the losses arising from 12 the September 11 attacks, the resulting disruption
13 has created widespread market uncertainties with re-
14 gard to the risk of losses arising from possible fu-
15 ture terrorist attacks;

16 (4) such uncertainty threatens the continued
17 availability of United States commercial property

1 (h) to be taken into account under this sub-
2 paragraph.”

3 (2) Subsection (c) of section 832 of such Code
4 is amended by striking “and” at the end of para-
5 graph (12), by striking the period at the end of
6 paragraph (13) and inserting in lieu thereof “; and”,
7 and by adding at the end the following new para-
8 graph:

9 “(14) each net increase in reserves which is re-
10 quired by subsection (h)(1) to be taken into account
11 under this paragraph.”

12 (c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by
13 this subsection shall apply to taxable years beginning after
14 December 31, 2001.

15 SEC. 11. STATE PREEMPTION.

16 (a) COVERED PERILS.—A commercial insurer shall
17 be considered to have complied with any State law that
18 requires or regulates the provision of insurance coverage
19 for acts of terrorism if the insurer provides coverage in 20 accordance with the definitions regarding acts of terrorism
21 under the regulations issued by the Administrators.

22 (b) RATE LAWS.—If any provision of any State law
23 prevents an insurer from increasing its premium rates in 24 an amount necessary to recover any assessments pursuant
25 to section 7, such provision is preempted only to the extent

1 necessary to provide for such insurer to recover such
2 losses.

3 (c) FILE AND USE.—With respect only to commercial
4 property and casualty insurance covering acts of ter-
5 rorism, any provision of State law that requires, as a con-
6 dition precedent to the effectiveness of rates or policies
7 for such insurance that is made available by an insurer
8 licensed to transact such business in the State, any action
9 (including prior approval by the State insurance regulator
10 for such State) other than filing of such rates and policies
11 and related information with such State insurance regu-
12 lator is preempted to the extent such law requires such
13 additional actions for such insurance coverage. This sub-
14 section shall not be considered to preempt a provision of 15 State law solely because the law provides that rates and
16 policies for such insurance coverage are, upon such filing,
17 subject to subsequent review and action, which may in-
18 clude actions to disapprove or discontinue use of such
19 rates or policies, by the State insurance regulator.

20 SEC. 12. CONSISTENT STATE GUIDELINES FOR COVERAGE
21 FOR ACTS OF TERRORISM.

22 (a) SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING COVERED
23 PERILS.—It is the sense of the Congress that—

24 (1) the NAIC, in consultation with the appro-
25 priate Administrator, should develop appropriate

1 definitions for acts of terrorism and appropriate
2 standards for making determinations regarding
3 events or occurrences of acts of terrorism;

4 (2) each State should adopt the definitions and
5 standards developed by the NAIC for purposes of
6 regulating insurance coverage made available in that
7 State;

8 (3) in consulting with the NAIC, the appro-
9 priate Administrator should advocate and promote
10 the development of definitions and standards that
11 are appropriate for purposes of this Act; and

12 (4) after consultation with the NAIC, the ap-
13 propriate Administrator should adopt definitions for
14 acts of terrorism and standards for determinations
15 that are appropriate for this Act.

16 (b) INSURANCE RESERVE GUIDELINES.—

17 (1) SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING ADOPTION
18 BY STATES.—It is the sense of the Congress that—

19 (A) the NAIC should develop appropriate
20 guidelines for commercial insurers and pools re-
21 garding maintenance of reserves against the
22 risks of acts of terrorism; and

23 (B) each State should adopt such guide-
24 lines for purposes of regulating commercial in-
25 surers doing business in that State.

1 (2) CONSIDERATION OF ADOPTION OF NA-
2 TIONAL GUIDELINES.—Upon the expiration of the 6-
3 month period beginning on the date of the enact-
4 ment of this Act, the appropriate Administrator
5 shall make a determination of whether the guidelines
6 referred to in paragraph (1) have, by such time,
7 been developed and adopted by nearly all States in
8 a uniform manner. If the appropriate Administrator
9 determines that such guidelines have not been so de-
10 veloped and adopted, the appropriate Administrator
11 shall consider adopting, and may adopt, such guide-
12 lines on a national basis in a manner that would 13 supercede any State law regarding maintenance of
14 reserves against such risks.

15 (c) GUIDELINES REGARDING DISCLOSURE OF PRIC-
16 ING AND TERMS OF COVERAGE.—

17 (1) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of
18 the Congress that the States should require, by laws
19 or regulations governing the provision of commercial
20 property and casualty insurance that includes cov-
21 erage for acts of terrorism, that the price of any
22 such terrorism coverage, including the costs of any
23 terrorism related assessments or surcharges under
24 this Act, be separately disclosed.

1 (2) ADOPTION OF NATIONAL GUIDELINES.—If
2 the appropriate Administrator determines that the
3 States have not enacted laws or adopted regulations
4 adequately providing for the disclosures described in
5 paragraph (1) within a reasonable period of time
6 after the date of the enactment of this Act, the ap-
7 propriate Administrator shall, after consultation
8 with the NAIC, adopt guidelines on a national basis
9 requiring such disclosure in a manner that
10 supercedes any State law regarding such disclosure.

11 SEC. 13. CONSULTATION WITH STATE INSURANCE REGU-
12 LATORS AND NAIC.

13 The Administrators shall consult with the State in-
14 surance regulators and the NAIC in carrying out this Act.
15 The Administrators may take such actions, including en-
16 tering into such agreements and providing such technical
17 and organizational assistance to insurers and State insur-
18 ance regulators, as may be necessary to provide for the 19 distribution of financial assistance under section 6 and the 20 collection of assessments under section 7 and surcharges
21 under section 8.

22 SEC. 14. SOVEREIGN IMMUNITY PROTECTIONS.

23 (a) FEDERAL CAUSE OF ACTION FOR DAMAGES
24 FROM TERRORIST ACTS RESULTING IN TRIGGERING DE-
25 TERMINATION.—

1 (1) IN GENERAL.—If a triggering determination
2 occurs requiring an assessment under section 7 or a
3 surcharge under section 8, there shall exist a Fed-
4 eral cause of action, which shall be the exclusive
5 remedy, for damages claimed pursuant to, or in con-
6 nection with, any acts of terrorism that caused the
7 insured losses resulting in such triggering deter-
8 mination.

9 (2) SUBSTANTIVE LAW.—The substantive law
10 for decision in any such action shall be derived from 11 the law, including choice of law principles, of the 12 State in which such act of terrorism occurred, unless 13 such law is inconsistent with or preempted by Fed-
14 eral law.

15 (3) JURISDICTION.—Pursuant to each trig-
16 gering determination, the Judicial Panel on Multi-
17 district Litigation shall designate one or more dis-
18 trict courts of the United States which shall have
19 original and exclusive jurisdiction over all actions
20 brought pursuant to this subsection that arise out of 21 the triggering event involved.

22 (4) OFFSET FOR RELIEF PAYMENTS.—Any re-
23 covery by a plaintiff in an action under this sub-
24 section shall be offset by the amount, if any, re-
25 ceived by the plaintiff from the United States pursu-

1 ant to any emergency or disaster relief program, or
2 from any other collateral source, for compensation of
3 losses related to the act of terrorism involved.

4 (b) DAMAGES IN ACTIONS REGARDING INSURANCE
5 CLAIMS.—In an action brought under this section for
6 damages claimed by an insured pursuant to, or in connec-
7 tion with, any commercial property and casualty insurance
8 providing coverage for acts of terrorism that resulted in
9 a triggering determination:

10 (1) PROHIBITION OF PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—No
11 punitive damages intended to punish or deter may
12 be awarded.

13 (2) NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—

14 (A) IN GENERAL.—Each defendant in such
15 an action shall be liable only for the amount of 16 noneconomic damages allocated to the defend-
17 ant in direct proportion to the percentage of re-
18 sponsibility of the defendant for the harm to
19 the claimant.

20 (B) DEFINITION.—For purposes of sub-
21 paragraph (A), the term “noneconomic dam-
22 ages” means damages for losses for physical
23 and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience,
24 physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigure-
25 ment, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society

1 and companionship, loss of consortium, hedonic
2 damages, injury to reputation, and any other
3 nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

4 (c) RIGHT OF SUBROGATION.—The United States
5 shall have the right of subrogation with respect to any
6 claim paid by the United States under this Act.

7 (d) PROTECTIVE ORDERS.—The United States or
8 any appropriate Administrator carrying out responsibil-
9 ities under this Act may seek protective orders or assert
10 privileges ordinarily available to the United States to pro-
11 tect against the disclosure of classified information, in-
12 cluding the invocation of the military and State secrets
13 privilege

14 SEC. 15. STUDY OF POTENTIAL EFFECTS OF TERRORISM
15 ON LIFE INSURANCE INDUSTRY.

16 (a) ESTABLISHMENT.—Not later than 30 days after
17 the date of enactment of this Act, the President shall es-
18 tablish a commission (in this section referred to as the 19 “Commission”) to study and report on the potential ef-
20 fects of an act or acts of terrorism on the life insurance
21 industry in the United States and the markets served by
22 such industry.

23 (b) MEMBERSHIP AND OPERATIONS.—

24 (1) APPOINTMENT.—The Commission shall con-
25 sist of 5 members, as follows:

1 (A) The appropriate Administrator, as des-
2 ignated by the President.

3 (C) 4 members appointed by the President,
4 who shall be—

5 (i) a representative of direct under-
6 writers of life insurance within the United
7 States;

8 (ii) a representative of reinsurers of
9 life insurance within the United States;

10 (iii) an officer of the NAIC; and

11 (iv) a representative of insurance
12 agents for life underwriters.

13 (2) OPERATIONS.—The chairperson of the 14 Commission shall determine the manner in which
15 the Commission shall operate, including funding,
16 staffing, and coordination with other governmental
17 entities.

18 (c) STUDY.—The Commission shall conduct a study
19 of the life insurance industry in the United States, which 20 shall identify and make recommendations regarding—

21 (1) possible actions to encourage, facilitate, and
22 sustain provision by the life insurance industry in
23 the United States of coverage for losses due to death
24 or disability resulting from an act or acts of ter-

1 rorism, including in the face of threats of such acts;
2 and

3 (2) possible actions or mechanisms to sustain or
4 supplement the ability of the life insurance industry
5 in the United States to cover losses due to death or
6 disability resulting from an act or acts of terrorism
7 in the event that—

8 (A) such acts significantly affect mortality
9 experience of the population of the United
10 States over any period of time;

11 (B) such losses jeopardize the capital and
12 surplus of the life insurance industry in the
13 United States as a whole; or

14 (C) other consequences from such acts
15 occur, as determined by the Commission, that
16 may significantly affect the ability of the life in-
17 surance industry in the United States to inde-
18 pendently cover such losses.

19 (d) RECOMMENDATIONS.—The Commission may
20 make a recommendation pursuant to subsection (c) only
21 upon the concurrence of a majority of the members of the 22 Commission.

23 (e) REPORT.—Not later than 120 days after the date
24 of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall submit to
25 the House of Representatives and the Senate a report de-

1 casualty insurance for terrorism risk at meaningful
2 coverage levels;

3 (5) the unavailability of affordable commercial
4 property and casualty insurance for terrorist acts
5 threatens the growth and stability of the United
6 States economy, including impeding the ability of fi-
7 nancial services providers to finance commercial
8 property acquisitions and new construction;

9 (6) in the past, the private insurance markets
10 have shown a remarkable resiliency in adapting to
11 changed circumstances;

12 (7) given time, the private markets will diver-
13 sify and develop risk spreading mechanisms to in-
14 crease capacity and guard against possible future
15 losses incurred by terrorist attacks;

16 (8) it is necessary to create a temporary indus-
17 try risk sharing loan program to ensure the contin-
18 ued availability of commercial property and casualty
19 insurance and reinsurance for terrorism-related
20 risks;

21 (9) such action is necessary to limit immediate
22 market disruptions, encourage economic stabiliza-
23 tion, and facilitate a transition to a viable market
24 for private terrorism risk insurance; and

1 scribing the results of the study and any recommendations
2 developed under subsection (c).

3 (f) TERMINATION.—The Commission shall terminate
4 60 days after submission of the report as provided for in
5 subsection (e).

6 SEC. 16. DEFINITIONS.

7 For purposes of this Act, the following definitions
8 shall apply:

9 (1) ACT OF TERRORISM.—

10 (A) IN GENERAL.—The term “act of ter-
11 rorism” means any act that the appropriate Ad-
12 ministrator determines meets the requirements
13 under subparagraph (B), as such requirements
14 are further defined and specified by the appro-
15 priate Administrator in consultation with the
16 NAIC.

17 (B) REQUIREMENTS.—An act meets the
18 requirements of this subparagraph if the act—

19 (i) is unlawful;

20 (ii) causes harm to a person, property,
21 or entity, in the United States;

22 (iii) is committed by a group of per-
23 sons or associations who—

1 (I) are not a government of a
2 foreign country or the de facto gov-
3 ernment of a foreign country; and

4 (II) are recognized by the De-
5 partment of State or the appropriate
6 Administrator as a terrorist group or
7 have conspired with such a group or
8 the group's agents or surrogates; and

9 (iv) has as its purpose to overthrow or
10 destabilize the government of any country
11 or to influence the policy or affect the con-
12 duct of the government of the United
13 States by coercion.

14 (2) APPROPRIATE ADMINISTRATORS.—The term
15 “appropriate Administrator” means, with respect to
16 any function or responsibility of the Federal Govern-
17 ment under this Act, the Federal officer designated
18 by the President pursuant to section 3 as respon-
19 sible for carrying out such function or responsibility.

20 (3) AFFILIATE.—The term “affiliate” means,
21 with respect to an insurer, any company that con-
22 trols, is controlled by, or is under common control
23 with the insurer.

24 (4) AGGREGATE WRITTEN PREMIUM.—The
25 term “aggregate written premium” means, with re-

1 spect to a year, the aggregate premium amount of
2 all commercial property and casualty insurance cov-
3 erage written during such year for persons or prop-
4 erties in the United States under all lines of com-
5 mercial property and casualty insurance.

6 (5) COMMERCIAL INSURANCE.—The term
7 “commercial insurance” means property and cas-
8 ualty insurance that is not insurance for home-
9 owners, tenants, private passenger nonfleet auto-
10 mobiles, mobile homes, or other insurance for per-
11 sonal, family, or household needs.

12 (6) COMMERCIAL INSURER.—The term “com-
13 mercial insurer” means any corporation, association,
14 society, order, firm, company, mutual, partnership,
15 individual, aggregation of individuals, or any other
16 legal entity that is engaged in the business of pro-
17 viding commercial property and casualty insurance
18 for persons or properties in the United States. Such 19 term includes any affiliates of a commercial insurer.

20 (7) COMMERCIAL PROPERTY AND CASUALTY IN-
21 SURANCE.—The term “commercial property and cas-
22 ualty insurance” means property and casualty insur-
23 ance that is commercial insurance.

24 (8) CONTROL.—A company has control over an-
25 other company if—

1 (A) the company directly or indirectly or
2 acting through one or more other persons owns,
3 controls, or has power to vote 25 percent or
4 more of any class of voting securities of the 5 other company;

6 (B) the company controls in any manner
7 the election of a majority of the directors or
8 trustees of the other company; or

9 (C) the appropriate Administrator deter-
10 mines, after notice and opportunity for hearing,
11 that the company directly or indirectly exercises
12 a controlling influence over the management or
13 policies of the other company.

14 (9) COVERED PERIOD.—The term “covered pe-
15 riod” has the meaning given such term in section
16 5(b).

17 (10) INDUSTRY-WIDE LOSSES.—The term “in-
18 dustry-wide losses” means the aggregate insured
19 losses sustained by all insurers, from coverage writ-
20 ten for persons or properties in the United States,
21 under all lines of commercial property and casualty
22 insurance.

23 (11) INSURED LOSS.—The term “insured loss”
24 means any loss in the United States covered by com-
25 mercial property and casualty insurance.

1 (12) INSURER.—The term “insurer” means any
2 corporation, association, society, order, firm, com-
3 pany, mutual, partnership, individual, aggregation of
4 individuals, or any other legal entity that is engaged
5 in the business of providing property and casualty
6 insurance for persons or properties in the United
7 States. Such term includes any affiliates of an in-
8 surer.

9 (13) NAIC.—The term “NAIC” means the Na-
10 tional Association of Insurance Commissioners.

11 (14) PROPERTY AND CASUALTY INSURANCE.—
12 The term “property and casualty insurance” means
13 insurance against—

14 (A) loss of or damage to property;

15 (B) loss of income or extra expense in-
16 curred because of loss of or damage to prop-
17 erty; and

18 (C) third party liability claims caused by
19 negligence or imposed by statute or contract.

20 Such term does not include health or life insurance.

21 (15) STATE.—The term “State” means the
22 States of the United States, the District of Colum-
23 bia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Com-
24 monwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, Guam,

1 the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and any other
2 territory or possession of the United States.

3 (16) STATE INSURANCE REGULATOR.—The
4 term “State insurance regulator” means, with re-
5 spect to a State, the principal insurance regulatory
6 authority of the State.

7 (17) TRIGGERING DETERMINATION.—The term
8 “triggering determination” has the meaning given
9 such term in section 5(a).

10 (18) TRIGGERING EVENT.—The term “trig-
11 gering event” means, with respect to a triggering de-
12 termination, the event of an act of terrorism, or the 13 events of such acts, that caused the insured losses
14 resulting in such triggering determination.

15 (19) UNITED STATES.—The term “United
16 States” means, collectively, the States (as such term
17 is defined in this section).

18 SEC. 17. EXTENSION OF PROGRAM.

19 (a) AUTHORITY.—If the appropriate Administrator
20 determines that action under this section is necessary to 21 ensure the adequate availability in the United States of 22 commercial property and casualty insurance coverage for
23 acts of terrorism, the appropriate Administrator may pro-
24 vide that the provisions of this Act shall continue to apply
25 with respect to a period or periods, as established by the

1 Administrator, that begin after the expiration of the cov-
2 ered period specified in section 5(b) and end before Janu-
3 ary 1, 2005.

4 (b) COVERED PERIOD.—If the appropriate Adminis-
5 trator exercises the authority under subsection (a), not-
6 withstanding section 5(b) and section 16(9), the period or
7 periods established by the appropriate Administrator shall
8 be considered to be the covered period for purposes of this
9 Act.

10 SEC. 18. REGULATIONS.

11 The appropriate Administrators shall issue any regu-
12 lations necessary to carry out this Act.

1 (10) in addition, it is necessary to repeal por-
2 tions of the tax law which prohibit the insurance
3 market from developing the necessary reserves to
4 handle possible future losses due to acts of ter-
5 rorism.

6 SEC. 3. DESIGNATION OF ADMINISTRATORS.

7 (a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than December 1, 2001,
8 the President shall designate a Federal officer or officers
9 to act as the Administrator or Administrators responsible
10 for carrying out this Act and the responsibilities under
11 this Act to be carried out by each such officer.

12 (b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of the 13 Congress that in determining the Administrator respon-
14 sible for making any determinations, for purposes of this
15 Act, as to whether a loss was caused by an act of terrorism
16 and whether such loss was caused by one or multiple such
17 events, pursuant to section 5(b), the President should con-
18 sider the appropriate role of the Assistant to the President
19 for Homeland Security.

20 SEC. 4. SUBMISSION OF PREMIUM INFORMATION TO AD-
21 MINISTRATOR.

22 To the extent such information is not otherwise avail-
23 able to the Administrators, the appropriate Administrator
24 may require each insurer to submit, to the appropriate Ad-
25 ministrator or to the NAIC, a statement specifying the

1 aggregate premium amount of coverage written by such
2 insurer for properties and persons in the United States
3 under each line of commercial property and casualty insur-
4 ance sold by such insurer during such periods as the ap-
5 propriate Administrator may provide.

6 SEC. 5. TRIGGERING DETERMINATION AND COVERED PE-
7 RIOD.

8 (a) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this Act, a “trig-
9 gering determination” is a determination by the appro-
10 priate Administrator that the insured losses resulting from
11 the event of an act of terrorism occurring during the cov-
12 ered period (as such term is defined in subsection (b)),
13 or the aggregate insured losses resulting from multiple
14 events of acts of terrorism all occurring during the covered
15 period, meet the requirements under either of the fol-
16 lowing paragraphs:

17 (1) INDUSTRY-WIDE LOSS TEST.—Such indus-
18 try-wide losses exceed $1,000,000,000.

19 (2) CAPITAL SURPLUS AND INDUSTRY AGGRE-
20 GATE TEST.—Such industry-wide losses exceed
21 $100,000,000 and some portion of such losses for
22 any single commercial insurer exceed—

23 (A) 10 percent of the capital surplus of
24 such commercial insurer (as such term is de-
25 fined by the appropriate Administrator); and

1 (B) 10 percent of the commercial property
2 and casualty premiums written by such com-
3 mercial insurer;
4 except that this paragraph shall not apply to any
5 commercial insurer that has been making commer-
6 cial property and casualty insurance coverage avail-
7 able for less than 4 years as of the date of the deter-
8 mination under this subsection.

9 (b) COVERED PERIOD.—For purposes of this Act, the
10 “covered period” is the period beginning on the date of
11 the enactment of this Act and ending on January 1, 2003.

12 (c) DETERMINATIONS REGARDING EVENTS.—For
13 purposes of subsection (a), the appropriate Administrator
14 shall have the sole authority for determining whether—

15 (1) an occurrence or event was caused by an act
16 of terrorism;

17 (2) insured losses from acts of terrorism were
18 caused by one or multiple events or occurrences; and

19 (3) whether an act of terrorism occurred during
20 the covered period.

21 SEC. 6. FEDERAL COST-SHARING FOR COMMERCIAL INSUR-
22 ERS.

23 (a) IN GENERAL.—Pursuant to a triggering deter-
24 mination, the appropriate Administrator shall provide fi-
25 nancial assistance to commercial insurers in accordance

1 with this section to cover insured losses resulting from
2 acts of terrorism, which shall be repaid in accordance with
3 subsection (e).

4 (b) AMOUNT.—Subject to subsection (c), with respect
5 to a triggering determination, the amount of financial as-
6 sistance made available under this section to each com-
7 mercial insurer shall be equal to 90 percent of the amount
8 of the insured losses of the insurer as a result of the trig-
9 gering event involved.

10 (c) AGGREGATE LIMITATION.—The aggregate
11 amount of financial assistance provided pursuant to this
12 section may not exceed $100,000,000,000.

13 (d) LIMITATIONS.—The appropriate Administrator
14 may establish such limitations as may be necessary to en-
15 sure that payments under this section in connection with 16 a triggering determination are made only to commercial
17 insurers that are not in default of any obligation under 18 section 7 to pay assessments or under section 8 to collect
19 surcharges.

20 (e) REPAYMENT.—Financial assistance made avail-
21 able under this section shall be repaid through assess-
22 ments under section 7 collected by the appropriate Admin-
23 istrator and surcharges remitted to the appropriate Ad-
24 ministrator under section 8. Any such amounts collected

1 or remitted shall be deposited into the general fund of the
2 Treasury.

3 (f) EMERGENCY DESIGNATION.—Congress des-
4 ignates the amount of new budget authority and outlays
5 in all fiscal years resulting from this section as an emer-
6 gency requirement pursuant to section 252(e) of the Bal-
7 anced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985
8 (2 U.S.C. 901(e)). Such amount shall be available only
9 to the extent that a request, that includes designation of 10 such amount as an emergency requirement as defined in 11 such Act, is transmitted by the President to Congress.

12 SEC. 7. ASSESSMENTS.

13 (a) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a triggering deter-
14 mination, each commercial insurer shall be subject to as-
15 sessments under this section for the purpose of repaying
16 financial assistance made available under section 6 in con-
17 nection with such determination.

18 (b) AGGREGATE ASSESSMENT.—Pursuant to a trig-
19 gering determination, the appropriate Administrator shall
20 determine the aggregate amount to be assessed among all
21 commercial insurers, which shall be equal to 90 percent
22 of the lesser of—

23 (1) the amount of industry-wide losses resulting
24 from the triggering event involved; and

25 (2) $20,000,000,000.

1 (c) ALLOCATION OF ASSESSMENT.—

2 (1) IN GENERAL.—The appropriate Adminis-
3 trator shall allocate the aggregate assessment
4 amount determined under subsection (b) among all
5 commercial insurers. The portion of the aggregate
6 assessment amount that is allocated as an assess-
7 ment on each commercial insurer shall be based on
8 the percentage, written by that insurer, of the aggre-
9 gate written premium, for all commercial insurers,
10 for the calendar year preceding the assessment.

11 (2) PAYMENT REQUIREMENT.—Upon notifica-
12 tion by the appropriate Administrator of an assess-
13 ment under this section, each commercial insurer
14 shall be required to pay to the appropriate Adminis-
15 trator, in the manner provided under section 9 by 16 the appropriate Administrator, the amount equal to
17 the assessment on such commercial insurer (subject
18 to the limitation under paragraph (3)).

19 (3) ANNUAL LIMITATION ON AMOUNT ALLO-
20 CATED TO EACH COMMERCIAL INSURER.—

21 (A) IN GENERAL.—Of any assessments
22 under this section on a commercial insurer, the
23 portion required to be paid by any commercial
24 insurer during a calendar year shall not exceed
25 the amount that is equal to 3 percent of the ag-

107TH CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

H. R. _____

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. OXLEY introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To ensure the continued financial capacity of insurers to provide coverage for risks from terrorism.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

3 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE AND TABLE OF CONTENTS.

4 (a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the
5 “Terrorism Risk Protection Act”.

6 (b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents for
7 this Act is as follows:

1 aggregate written premium for such insurer for
2 the preceding calendar year.

3 (B) MULTIPLE PAYMENTS.—If any
4 amounts required to be repaid under this sec-
5 tion for a calendar year are limited by operation
6 of subparagraph (A), the appropriate Adminis-
7 trator shall provide that all such remaining
8 amounts shall be reallocated among all commer-
9 cial insurers (in the manner provided in para-
10 graph (1)) over such immediately succeeding
11 calendar years, and repaid over such years, as
12 may be necessary to provide for full payment of
13 such remaining amounts, except that the limita-
14 tion under subparagraph (A) shall apply to the 15 amounts paid in any such successive calendar
16 years.

17 (C) ADMINISTRATIVE FLEXIBILITY.—

18 (i) TIMING OF ASSESSMENTS.—As-
19 sessments under this section in connection
20 with a triggering demonstration shall be
21 made, to the extent that the appropriate
22 Administrator considers practicable and
23 appropriate, at the beginning of the cal-
24 endar year immediately following the trig-
25 gering determination.

1 (ii) ESTIMATES AND CORRECTIONS.—

2 If the appropriate Administrator makes an
3 assessment at a time other than provided
4 under clause (i), the appropriate Adminis-
5 trator may—

6 (I) require commercial insurers
7 to estimate their aggregate written
8 premiums for the year in which the
9 assessment is made; and

10 (II) make a subsequent refund or
11 require additional payments to correct
12 such estimation at the end of the cal-
13 endar year.

14 (4) DEFERRAL OF CONTRIBUTIONS.—The ap-
15 propriate Administrator may defer the payment of
16 part or all of the assessment required under para-
17 graph (2) to be paid by a commercial insurer, but
18 only to the extent that the appropriate Adminis-
19 trator determines that such deferral is necessary to
20 avoid the likely insolvency of the commercial insurer.

21 SEC. 8. TERRORISM LOSS REPAYMENT SURCHARGE.

22 (a) IMPOSITION AND COLLECTION.—If, pursuant to
23 a triggering determination, the appropriate Administrator
24 determines that the aggregate amount of industry-wide

1 losses resulting from the triggering event involved exceeds
2 $20,000,000,000, the appropriate Administrator shall—

3 (1) establish and impose a policyholder pre-
4 mium surcharge, as provided under this section, on
5 commercial property and casualty insurance written
6 after such determination, for the purpose of repay-
7 ing financial assistance made available under section
8 6 in connection with such triggering determination;
9 and

10 (2) provide for commercial insurers to collect
11 such surcharge and remit amounts collected to the
12 appropriate Administrator.

13 (b) AMOUNT AND DURATION.—The surcharge under
14 this section shall be established in such amount, and shall
15 apply to commercial property and casualty insurance writ-
16 ten during such period, as the appropriate Administrator
17 determines is necessary to recover the aggregate amount
18 of financial assistance provided under section 6 to cover
19 insured losses resulting from the triggering event that ex-
20 ceed $20,000,000,000.

21 (c) OTHER TERMS.—The surcharge under this sec-
22 tion shall—

23 (1) be based on a percentage of the amount of
24 commercial property and casualty insurance cov-
25 erage that a policy provides; and

1 (2) be imposed with respect to all commercial
2 property and casualty insurance coverage written
3 during the period referred to in subsection (b).

4 SEC. 9. ADMINISTRATION OF ASSESSMENTS AND SUR-
5 CHARGES.

6 (a) MANNER AND METHOD.—The appropriate Ad-
7 ministrators shall provide for the manner and method of
8 carrying out assessments under section 7 and surcharges
9 under section 8, including the timing and procedures of
10 making assessments and surcharges, notifying commercial
11 insurers of assessments or surcharge requirements, col-
12 lecting payments from and surcharges through commercial
13 insurers, and refunding of any excess amounts paid or
14 crediting such amounts against future assessments.

15 (b) TIMING OF COVERAGES AND ASSESSMENTS.—
16 The appropriate Administrator may adjust the timing of
17 coverages and assessments provided under this Act to pro-
18 vide for equivalent application of the provisions of this Act
19 to commercial insurers and policies that are not based on
20 a calendar year.

21 (c) APPLICATION TO SELF-INSURANCE ARRANGE-
22 MENTS.—The appropriate Administrator may, in con-
23 sultation with the NAIC, apply the provisions of this Act,
24 as appropriate, to self-insurance arrangements by munici-
25 palities and other entities, but only if such application is

1 determined before the occurrence of a triggering event and
2 all of the provisions of this Act are applied uniformly to
3 such entities.

4 (d) ADJUSTMENT.—The appropriate Administrator
5 may adjust the assessments charged under section 7 or
6 the percentage imposed under the surcharge under section
7 8 at any time, as the appropriate Administrator considers
8 appropriate to protect the national interest, which may in-
9 clude avoiding unreasonable economic disruption or exces-
10 sive market instability.

11 SEC. 10. RESERVE FOR TERRORISM COVERAGE UNDER
12 COMMERCIAL LINES OF BUSINESS.

13 (a) IN GENERAL.—Section 832 of the Internal Rev-
14 enue Code of 1986 (relating to insurance company taxable
15 income) is amended by adding at the end the following
16 new subsection:

17 “(h) TERRORISM RESERVE FOR COMMERCIAL LINES
18 OF BUSINESS.—In the case of an insurance company sub-
19 ject to tax under section 831(a)—

20 “(1) INCLUSION FOR DECREASES, AND DEDUC-
21 TION FOR INCREASES, IN BALANCE OF RESERVE.—

22 “(A) DECREASE TREATED AS GROSS IN-
23 COME.—If for any taxable year—

24 “(i) the opening balance for the ter-
25 rorism commercial business reserve exceeds

1 “(ii) the closing balance for such re-
2 serve,
3 such excess shall be included in gross income
4 under subsection (b)(1)(F).

5 “(B) INCREASE TREATED AS DEDUC-
6 TION.—If for any taxable year—

7 “(i) the closing balance for the ter-
8 rorism commercial business reserve exceeds

9 “(ii) the opening balance for such re-
10 serve,
11 such excess shall be taken into account as a de-
12 duction under subsection (c)(14).

13 “(2) TERRORISM COMMERCIAL BUSINESS RE-
14 SERVE.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘ter-
15 rorism commercial business reserve’ means amounts
16 held in a segregated account (or other separately
17 identifiable arrangement or account) which are set
18 aside exclusively—

19 “(A) to mature or liquidate, either by pay-
20 ment or reinsurance, future unaccrued claims
21 arising from declared terrorism losses under
22 commercial lines of business, and

23 “(B) if so directed by the insurance com-
24 missioner of any State, to pay other claims as

1 part of a plan of the company to avoid insol-
2 vency.

3 “(3) LIMITATION ON AMOUNT OF RESERVE.—

4 “(A) IN GENERAL.—If the closing balance
5 of any terrorism commercial business reserve
6 for any taxable year exceeds such reserve’s limit
7 for such year—

8 “(i) such excess shall be included in
9 gross income under subsection (b)(1)(F)
10 for the following taxable year, and

11 “(ii) if such excess is distributed dur-
12 ing such following taxable year, the open-
13 ing balance of such reserve for such fol-
14 lowing taxable year shall be determined
15 without regard to such excess.

16 “(B) RESERVE LIMIT.—

17 “(i) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of
18 subparagraph (A), a reserve’s limit for any
19 taxable year is such reserve’s allocable
20 share of the national limit for the calendar
21 year in which such taxable year begins.

22 “(ii) NATIONAL LIMIT.—The national
23 limit is $40,000,000,000 ($13,340,000,000
24 for 2002).

25 “(iii) ALLOCATION OF LIMIT.—

1 “(I) IN GENERAL.—A reserve’s
2 allocable share of the national limit
3 for any calendar year is the amount
4 which bears the same ratio to the na-
5 tional limit for such year as the com-
6 pany’s net written premiums for com-
7 mercial lines of business bears to such
8 net written premiums for all compa-
9 nies for commercial line of business.

10 “(II) EXCLUSION OF PREMIUMS
11 FOR INSURANCE NOT COVERING DE-
12 CLARED TERRORISM LOSSES AND FOR
13 REINSURANCE.—Subclause (I) shall
14 be applied without regard to pre-
15 miums for insurance which does not
16 cover declared terrorism losses and
17 premiums for reinsurance.

18 “(III) DETERMINATION OF NET
19 WRITTEN PREMIUMS.—Except as oth-
20 erwise provided in this section, all de-
21 terminations under this subsection
22 shall be made on the basis of the
23 amounts required to be set forth on
24 the annual statement approved by the

1 National Association of Insurance
2 Commissioners.

3 “(iv) INFLATION ADJUSTMENT OF
4 LIMIT.—In the case of any calendar year
5 after 2002, the $40,000,000,000 amount
6 in clause (ii) shall be increased by an
7 amount equal to the product of—

8 “(I) such dollar amount, and

9 “(II) the cost-of-living adjust-
10 ment determined under subsection
11 (f)(3) for such calendar year, deter-
12 mined by substituting ‘calendar year
13 2001’ for ‘calendar year 1992’ in sub-
14 paragraph (B) thereof.

15 If any amount after adjustment under the
16 preceding sentence is not a multiple of
17 $1,000,000, such amount shall be rounded
18 to the nearest multiple of $1,000,000.

19 “(4) DECLARED TERRORISM LOSSES.—For pur-
20 poses of this subsection—

21 “(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘declared
22 terrorism losses’ means, with respect to a tax-
23 able year—

24 “(i) the amount of losses and loss ad-
25 justment expenses incurred in commercial

1 lines of business that are attributable to 1
2 or more declared terrorism events, plus

3 “(ii) any nonrecoverable assessments,
4 surcharges, or other liabilities that are
5 borne by the company and are attributable
6 to such events.

7 “(B) DECLARED TERRORISM EVENT.—The
8 term ‘declared terrorism event’ means any event
9 declared by the President to be an act of ter-
10 rorism against the United States for purposes
11 of this section.

12 “(5) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall pre-
13 scribe such regulations as may be appropriate to
14 carry out this subsection, and shall prescribe such
15 regulations after consultation with the National As-
16 sociation of Insurance Commissioners.”

17 (b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

18 (1) Paragraph (1) of section 832(b) of such 19 Code is amended by striking “and” at the end of
20 subparagraph (D), by striking the period at the end
21 of subparagraph (E) and inserting in lieu thereof “,
22 and”, and by adding at the end the following new
23 subparagraph:

24 “(F) each net decrease in reserves which is
25 required by paragraph (1) or (3) of subsection

- Sec. 1. Short title and table of contents.
- Sec. 2. Congressional findings.
- Sec. 3. Designation of Administrators.
- Sec. 4. Submission of premium information to Administrator.
- Sec. 5. Triggering determination and covered period.
- Sec. 6. Federal cost-sharing for commercial insurers.
- Sec. 7. Assessments.
- Sec. 8. Terrorism loss repayment surcharge.
- Sec. 9. Administration of assessments and surcharges.
- Sec. 10. Reserve for terrorism coverage under commercial lines of business.

- Sec. 12. Consistent State guidelines for coverage for acts of terrorism.
- Sec. 13. Consultation with State insurance regulators and NAIC.
- Sec. 14. Sovereign immunity protections.
- Sec. 15. Study of potential effects of terrorism on life insurance industry.
- Sec. 16. Definitions.
- Sec. 17. Extension of program.
- Sec. 18. Regulations.

1 SEC. 2. CONGRESSIONAL FINDINGS.

2 The Congress finds that—

3 (1) the terrorist attacks on the World Trade
4 Center and the Pentagon of September 11, 2001, re-
5 sulted in a large number of deaths and injuries, the
6 destruction and damage to buildings, and interrup-
7 tion of business operations;

8 (2) the attacks have inflicted possibly the larg-
9 est losses ever incurred by insurers and reinsurers;

10 (3) while the insurance and reinsurance indus-
11 tries have committed to pay the losses arising from
12 the September 11 attacks, the resulting disruption
13 has created widespread market uncertainties with re-
14 gard to the risk of losses arising from possible fu-
15 ture terrorist attacks;

16 (4) such uncertainty threatens the continued
17 availability of United States commercial property

1 (h) to be taken into account under this sub-
2 paragraph.”

3 (2) Subsection (c) of section 832 of such Code
4 is amended by striking “and” at the end of para-
5 graph (12), by striking the period at the end of
6 paragraph (13) and inserting in lieu thereof “; and”,
7 and by adding at the end the following new para-
8 graph:

9 “(14) each net increase in reserves which is re-
10 quired by subsection (h)(1) to be taken into account
11 under this paragraph.”

12 (c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by
13 this subsection shall apply to taxable years beginning after
14 December 31, 2001.

15 SEC. 11. STATE PREEMPTION.

16 (a) COVERED PERILS.—A commercial insurer shall
17 be considered to have complied with any State law that
18 requires or regulates the provision of insurance coverage
19 for acts of terrorism if the insurer provides coverage in
20 accordance with the definitions regarding acts of terrorism
21 under the regulations issued by the Administrators.

22 (b) RATE LAWS.—If any provision of any State law
23 prevents an insurer from increasing its premium rates in 24 an amount necessary to recover any assessments pursuant
25 to section 7, such provision is preempted only to the extent

1 necessary to provide for such insurer to recover such
2 losses.

3 (c) FILE AND USE.—With respect only to commercial
4 property and casualty insurance covering acts of ter-
5 rorism, any provision of State law that requires, as a con-
6 dition precedent to the effectiveness of rates or policies
7 for such insurance that is made available by an insurer
8 licensed to transact such business in the State, any action
9 (including prior approval by the State insurance regulator
10 for such State) other than filing of such rates and policies
11 and related information with such State insurance regu-
12 lator is preempted to the extent such law requires such
13 additional actions for such insurance coverage. This sub-
14 section shall not be considered to preempt a provision of 15 State law solely because the law provides that rates and
16 policies for such insurance coverage are, upon such filing,
17 subject to subsequent review and action, which may in-
18 clude actions to disapprove or discontinue use of such
19 rates or policies, by the State insurance regulator.

20 SEC. 12. CONSISTENT STATE GUIDELINES FOR COVERAGE
21 FOR ACTS OF TERRORISM.

22 (a) SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING COVERED
23 PERILS.—It is the sense of the Congress that—

24 (1) the NAIC, in consultation with the appro-
25 priate Administrator, should develop appropriate

1 definitions for acts of terrorism and appropriate
2 standards for making determinations regarding
3 events or occurrences of acts of terrorism;

4 (2) each State should adopt the definitions and
5 standards developed by the NAIC for purposes of
6 regulating insurance coverage made available in that
7 State;

8 (3) in consulting with the NAIC, the appro-
9 priate Administrator should advocate and promote
10 the development of definitions and standards that
11 are appropriate for purposes of this Act; and

12 (4) after consultation with the NAIC, the ap-
13 propriate Administrator should adopt definitions for
14 acts of terrorism and standards for determinations
15 that are appropriate for this Act.

16 (b) INSURANCE RESERVE GUIDELINES.—

17 (1) SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING ADOPTION
18 BY STATES.—It is the sense of the Congress that—

19 (A) the NAIC should develop appropriate
20 guidelines for commercial insurers and pools re-
21 garding maintenance of reserves against the
22 risks of acts of terrorism; and

23 (B) each State should adopt such guide-
24 lines for purposes of regulating commercial in-
25 surers doing business in that State.

1 (2) CONSIDERATION OF ADOPTION OF NA-
2 TIONAL GUIDELINES.—Upon the expiration of the 6-
3 month period beginning on the date of the enact-
4 ment of this Act, the appropriate Administrator
5 shall make a determination of whether the guidelines
6 referred to in paragraph (1) have, by such time,
7 been developed and adopted by nearly all States in
8 a uniform manner. If the appropriate Administrator
9 determines that such guidelines have not been so de-
10 veloped and adopted, the appropriate Administrator
11 shall consider adopting, and may adopt, such guide-
12 lines on a national basis in a manner that would
13 supercede any State law regarding maintenance of
14 reserves against such risks.

15 (c) GUIDELINES REGARDING DISCLOSURE OF PRIC-
16 ING AND TERMS OF COVERAGE.—

17 (1) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of
18 the Congress that the States should require, by laws
19 or regulations governing the provision of commercial
20 property and casualty insurance that includes cov-
21 erage for acts of terrorism, that the price of any
22 such terrorism coverage, including the costs of any
23 terrorism related assessments or surcharges under
24 this Act, be separately disclosed.

1 (2) ADOPTION OF NATIONAL GUIDELINES.—If
2 the appropriate Administrator determines that the
3 States have not enacted laws or adopted regulations
4 adequately providing for the disclosures described in
5 paragraph (1) within a reasonable period of time
6 after the date of the enactment of this Act, the ap-
7 propriate Administrator shall, after consultation
8 with the NAIC, adopt guidelines on a national basis
9 requiring such disclosure in a manner that
10 supercedes any State law regarding such disclosure.

11 SEC. 13. CONSULTATION WITH STATE INSURANCE REGU-
12 LATORS AND NAIC.

13 The Administrators shall consult with the State in-
14 surance regulators and the NAIC in carrying out this Act.
15 The Administrators may take such actions, including en-
16 tering into such agreements and providing such technical
17 and organizational assistance to insurers and State insur-
18 ance regulators, as may be necessary to provide for the
19 distribution of financial assistance under section 6 and the 20 collection of assessments under section 7 and surcharges
21 under section 8.

22 SEC. 14. SOVEREIGN IMMUNITY PROTECTIONS.

23 (a) FEDERAL CAUSE OF ACTION FOR DAMAGES
24 FROM TERRORIST ACTS RESULTING IN TRIGGERING DE-
25 TERMINATION.—

1 (1) IN GENERAL.—If a triggering determination
2 occurs requiring an assessment under section 7 or a
3 surcharge under section 8, there shall exist a Fed-
4 eral cause of action, which shall be the exclusive
5 remedy, for damages claimed pursuant to, or in con-
6 nection with, any acts of terrorism that caused the
7 insured losses resulting in such triggering deter-
8 mination.

9 (2) SUBSTANTIVE LAW.—The substantive law
10 for decision in any such action shall be derived from 11 the law, including choice of law principles, of the 12 State in which such act of terrorism occurred, unless
13 such law is inconsistent with or preempted by Fed-
14 eral law.

15 (3) JURISDICTION.—Pursuant to each trig-
16 gering determination, the Judicial Panel on Multi-
17 district Litigation shall designate one or more dis-
18 trict courts of the United States which shall have
19 original and exclusive jurisdiction over all actions
20 brought pursuant to this subsection that arise out of 21 the triggering event involved.

22 (4) OFFSET FOR RELIEF PAYMENTS.—Any re-
23 covery by a plaintiff in an action under this sub-
24 section shall be offset by the amount, if any, re-
25 ceived by the plaintiff from the United States pursu-

1 ant to any emergency or disaster relief program, or
2 from any other collateral source, for compensation of
3 losses related to the act of terrorism involved.

4 (b) DAMAGES IN ACTIONS REGARDING INSURANCE
5 CLAIMS.—In an action brought under this section for
6 damages claimed by an insured pursuant to, or in connec-
7 tion with, any commercial property and casualty insurance
8 providing coverage for acts of terrorism that resulted in
9 a triggering determination:

10 (1) PROHIBITION OF PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—No
11 punitive damages intended to punish or deter may
12 be awarded.

13 (2) NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—

14 (A) IN GENERAL.—Each defendant in such
15 an action shall be liable only for the amount of 16 noneconomic damages allocated to the defend-
17 ant in direct proportion to the percentage of re-
18 sponsibility of the defendant for the harm to
19 the claimant.

20 (B) DEFINITION.—For purposes of sub-
21 paragraph (A), the term “noneconomic dam-
22 ages” means damages for losses for physical
23 and emotional pain, suffering, inconvenience,
24 physical impairment, mental anguish, disfigure-
25 ment, loss of enjoyment of life, loss of society

1 and companionship, loss of consortium, hedonic
2 damages, injury to reputation, and any other
3 nonpecuniary losses of any kind or nature.

4 (c) RIGHT OF SUBROGATION.—The United States
5 shall have the right of subrogation with respect to any
6 claim paid by the United States under this Act.

7 (d) PROTECTIVE ORDERS.—The United States or
8 any appropriate Administrator carrying out responsibil-
9 ities under this Act may seek protective orders or assert
10 privileges ordinarily available to the United States to pro-
11 tect against the disclosure of classified information, in-
12 cluding the invocation of the military and State secrets
13 privilege

14 SEC. 15. STUDY OF POTENTIAL EFFECTS OF TERRORISM
15 ON LIFE INSURANCE INDUSTRY.

16 (a) ESTABLISHMENT.—Not later than 30 days after
17 the date of enactment of this Act, the President shall es-
18 tablish a commission (in this section referred to as the 19 “Commission”) to study and report on the potential ef-
20 fects of an act or acts of terrorism on the life insurance
21 industry in the United States and the markets served by
22 such industry.

23 (b) MEMBERSHIP AND OPERATIONS.—

24 (1) APPOINTMENT.—The Commission shall con-
25 sist of 5 members, as follows:

1 (A) The appropriate Administrator, as des-
2 ignated by the President.

3 (C) 4 members appointed by the President,
4 who shall be—

5 (i) a representative of direct under-
6 writers of life insurance within the United
7 States;

8 (ii) a representative of reinsurers of
9 life insurance within the United States;

10 (iii) an officer of the NAIC; and

11 (iv) a representative of insurance
12 agents for life underwriters.

13 (2) OPERATIONS.—The chairperson of the
14 Commission shall determine the manner in which
15 the Commission shall operate, including funding,
16 staffing, and coordination with other governmental
17 entities.

18 (c) STUDY.—The Commission shall conduct a study
19 of the life insurance industry in the United States, which 20 shall identify and make recommendations regarding—

21 (1) possible actions to encourage, facilitate, and
22 sustain provision by the life insurance industry in
23 the United States of coverage for losses due to death
24 or disability resulting from an act or acts of ter-

1 rorism, including in the face of threats of such acts;
2 and

3 (2) possible actions or mechanisms to sustain or
4 supplement the ability of the life insurance industry
5 in the United States to cover losses due to death or
6 disability resulting from an act or acts of terrorism
7 in the event that—

8 (A) such acts significantly affect mortality
9 experience of the population of the United
10 States over any period of time;

11 (B) such losses jeopardize the capital and
12 surplus of the life insurance industry in the
13 United States as a whole; or

14 (C) other consequences from such acts
15 occur, as determined by the Commission, that
16 may significantly affect the ability of the life in-
17 surance industry in the United States to inde-
18 pendently cover such losses.

19 (d) RECOMMENDATIONS.—The Commission may
20 make a recommendation pursuant to subsection (c) only
21 upon the concurrence of a majority of the members of the 22 Commission.

23 (e) REPORT.—Not later than 120 days after the date
24 of enactment of this Act, the Commission shall submit to
25 the House of Representatives and the Senate a report de-

1 casualty insurance for terrorism risk at meaningful
2 coverage levels;

3 (5) the unavailability of affordable commercial
4 property and casualty insurance for terrorist acts
5 threatens the growth and stability of the United
6 States economy, including impeding the ability of fi-
7 nancial services providers to finance commercial
8 property acquisitions and new construction;

9 (6) in the past, the private insurance markets
10 have shown a remarkable resiliency in adapting to
11 changed circumstances;

12 (7) given time, the private markets will diver-
13 sify and develop risk spreading mechanisms to in-
14 crease capacity and guard against possible future
15 losses incurred by terrorist attacks;

16 (8) it is necessary to create a temporary indus-
17 try risk sharing loan program to ensure the contin-
18 ued availability of commercial property and casualty
19 insurance and reinsurance for terrorism-related
20 risks;

21 (9) such action is necessary to limit immediate
22 market disruptions, encourage economic stabiliza-
23 tion, and facilitate a transition to a viable market
24 for private terrorism risk insurance; and

1 scribing the results of the study and any recommendations
2 developed under subsection (c).

3 (f) TERMINATION.—The Commission shall terminate
4 60 days after submission of the report as provided for in
5 subsection (e).

6 SEC. 16. DEFINITIONS.

7 For purposes of this Act, the following definitions
8 shall apply:

9 (1) ACT OF TERRORISM.—

10 (A) IN GENERAL.—The term “act of ter-
11 rorism” means any act that the appropriate Ad-
12 ministrator determines meets the requirements
13 under subparagraph (B), as such requirements
14 are further defined and specified by the appro-
15 priate Administrator in consultation with the
16 NAIC.

17 (B) REQUIREMENTS.—An act meets the
18 requirements of this subparagraph if the act—

19 (i) is unlawful;

20 (ii) causes harm to a person, property,
21 or entity, in the United States;

22 (iii) is committed by a group of per-
23 sons or associations who—

1 (I) are not a government of a
2 foreign country or the de facto gov-
3 ernment of a foreign country; and

4 (II) are recognized by the De-
5 partment of State or the appropriate
6 Administrator as a terrorist group or
7 have conspired with such a group or
8 the group's agents or surrogates; and

9 (iv) has as its purpose to overthrow or
10 destabilize the government of any country
11 or to influence the policy or affect the con-
12 duct of the government of the United
13 States by coercion.

14 (2) APPROPRIATE ADMINISTRATORS.—The term
15 “appropriate Administrator” means, with respect to
16 any function or responsibility of the Federal Govern-
17 ment under this Act, the Federal officer designated
18 by the President pursuant to section 3 as respon-
19 sible for carrying out such function or responsibility.

20 (3) AFFILIATE.—The term “affiliate” means,
21 with respect to an insurer, any company that con-
22 trols, is controlled by, or is under common control
23 with the insurer.

24 (4) AGGREGATE WRITTEN PREMIUM.—The
25 term “aggregate written premium” means, with re-

1 spect to a year, the aggregate premium amount of
2 all commercial property and casualty insurance cov-
3 erage written during such year for persons or prop-
4 erties in the United States under all lines of com-
5 mercial property and casualty insurance.

6 (5) COMMERCIAL INSURANCE.—The term
7 “commercial insurance” means property and cas-
8 ualty insurance that is not insurance for home-
9 owners, tenants, private passenger nonfleet auto-
10 mobiles, mobile homes, or other insurance for per-
11 sonal, family, or household needs.

12 (6) COMMERCIAL INSURER.—The term “com-
13 mercial insurer” means any corporation, association,
14 society, order, firm, company, mutual, partnership,
15 individual, aggregation of individuals, or any other
16 legal entity that is engaged in the business of pro-
17 viding commercial property and casualty insurance
18 for persons or properties in the United States. Such 19 term includes any affiliates of a commercial insurer.

20 (7) COMMERCIAL PROPERTY AND CASUALTY IN-
21 SURANCE.—The term “commercial property and cas-
22 ualty insurance” means property and casualty insur-
23 ance that is commercial insurance.

24 (8) CONTROL.—A company has control over an-
25 other company if—

1 (A) the company directly or indirectly or
2 acting through one or more other persons owns,
3 controls, or has power to vote 25 percent or
4 more of any class of voting securities of the
5 other company;

6 (B) the company controls in any manner
7 the election of a majority of the directors or
8 trustees of the other company; or

9 (C) the appropriate Administrator deter-
10 mines, after notice and opportunity for hearing,
11 that the company directly or indirectly exercises
12 a controlling influence over the management or
13 policies of the other company.

14 (9) COVERED PERIOD.—The term “covered pe-
15 riod” has the meaning given such term in section
16 5(b).

17 (10) INDUSTRY-WIDE LOSSES.—The term “in-
18 dustry-wide losses” means the aggregate insured
19 losses sustained by all insurers, from coverage writ-
20 ten for persons or properties in the United States,
21 under all lines of commercial property and casualty
22 insurance.

23 (11) INSURED LOSS.—The term “insured loss”
24 means any loss in the United States covered by com-
25 mercial property and casualty insurance.

1 (12) INSURER.—The term “insurer” means any
2 corporation, association, society, order, firm, com-
3 pany, mutual, partnership, individual, aggregation of
4 individuals, or any other legal entity that is engaged
5 in the business of providing property and casualty
6 insurance for persons or properties in the United
7 States. Such term includes any affiliates of an in-
8 surer.

9 (13) NAIC.—The term “NAIC” means the Na-
10 tional Association of Insurance Commissioners.

11 (14) PROPERTY AND CASUALTY INSURANCE.—
12 The term “property and casualty insurance” means
13 insurance against—

14 (A) loss of or damage to property;

15 (B) loss of income or extra expense in-
16 curred because of loss of or damage to prop-
17 erty; and

18 (C) third party liability claims caused by
19 negligence or imposed by statute or contract.

20 Such term does not include health or life insurance.

21 (15) STATE.—The term “State” means the
22 States of the United States, the District of Colum-
23 bia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Com-
24 monwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, Guam,

1 the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and any other
2 territory or possession of the United States.

3 (16) STATE INSURANCE REGULATOR.—The
4 term “State insurance regulator” means, with re-
5 spect to a State, the principal insurance regulatory
6 authority of the State.

7 (17) TRIGGERING DETERMINATION.—The term
8 “triggering determination” has the meaning given
9 such term in section 5(a).

10 (18) TRIGGERING EVENT.—The term “trig-
11 gering event” means, with respect to a triggering de-
12 termination, the event of an act of terrorism, or the
13 events of such acts, that caused the insured losses
14 resulting in such triggering determination.

15 (19) UNITED STATES.—The term “United
16 States” means, collectively, the States (as such term
17 is defined in this section).

18 SEC. 17. EXTENSION OF PROGRAM.

19 (a) AUTHORITY.—If the appropriate Administrator
20 determines that action under this section is necessary to
21 ensure the adequate availability in the United States of
22 commercial property and casualty insurance coverage for
23 acts of terrorism, the appropriate Administrator may pro-
24 vide that the provisions of this Act shall continue to apply
25 with respect to a period or periods, as established by the

1 Administrator, that begin after the expiration of the cov-
2 ered period specified in section 5(b) and end before Janu-
3 ary 1, 2005.

4 (b) COVERED PERIOD.—If the appropriate Adminis-
5 trator exercises the authority under subsection (a), not-
6 withstanding section 5(b) and section 16(9), the period or
7 periods established by the appropriate Administrator shall
8 be considered to be the covered period for purposes of this
9 Act.

10 SEC. 18. REGULATIONS.

11 The appropriate Administrators shall issue any regu-
12 lations necessary to carry out this Act.

1 (10) in addition, it is necessary to repeal por-
2 tions of the tax law which prohibit the insurance
3 market from developing the necessary reserves to
4 handle possible future losses due to acts of ter-
5 rorism.

6 SEC. 3. DESIGNATION OF ADMINISTRATORS.

7 (a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than December 1, 2001,
8 the President shall designate a Federal officer or officers
9 to act as the Administrator or Administrators responsible
10 for carrying out this Act and the responsibilities under
11 this Act to be carried out by each such officer.

12 (b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of the 13 Congress that in determining the Administrator respon-
14 sible for making any determinations, for purposes of this
15 Act, as to whether a loss was caused by an act of terrorism
16 and whether such loss was caused by one or multiple such
17 events, pursuant to section 5(b), the President should con-
18 sider the appropriate role of the Assistant to the President
19 for Homeland Security.

20 SEC. 4. SUBMISSION OF PREMIUM INFORMATION TO AD-
21 MINISTRATOR.

22 To the extent such information is not otherwise avail-
23 able to the Administrators, the appropriate Administrator
24 may require each insurer to submit, to the appropriate Ad-
25 ministrator or to the NAIC, a statement specifying the

1 aggregate premium amount of coverage written by such
2 insurer for properties and persons in the United States
3 under each line of commercial property and casualty insur-
4 ance sold by such insurer during such periods as the ap-
5 propriate Administrator may provide.

6 SEC. 5. TRIGGERING DETERMINATION AND COVERED PE-
7 RIOD.

8 (a) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this Act, a “trig-
9 gering determination” is a determination by the appro-
10 priate Administrator that the insured losses resulting from
11 the event of an act of terrorism occurring during the cov-
12 ered period (as such term is defined in subsection (b)),
13 or the aggregate insured losses resulting from multiple
14 events of acts of terrorism all occurring during the covered
15 period, meet the requirements under either of the fol-
16 lowing paragraphs:

17 (1) INDUSTRY-WIDE LOSS TEST.—Such indus-
18 try-wide losses exceed $1,000,000,000.

19 (2) CAPITAL SURPLUS AND INDUSTRY AGGRE-
20 GATE TEST.—Such industry-wide losses exceed
21 $100,000,000 and some portion of such losses for
22 any single commercial insurer exceed—

23 (A) 10 percent of the capital surplus of
24 such commercial insurer (as such term is de-
25 fined by the appropriate Administrator); and

1 (B) 10 percent of the commercial property
2 and casualty premiums written by such com-
3 mercial insurer;
4 except that this paragraph shall not apply to any
5 commercial insurer that has been making commer-
6 cial property and casualty insurance coverage avail-
7 able for less than 4 years as of the date of the deter-
8 mination under this subsection.

9 (b) COVERED PERIOD.—For purposes of this Act, the
10 “covered period” is the period beginning on the date of
11 the enactment of this Act and ending on January 1, 2003.

12 (c) DETERMINATIONS REGARDING EVENTS.—For
13 purposes of subsection (a), the appropriate Administrator
14 shall have the sole authority for determining whether—

15 (1) an occurrence or event was caused by an act
16 of terrorism;

17 (2) insured losses from acts of terrorism were
18 caused by one or multiple events or occurrences; and

19 (3) whether an act of terrorism occurred during
20 the covered period.

21 SEC. 6. FEDERAL COST-SHARING FOR COMMERCIAL INSUR-
22 ERS.

23 (a) IN GENERAL.—Pursuant to a triggering deter-
24 mination, the appropriate Administrator shall provide fi-
25 nancial assistance to commercial insurers in accordance

1 with this section to cover insured losses resulting from
2 acts of terrorism, which shall be repaid in accordance with
3 subsection (e).

4 (b) AMOUNT.—Subject to subsection (c), with respect
5 to a triggering determination, the amount of financial as-
6 sistance made available under this section to each com-
7 mercial insurer shall be equal to 90 percent of the amount
8 of the insured losses of the insurer as a result of the trig-
9 gering event involved.

10 (c) AGGREGATE LIMITATION.—The aggregate
11 amount of financial assistance provided pursuant to this
12 section may not exceed $100,000,000,000.

13 (d) LIMITATIONS.—The appropriate Administrator
14 may establish such limitations as may be necessary to en-
15 sure that payments under this section in connection with
16 a triggering determination are made only to commercial
17 insurers that are not in default of any obligation under 18 section 7 to pay assessments or under section 8 to collect
19 surcharges.

20 (e) REPAYMENT.—Financial assistance made avail-
21 able under this section shall be repaid through assess-
22 ments under section 7 collected by the appropriate Admin-
23 istrator and surcharges remitted to the appropriate Ad-
24 ministrator under section 8. Any such amounts collected

1 or remitted shall be deposited into the general fund of the
2 Treasury.

3 (f) EMERGENCY DESIGNATION.—Congress des-
4 ignates the amount of new budget authority and outlays
5 in all fiscal years resulting from this section as an emer-
6 gency requirement pursuant to section 252(e) of the Bal-
7 anced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985
8 (2 U.S.C. 901(e)). Such amount shall be available only
9 to the extent that a request, that includes designation of
10 such amount as an emergency requirement as defined in 11 such Act, is transmitted by the President to Congress.

12 SEC. 7. ASSESSMENTS.

13 (a) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a triggering deter-
14 mination, each commercial insurer shall be subject to as-
15 sessments under this section for the purpose of repaying
16 financial assistance made available under section 6 in con-
17 nection with such determination.

18 (b) AGGREGATE ASSESSMENT.—Pursuant to a trig-
19 gering determination, the appropriate Administrator shall
20 determine the aggregate amount to be assessed among all
21 commercial insurers, which shall be equal to 90 percent
22 of the lesser of—

23 (1) the amount of industry-wide losses resulting
24 from the triggering event involved; and

25 (2) $20,000,000,000.

1 (c) ALLOCATION OF ASSESSMENT.—

2 (1) IN GENERAL.—The appropriate Adminis-
3 trator shall allocate the aggregate assessment
4 amount determined under subsection (b) among all
5 commercial insurers. The portion of the aggregate
6 assessment amount that is allocated as an assess-
7 ment on each commercial insurer shall be based on
8 the percentage, written by that insurer, of the aggre-
9 gate written premium, for all commercial insurers,
10 for the calendar year preceding the assessment.

11 (2) PAYMENT REQUIREMENT.—Upon notifica-
12 tion by the appropriate Administrator of an assess-
13 ment under this section, each commercial insurer
14 shall be required to pay to the appropriate Adminis-
15 trator, in the manner provided under section 9 by 16 the appropriate Administrator, the amount equal to
17 the assessment on such commercial insurer (subject
18 to the limitation under paragraph (3)).

19 (3) ANNUAL LIMITATION ON AMOUNT ALLO-
20 CATED TO EACH COMMERCIAL INSURER.—

21 (A) IN GENERAL.—Of any assessments
22 under this section on a commercial insurer, the
23 portion required to be paid by any commercial
24 insurer during a calendar year shall not exceed
25 the amount that is equal to 3 percent of the ag-

107TH CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

H. R. _____

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. OXLEY introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To ensure the continued financial capacity of insurers to provide coverage for risks from terrorism.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

3 SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE AND TABLE OF CONTENTS.

4 (a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the
5 “Terrorism Risk Protection Act”.

6 (b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents for
7 this Act is as follows:

1 aggregate written premium for such insurer for
2 the preceding calendar year.

3 (B) MULTIPLE PAYMENTS.—If any
4 amounts required to be repaid under this sec-
5 tion for a calendar year are limited by operation
6 of subparagraph (A), the appropriate Adminis-
7 trator shall provide that all such remaining
8 amounts shall be reallocated among all commer-
9 cial insurers (in the manner provided in para-
10 graph (1)) over such immediately succeeding
11 calendar years, and repaid over such years, as
12 may be necessary to provide for full payment of 13 such remaining amounts, except that the limita-
14 tion under subparagraph (A) shall apply to the 15 amounts paid in any such successive calendar
16 years.

17 (C) ADMINISTRATIVE FLEXIBILITY.—

18 (i) TIMING OF ASSESSMENTS.—As-
19 sessments under this section in connection
20 with a triggering demonstration shall be
21 made, to the extent that the appropriate
22 Administrator considers practicable and
23 appropriate, at the beginning of the cal-
24 endar year immediately following the trig-
25 gering determination.

1 (ii) ESTIMATES AND CORRECTIONS.—

2 If the appropriate Administrator makes an
3 assessment at a time other than provided
4 under clause (i), the appropriate Adminis-
5 trator may—

6 (I) require commercial insurers
7 to estimate their aggregate written
8 premiums for the year in which the
9 assessment is made; and

10 (II) make a subsequent refund or
11 require additional payments to correct
12 such estimation at the end of the cal-
13 endar year.

14 (4) DEFERRAL OF CONTRIBUTIONS.—The ap-
15 propriate Administrator may defer the payment of
16 part or all of the assessment required under para-
17 graph (2) to be paid by a commercial insurer, but
18 only to the extent that the appropriate Adminis-
19 trator determines that such deferral is necessary to
20 avoid the likely insolvency of the commercial insurer.

21 SEC. 8. TERRORISM LOSS REPAYMENT SURCHARGE.

22 (a) IMPOSITION AND COLLECTION.—If, pursuant to
23 a triggering determination, the appropriate Administrator
24 determines that the aggregate amount of industry-wide

1 losses resulting from the triggering event involved exceeds
2 $20,000,000,000, the appropriate Administrator shall—

3 (1) establish and impose a policyholder pre-
4 mium surcharge, as provided under this section, on
5 commercial property and casualty insurance written
6 after such determination, for the purpose of repay-
7 ing financial assistance made available under section
8 6 in connection with such triggering determination;
9 and

10 (2) provide for commercial insurers to collect
11 such surcharge and remit amounts collected to the
12 appropriate Administrator.

13 (b) AMOUNT AND DURATION.—The surcharge under
14 this section shall be established in such amount, and shall
15 apply to commercial property and casualty insurance writ-
16 ten during such period, as the appropriate Administrator
17 determines is necessary to recover the aggregate amount
18 of financial assistance provided under section 6 to cover
19 insured losses resulting from the triggering event that ex-
20 ceed $20,000,000,000.

21 (c) OTHER TERMS.—The surcharge under this sec-
22 tion shall—

23 (1) be based on a percentage of the amount of
24 commercial property and casualty insurance cov-
25 erage that a policy provides; and

1 (2) be imposed with respect to all commercial
2 property and casualty insurance coverage written
3 during the period referred to in subsection (b).

4 SEC. 9. ADMINISTRATION OF ASSESSMENTS AND SUR-
5 CHARGES.

6 (a) MANNER AND METHOD.—The appropriate Ad-
7 ministrators shall provide for the manner and method of
8 carrying out assessments under section 7 and surcharges
9 under section 8, including the timing and procedures of
10 making assessments and surcharges, notifying commercial
11 insurers of assessments or surcharge requirements, col-
12 lecting payments from and surcharges through commercial
13 insurers, and refunding of any excess amounts paid or
14 crediting such amounts against future assessments.

15 (b) TIMING OF COVERAGES AND ASSESSMENTS.—
16 The appropriate Administrator may adjust the timing of
17 coverages and assessments provided under this Act to pro-
18 vide for equivalent application of the provisions of this Act
19 to commercial insurers and policies that are not based on
20 a calendar year.

21 (c) APPLICATION TO SELF-INSURANCE ARRANGE-
22 MENTS.—The appropriate Administrator may, in con-
23 sultation with the NAIC, apply the provisions of this Act,
24 as appropriate, to self-insurance arrangements by munici-
25 palities and other entities, but only if such application is

1 determined before the occurrence of a triggering event and
2 all of the provisions of this Act are applied uniformly to
3 such entities.

4 (d) ADJUSTMENT.—The appropriate Administrator
5 may adjust the assessments charged under section 7 or
6 the percentage imposed under the surcharge under section
7 8 at any time, as the appropriate Administrator considers
8 appropriate to protect the national interest, which may in-
9 clude avoiding unreasonable economic disruption or exces-
10 sive market instability.

11 SEC. 10. RESERVE FOR TERRORISM COVERAGE UNDER
12 COMMERCIAL LINES OF BUSINESS.

13 (a) IN GENERAL.—Section 832 of the Internal Rev-
14 enue Code of 1986 (relating to insurance company taxable
15 income) is amended by adding at the end the following
16 new subsection:

17 “(h) TERRORISM RESERVE FOR COMMERCIAL LINES
18 OF BUSINESS.—In the case of an insurance company sub-
19 ject to tax under section 831(a)—

20 “(1) INCLUSION FOR DECREASES, AND DEDUC-
21 TION FOR INCREASES, IN BALANCE OF RESERVE.—

22 “(A) DECREASE TREATED AS GROSS IN-
23 COME.—If for any taxable year—

24 “(i) the opening balance for the ter-
25 rorism commercial business reserve exceeds

1 “(ii) the closing balance for such re-
2 serve,
3 such excess shall be included in gross income
4 under subsection (b)(1)(F).

5 “(B) INCREASE TREATED AS DEDUC-
6 TION.—If for any taxable year—

7 “(i) the closing balance for the ter-
8 rorism commercial business reserve exceeds

9 “(ii) the opening balance for such re-
10 serve,
11 such excess shall be taken into account as a de-
12 duction under subsection (c)(14).

13 “(2) TERRORISM COMMERCIAL BUSINESS RE-
14 SERVE.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘ter-
15 rorism commercial business reserve’ means amounts
16 held in a segregated account (or other separately
17 identifiable arrangement or account) which are set
18 aside exclusively—

19 “(A) to mature or liquidate, either by pay-
20 ment or reinsurance, future unaccrued claims
21 arising from declared terrorism losses under
22 commercial lines of business, and

23 “(B) if so directed by the insurance com-
24 missioner of any State, to pay other claims as

1 part of a plan of the company to avoid insol-
2 vency.

3 “(3) LIMITATION ON AMOUNT OF RESERVE.—

4 “(A) IN GENERAL.—If the closing balance
5 of any terrorism commercial business reserve
6 for any taxable year exceeds such reserve’s limit
7 for such year—

8 “(i) such excess shall be included in
9 gross income under subsection (b)(1)(F)
10 for the following taxable year, and

11 “(ii) if such excess is distributed dur-
12 ing such following taxable year, the open-
13 ing balance of such reserve for such fol-
14 lowing taxable year shall be determined
15 without regard to such excess.

16 “(B) RESERVE LIMIT.—

17 “(i) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of
18 subparagraph (A), a reserve’s limit for any
19 taxable year is such reserve’s allocable
20 share of the national limit for the calendar
21 year in which such taxable year begins.

22 “(ii) NATIONAL LIMIT.—The national
23 limit is $40,000,000,000 ($13,340,000,000
24 for 2002).

25 “(iii) ALLOCATION OF LIMIT.—

1 “(I) IN GENERAL.—A reserve’s
2 allocable share of the national limit
3 for any calendar year is the amount
4 which bears the same ratio to the na-
5 tional limit for such year as the com-
6 pany’s net written premiums for com-
7 mercial lines of business bears to such
8 net written premiums for all compa-
